PUBLISHERS' PREFACE.

IN accordance with their original plan the Publishers are continuing to keep "THE ENGLISH AND EMPIRE DIGEST" up to date, the method adopted being very similar to that employed in the case of the "LAWS OF ENGLAND," and the system has been found by Subscribers to be equally satisfactory in use.

Supplement No. 4, to which this note is a preface, brings the published Volumes of the main Work up to January 1st, 1929, viz. Vols. 1-41.

The use of this Supplement will enable subscribers to find with the minimum of time and trouble all the judicial decisions and annotations reported since the first forty-one Volumes were each and severally published.

As regards English cases additional citations and annotations are preceded by the number of the case in the original volume, while new cases follow as far as possible the arrangement in the original volume, and are given the number of the case which they should follow, with the addition of a letter of the alphabet, beginning with the letter "a."

In dealing with the Scottish and Irish decisions, and the decisions of the Overseas Dominions, where they can be justifiably connected with a specific English case in the original volume, or in the Supplement, or with a specific Colonial case in the original volume, that fact is indicated by giving them the number borne by the English case, or the letter of the alphabet borne by the Colonial case, followed by a serial number in Roman numerals. Cases that cannot be joined in this manner are marked with two letters of the alphabet, the first one being the letter "s," and are placed as near as possible to the English or Colonial case which they most resemble.

As regards the Table of Cases to the Supplement the name of the title in which the case is cited is given in an abbreviated form between the number of the original volume in which the title appears and, as regards English cases, the number of the case, or, as regards Scottish and Irish cases and decisions of the Overseas Dominions, the number of the page of the Supplement on which the case is dealt with. The abbreviated forms of the titles are set out below :—

PUBLISHERS' PREFACE.

Just as the Supplement to "THE LAWS OF ENGLAND" has helped that great Work to establish its unrivalled position in the British Commonwealth of Nations, so do the Publishers confidently believe that the Supplement to "THE ENGLISH AND EMPIRE DIGEST" will assist in making "THE ENGLISH AND EMPIRE DIGEST" not only always complete and up to date, but also indispensable wherever the great system of law practised by the English-speaking nations is in force.

MEANING OF TERMS

USED IN CLASSIFYING ANNOTATING CASES.

THE different expressions used to describe the effect of the annotating cases have the following meanings, and the classification of the annotating cases has been done strictly in accordance with these meanings. The annotating cases, except such as are classified as "Mentioned," are grouped according to the points in the case which they annotate: within these groups they are listed chronologically, except such as are classified as "Referred to," which come at the end of the group and are arranged inter se in chronological order. Cases which annotate the annotated case generally are grouped together after cases which annotate specific points, similarly arranged, and are followed by cases classified as "Mentioned" arranged chronologically inter se. The terms used in classifying the annotating cases are as follows:—

- "APPLIED" (Apld.).—This expression is used to denote the fact that the principle of law enunciated in the annotated case has been applied to a new set of facts and circumstances in the annotating case.
- "APPROVED" (Apprvd.).—This expression is used to denote the fact that the annotated case has been considered to be good law in the annotating case where the latter is in a higher court than the former.
- "CONSIDERED" (Consd.).—This expression is used where the remarks in the annotating case are devoid of adverse criticism and merely denote the giving of more or less careful consideration to the annotated case.
- "DISTINGUISHED" (Distd.).—This expression is used where the earlier case is not necessarily doubted, but where some essential difference (either on the facts or in law) between it and the annotated case is pointed out.
- "DOUBTED" (Dbtd.).—This expression is used where the court in the annotating case without definitely going to the length of saying that the annotated case is wrong, adduces reasons which seem to show that it is not accurate.
- "EXPLAINED" (Expld.).—This expression is used where the earlier case is not necessarily doubted, but the decision arrived at is justified or accounted for by calling attention to some point of fact or of law which is usually, but not necessarily, one not obvious on the face of the report.
- "EXTENDED" (Extd.).—Compare "APPLIED," supra.
- "FOLLOWED" (Folld.).—This expression is used to denote that the same principles of law are applied in the two cases. It does not necessarily imply that the facts are substantially identical in the two cases.
- "NOT FOLLOWED" (N.F.).—Compare "FOLLOWED," supra, to which it is the adverse.
- "OVERRULED" (Overd.).—This expression is used where the annotating case is on substantially identical facts with the annotated case and in a higher court and the rule in the latter case is held to be wrong.
- "REFERRED" (Refd.).—This expression is used only where the annotating case deals with the point of the Digest paragraph and is without comment of any definite character on the case annotated, and where there is no delicate shade of approval or disapproval which would justify the use of any of the foregoing words.
- "MENTIONED" (Mentd.).—This expression is used only where none of the foregoing terms apply. In other words, it is used only where the case annotated is cited on a point having nothing to do with the point in the Digest paragraph.

- 90a.]—The Food Controller requisitioned certain cattle feeding stuffs under Defence of the Realm Regulations, but whether under reg. 2 B. or reg. 2 F. was doubtful. By reg. 2 B. the price to be paid for goods taken thereunder was to be determined by the tribunal by which claims for compensation under Defence of the Realm Regulations were determined, but was not to exceed a certain maximum price fixed by an Ord. in Council. By reg. 2 F. compensation for goods taken thereunder was to be paid as determined by an arbitrator, taking into account the cost of production of the goods & a reasonable profit. The maximum price fixed by the Ord. in Council had been paid. The Defence of the Realm Losses Commission having refused to entertain a claim for compensation, the owners of the goods presented a petition of right, claiming that the Food Controller had acted under reg. 2 F., & that they were entitled to compensation fixed by arbn. thereunder. At the trial the judge held that the Controller had acted under reg. 2 B., & dismissed the petition. On July 22, 1920, suppliants gave notice of appeal. On Aug. 16, 1920, Indemnity Act, 1920 (c. 48), was passed :—Held : (1) the appeal was not a "proceeding instituted"

Resp. applied to a county ct. judge as "local judge" of the Supreme Ct. for relief, who made an order against resp. dispensing with the restrictions of the Act :—Held : the local judge had no jurisdiction, as the proceeding was not a proceeding in an "action," as required under the wording of the Ord. in Council, June 16, 1906. Resp.'s proper remedy against applt. was by injunction to restrain applt. from invading his rights under the Act.—HANNA v. COSKERTON, [1919] W. W. R. 930; 44 D. L. R. 478.—CAN.

104 II. ———.]—The expression "a cause of action" in Supreme Ct. Act, 1915 (No. 2733), s. 141, means the particular act or omission occasioning the injury complained of, & so giving rise to plff.'s claim, not every fact material to be proved in order to entitle plff. to succeed.—CHIDZEY v. BRECKLER, [1920] V. L. R. 558.—AUS.

104 III. ———.]—The "cause of action" in District Ct. Act, R. S. S., 1920 (c. 40), s. 29, means the whole cause of action, including every material fact which plff. must allege & prove to give him a right to judgment, & therefore if the whole cause of a district ct. action did not arise in one judicial district the action should be brought in that district where deft. or one of several defts. resides or carries on business. Notwithstanding sect. 2, sub-sect. 2 (2), of the Act providing that in the Act unless there is something in the subject or context repugnant thereto the expressions "cause" & "action" shall respectively have the same meaning as the same expressions have in King's Bench Act, the words "the cause of action" in sect. 29 should not be construed in the same way as in King's Bench Act, s. 35, because in sect. 29 "there is something in the subject or context repugnant thereto," namely, the fact that sect. 29 confers jurisdiction on an inferior ct. & therefore must be strictly construed, jurisdiction not being assumed beyond what is clearly conferred, whereas a different principle applies in sect. 35 which does not affect to deal with jurisdiction but simply deals with practice & procedure in a superior ct.—HOWELL v. WARNER, [1921] 3 W. W. R. 587.—CAN.

This order B. transmitted to his principal in Melbourne, who declined it, but authorised B. to inform deft. that plff. would accept the order at increased prices, added in ink on the original order. These new prices were subsequently submitted by B. to deft., who agreed to take certain of the good at the increased prices. By the contract the goods were to be delivered f.o.b. Melbourne, payment to be by draft payable at Perth, cost of exchange to be added. Plff. shipped the goods to deft. in Perth, who refused to accept the draft, alleging inferiority of the goods:—Held: the contract was made in Perth; & the only breach of the contract took place in Perth; & although delivery had to be made f.o.b. Melbourne, there was not a cause of action arising within Victoria.—CHIDZEY v. BRECKLER, [1920] V. L. R. 558.—AUS.

Where the sole exor. under a will never made any claim against the beneficiaries for repayment of certain costs which he had been ordered to pay to them, all he did having been to reserve his right to claim such repayment under a deed of indemnity that the beneficiaries had executed in his favour:—Held: the ct. had no jurisdiction to make a declaratory judgment under R. - 249a. ——— Unlawful means used.]—A single person or a body of persons commits an actionable wrong if he or they inflict actual pecuniary damage upon another by the intentional employment of unlawful means, such as threats of coercive action, to injure that person's business, even though the unlawful means may not comprise any specific act which is per se actionable & actual malice is not proved. The element of conspiracy in a case of this kind is of importance only in considering the weight of the acts alleged & the extent of the damage resulting therefrom.

Defts., the British Medical Association, a body incorporated for the purpose of maintaining "the honour & interests of the medical profession," & other defts., who were members of the Association, instituted & pursued a system of professional & social ostracism or boycott against plffs., who were medical men, by means of threats & widely extended coercive action. Defts. sought to justify the boycott on the ground that the conduct of plffs. in acting as the medical officers of a certain medical dispensary was detrimental to the honour & interests of the profession. As a result of the boycott plffs. suffered pecuniary loss in the exercise of their profession :—Held : plffs. had a good cause of action against all defts. for damages.—*PRATT v. PART II. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 1.

237 iii. ———.]—Plffs. complained that defts. dug holes in the beach upon their lands on the shore of a lake, where the sand met the grass-covered bank, that sand swept from plffs.' lands by storms was carried by the wind across defts.' beach, & came to rest in these holes, & that, when the next storm came, the sand remained in the holes & was not blown back to plffs.' lands. Plffs. contended that it was wrongfully detained by defts. :—Held : plffs. had no cause of action, as the sand could not be considered a nuisance, & its severance by the wind from its original situs, if shifting sand could be said to have a situs.—BREMNER v. BLEAKLEY, [1924] 2 D. L. R. 202; 54 O. L. R. 23; reversd., [1923] 2 D. L. R. 576; 52 O. L. R. 124.—CAN.

257a. —.]—A number of discharged sailors entered into a partnership according to the terms of which the sailors were to perform together at certain music halls & were not to appear during the terms of the partnership in any other theatre or music hall. Pltfs., who were members of the co., complained that the deft. had induced certain of the sailors to break the contract by promising to get them employment & by obtaining other engagements for them. By amendment it was further alleged that deft. had wrongfully continued persons in her employment with the knowledge that by being in her employment those persons were breaking a contract with pltfs.:—Held: assuming an action lies to recover damages on the latter ground, the foundation of this action is that there shall be notice to deft. of a subsisting contract which one party, at all events, is still willing & able to perform; & there being sufficient evidence before the county ct. judge that the partnership had for all practical purposes come to an end, no action lay.—*LONG v. 259a. Damage by rats.]—A firm of artificial manure manufacturers had on their premises, for the purposes of their business, a heap of bones which attracted rats. The occupier of adjoining premises was a farmer. The rats made runs between the factory & the fields & entered the farmer's land, & damaged his crops. The business had been carried on for at least thirty years, & there was no evidence to show that the bone heap had been increased beyond what it had been in past years, or anything to show that an increase which had actually taken place in the numbers of the rats was due to anything done by the manufacturers. In an action by the farmer against the manufacturers:—Held: in the absence of evidence showing that there had been an unusual & excessive collection of bones on the factory premises, or of anything unusual or excessive done by defts., or of any duty neglected by defts., pltf. could not maintain an action for damages.—*STEARNS v. Committee, of which deft. was a member, was set up in London by the Imperial Russian Govt. & continued by its successor, the Russian Provisional Govt., & the committee, which incurred large financial obligations, had possession of certain documents, which related to those obligations & were the property of those Govts. The committee ceased to operate in 1918, & the documents were handed over to a board of trustees appointed by the Chargé d'Affaires of the Russian Provincial Govt., & deft. became president of the board. The documents had become the property of pltf., the present Russian Govt., whose sovereignty had been recognised by the British Govt., but they were still in the possession of deft. Certain actions were pending against deft. as a member of the Russian Govt. Committee with regard to the transactions to which the documents related. Pltf. claimed the delivery up of the documents, & deft. contended that he was entitled to a lien on the documents until he had received an indemnity in respect of the other actions, & he set up the contention by way of defence & counterclaim:—Held: although where a sovereign state was a pltf. a counterclaim could be maintained against it, yet the counterclaim must be in respect of matters immediately connected with the claim, & as the indemnity sought by deft. was not in respect of any liability incurred by him in & about the custody of the documents, & was not in respect of matters immediately connected with the claim, the action succeeded & the counterclaim failed.—SOVIET REPUBLICS UNION v. 387a. — Notwithstanding restrictions on exercise of sovereign rights.—(1) It is the settled practice of the ct. to take judicial notice of the status of any foreign Govt., & for that purpose, in any case of uncertainty, to seek information from a Secretary of State; & the information so received is conclusive.

(2) A Govt. recognised as sovereign by His Majesty's Govt. is not the less exempt from the jurisdiction of our cts. because it has agreed to restrictions on the exercise of its sovereign rights.

By a deed dated in July, 1912, the Govt. of Kelantan granted to applt. co. certain mining & other rights to be exercised in that State, & the deed contained an arbn. clause, which incorporated Arbn. Act, 1889 (c. 49), far as applicable. Disputes having arisen as to the effect of the deed, they were referred to an arbitrator, who made an award in favour of the co. & directed the Govt. to pay the costs of the arbn. In Dec. 1921, the Govt. applied to the Ch. Div., under Arbn. Act, 1889, s. 11, to set aside the award, but the application was refused. In June, 1922, the co. obtained from the K. B. Div., under sect. 12 of the Act, an order giving leave to enforce the award, but the order was set aside, on the application of the Govt., on the ground that Kelantan was a sovereign independent State. Before setting aside the order the master asked the Secretary of State for the Colonies for information as to the status of Kelantan, & received in reply an official letter stating that Kelantan was an independent State & its Sultan the sovereign ruler thereof, & that the King did not exercise or claim any rights of sovereignty over Kelantan, & enclosing an agreement regulating the relations between the Sultan & the King. By this agreement the Sultan agreed to have no political relations with any foreign power except through the medium of the King, & in all matters of administration, other than those touching the Mohammedan religion & Malay custom, to follow the advice of an adviser appointed by the King:—Held: (1) the statement in the letter as to the sovereignty of Kelantan & its rulers was not intended to be qualified by the terms of the agreement, & the letter was conclusive; (3) the Govt. of Kelantan had not submitted to the jurisdiction of the ct. for the purpose of the proceedings to enforce the award, either by assenting to the arbn. clause or by applying to the ct. to set aside the award.—*DUFF DEVELOPMENT CO. v. 392a. ———.]—(1) In proceedings in the cts. of this country by or against the ruler of a colonial State whose status is disputed a written statement by the Secretary of State for the Colonies that the ruler is an independent foreign sovereign is equivalent to a communication from the Crown & therefore, conclusive, & the ct. will accept it without considering whether it is borne out by documents which are appended to it.

In an arbn. in this country between pltf. co. & the Govt. of Kelantan an award was made in favour of the co. with costs. The Govt. of Kelantan then moved to set aside the award & this motion was dismissed with costs. An appeal from this decision was also dismissed with costs. No portion of these costs had been paid. The co. obtained a garnishee order nisi to attach money in the hands of the Crown agents of the Colonies on behalf of the Govt. of Kelantan. Upon an application by the co. for payment by the garnishees the Govt. of Kelantan & the Crown agents appeared together & contended that Kelantan was an independent sovereign State & the ct. had no jurisdiction to execute the orders for costs by a levy on the property of that State:—Held: (2) although the Govt. of Kelantan had, by initiating proceedings to set aside the award of the arbitrator, submitted to the jurisdiction of the ct., (3) that submission had not the effect of rendering liable to execution any property belonging to the Govt. within the jurisdiction.—*DUFF DEVELOPMENT CO. v. PART V. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 1.

498 ii. ———.—Claim under Criminal Injuries Code of Ireland.]—The rule or doctrine that no civil remedy will lie against the perpetrators of a felonious act until they have been prosecuted to conviction is not applicable to a claim for compensation under Criminal Injuries Code of Ireland for goods stolen in the course of rioting.—TYLER v. CORK COUNTY COUNCIL, [1921] 2 I. R. 8.—IR.

499 i. ———.—]—A criminal charge was laid by plff. bank against deft. in respect of $1,800 which the bank alleged it had overpaid deft. Before decision in the criminal trial had been given, plffs. instituted an action to recover the money. It was contended on behalf of deft. that immediately the evidence disclosed a criminal offence on the part of deft., which had not been prosecuted to conviction or acquittal, plffs. should not have been allowed to proceed with the action, but should have been non-suited :—Held : as a criminal prosecution had actually been carried through, even though the decision was under advisement, the action could be maintained.—STANDARD BANK OF CANADA v. SHUEN WAH, [1919] 1 W. W. R. 586 ; 26 B. C. R. 441.—CAN.

504 iii. ———.—]—The rule that where plff. sues in respect of a wrong which is a tort & also a felony, deft. should be prosecuted in respect of the felony before the civil action is heard, does not make such criminal prosecution an indispensable condition precedent to the right to maintain the civil action. In its modern application the rule is merely suspensory of the civil rights, & is subject to the exercise of judicial discretion. In exercising such discretion the ct. may consider circumstances, such as the infancy, ignorance, or poverty of plff., which may afford excuse for the failure to prosecute in respect of the felony. Where plff. has obtained a verdict in the civil action the ct., on motion for a new trial or for judgment, may consider the circumstance that between verdict & motion deft. has been prosecuted in respect of the felony.—CARLISLE v. ORR (No. 2), [1918] 2 I. R. 442.—IR.

504 iv. ———.—]—On Aug. 12, 1920, an information for theft was laid by defts. against plff. On Aug. 23, 1920, plff. began an action in a division ct. against defts. to recover $99 for wages ; on Aug. 30, defts. counter-claimed in the division ct. action for money & tickets amounting to $202.74, “fraudulently & without colour of right” converted by plff. to his own use, the subject of conversion being the same as that in respect of which the criminal charge was made ; on Sept. 22 plff. was committed for trial on the criminal charge, & on Sept. 30, a true bill was found against him in the sessions. On a subsequent day the judge of the division ct. heard argument as to whether the action should be proceeded with before the criminal charge was taken up ; he decided that it should, & fixed a day for trial, but on Dec. 10, 1920, neither the action nor the criminal proceeding having been tried, an order was made by a judge of the Supreme Ct. of Ontario, upon the application of defts., prohibiting the judge of the division court from proceeding in the action until after the final disposition of the criminal prosecution. Plff. appealed from this order, & before the completion of the argument of the appeal plff. was tried upon the criminal charge & acquitted :—Held : the division ct. judge had the right, the claim & counterclaim being within the jurisdiction of the ct., to stay proceedings or otherwise deal with the case ; & prohibition did not lie, even if the judge erred in the conclusion to which he came.—Re BRYANT v. CITY DAIRY CO. (1921), 64 D. L. R. 283 ; 37 Can. Crim. Cas. 405 ; 50 O. L. R. 40.—CAN.

The action resulted in judgment for defts. on the claim, with damages for £75 for C. on the counter-claim. The assocn. before the hearing of the action had passed resolutions to indemnify C. & W. against any liability or costs arising from the action against them, & that the indemnity should extend to the costs of any counterclaim that counsel might advise should be made, provided that any costs of the action for which the assocn. would be liable should be paid pro tanto out of any moneys recovered in the action. It was agreed between him & deft. in the terms of the prospectus, "that in consideration of pltf. putting up all the necessary disbursements for the institution & conduct of legal or other proceedings, the net profits accruing directly or indirectly is to be equally divided between claimant & the society." Pltf. brought an action to recover the amounts of debts alleged to have been wrongfully collected by deft. in breach of the agreement:—Held: the agreement was illegal & void, being contrary to public policy, & champertous, as there was no community of interest between the parties, except such as was created by the agreement itself, & pltf. could not recover.—FORD v. 604a. ——— Assignment of option to take lease.]—In 1853 the L. & C. Ry. Co., the predecessors of deft. co., leased land adjacent to the station at Carlisle to H. for 999 years, for the purpose of erecting an hotel thereon. The lease contained a covenant by the co. with H., his exors., administrators & limited assigns that "the co. & their successors & assigns shall permit the tenant or occupier of the hotel for the time being & his servants to have access to the platforms of the station & that the tenant or occupier of the hotel shall have the option of renting the refreshment rooms" at a rent to be fixed as there mentioned, "in preference to any other party." In 1860 H. granted a sub-lease of the hotel premises to B. for 21 years, & the co. also granted to B. a lease of the refreshment rooms for 21 years. In 1866 pltf. co. obtained an assignment from B. of his interest under these two documents, & an assignment from H. of the land comprised in the lease of 1853 & "All & singular other premises comprised in & demised by the said recited indenture of lease of Aug. 1, 1853." From 1866 onwards pltf. managed & conducted both hotel & refreshment rooms, & after the expiration of the 21 years' term granted by the sub-lease of 1860 to B., they continued in occupation of the rooms upon such terms of that sub-lease as were applicable. In 1879 defts. succeeded by statute to the contracts of the L. & C. Ry. Co. On April 2, 1891, defts. & the Caledonian Ry. Co. demised to pltf. a plot of land adjacent to the hotel for 992 years. The deed recited the lease of 1853 & referred to it as the "principal indenture"; & it also provided that these presents are without prejudice to any of the covenants conditions & agreements contained in the principal indenture, which were to remain & be in full force. On Nov. 24, 1916, defts. gave six months' notice to pltf. to determine their occupation of the refreshment rooms. Pltf. gave up possession, & then served a written notice on defts. stating their desire to exercise the option contained in the lease of 1853, & requesting to be informed as to terms. Defts. having been notified by pltf., on Oct. 16, 1916, an express assignment from the personal representatives of H., who had died in 1876, of "all that the benefit right title & interest, if any, now remaining outstanding of or otherwise vested in them or any or either of them of & in the railway obligations." Pltf. claimed (a) a declaration that defts. by the lease of 1853 were under an obligation to put & keep the occupier of pltf.' hotel in occupation of the refreshment rooms, upon the terms of paying therefor a fixed market rent; (b) to have such rent fixed under the direction of the ct.; (c) damages for the breach of such obligation by defts.:—Held: (1) the option clause did not run with the land, & pass ipso facto by the assignment of the lease of 1853, as it did not touch or concern the thing demised; (2) the option clause was assignable, & was not a covenant merely personal to the covenantee; (3) the benefit of this clause was not assigned by the deed of 1866, inasmuch as the word "premises" therein referred to the land & buildings demised, & not to the option clause; (4) the deed of 1891 was not a fresh grant of the option rights to pltf., & did not constitute a binding recognition of pltf. as the assignees of the option clause; (5) the assignment of Oct. 16, 1916, by the personal representatives of H., of the option clause in the lease of 1853, being an assignment of a right of property, was not invalid for champerty; (6) the option clause was void for uncertainty; (7) the option clause was ultra vires of the railway co., as it fettered injuriously & gravely their obligations of performing efficiently their public duties.—COUNTY HOTEL & WINE CO. v. All three leases contained onerous covenants to repair the premises & to keep them & yield them up in good repair. The sub-underlease became vested by assignment in deft. On Dec. 18, 1917, pltf. who had been a tenant to deft. of the same premises, & was liable to him under a covenant to repair less onerous than those in the three leases above mentioned, agreed to purchase, & on May 1, 1918, took a conveyance of the fee simple of the premises together with the benefit of the covenants in the head lease. At the expiration of all the leases the premises were out of repair & deft. was threatening pltf. with an action on his covenant. Thereupon pltf. obtained an assignment of the full benefit of the lessee's covenants to repair contained in the sub-underlease, & commenced an action against deft. as assignee of the sub-underlease for breaches of the lessee's covenants therein:—Held: the assignment was free from objection on the ground of maintenance or champerty, the right of action on the covenants being so connected with the enjoyment of property as to be more than a bare right to litigate.—*ELLIS v. sa. Equitable jurisdiction.]—M. obtained judgment for wages, etc., against the A., the owners having made default to appear. D. & Co., the owners of the cargo, intervened. The vessel was duly seized, sold at auction by the sheriff, & purchased by D. & Co., who made the necessary deposit. Money had been wired by applt. to discharge pltf.'s claim, but arrived too late to stop the sale. D. & Co. afterwards tendered the balance of the price, which was refused on account of an application to set aside the sale, & to redeem the vessel. D. & Co., on purchasing the vessel, made arrangements for repairs thereto, & at the time the application was originally made, they were negotiating for the sale thereof. The application was refused:—Held: while the Admty. Ct. exercised an unquestionable equitable jurisdiction, inasmuch as applt. had failed to show a superior equity to those arising in favour of the purchasers, the order refusing the application should not be interfered with.—MCBRIDE v. DARRELL (1920), 20 Exch. C. R. 274.—CAN.

The Provisional Govt. entered appearances under protest, & motions were set down to set aside the writs & all subsequent proceedings on the grounds (inter alia) that the vessels were in the service of the Provisional Govt. & therefore immune from arrest; & that the dispute was between foreigners as to the possession of foreign ships, & therefore that, even if the ct. had jurisdiction, it should decline to exercise it. 147a. Owners liable though possession of vessel transferred—Ship requisitioned.]—A Greek steamship owned by defts., a Greek co., was requisitioned by the Greek Govt.; during the war in 1922 between Greece & Turkey. Under the terms of requisition the possession or control of the vessel passed to the Greek Govt., & the master & crew ceased to be employed by defts. & were conscripted into the Greek forces. At the end of the period of requisition the vessel had to be returned to defts. in the same condition as at the beginning of the period. While under requisition the vessel stranded, & was saved from possible total loss by the services of state-owned ship is not affected by the vessel being used for trading purposes & as a cargo carrier, nor does it matter how the vessel is being employed.—BROWN, JR. v. S.S. INDO-CHINE (1921), 21 Exch. C. R. 406.—CAN.

pltfs.' salvage ship. After the vessel had been returned to her owners she was arrested by pltfs. in an action in rem.—Held: the terms of requisition did not dispossess defts. of their property in the vessel; the services were of benefit to defts., as thereby they had their vessel instead of merely a claim against the Greek Govt.; as the services were not those of the crew of the Greek vessel, it was immaterial that the crew were the servants of the Greek Govt., & defts. were liable to

171a. ———.]—By a contract of sale made in London, an English co. on behalf of the Soviet Govt. purported to sell the J. to defts., an Italian co. The vessel had belonged to a Russian co., but the Soviet Govt. asserted that by a decree of nationalisation all vessels of the Russian mercantile marine had become State property, & that the co. had ceased to exist. The Russian co. had moved its business to France, & an action in rem was brought in its French name, & in the name of the persons appointed by the French cts. to administer its affairs, against "the J.," claiming possession. The Italian co. entered an appearance & moved to set aside the writ:—Held: (1) there is no established rule that the Admlty. Ct. will not entertain possession suits in respect of foreign vessels except at the request of both parties or with the consent of the accredited representative of the country to which the vessel belongs; the matter is one for the discretion of the ct.; (2) the proceedings did not implead the Soviet Govt. directly or indirectly; (3) the question of authority to institute the action was a matter which should be referred to the judge at the trial; (4) the motion to set aside the writ failed.—THE JUPITER (No. 2), [1925] P. 69; 94 L. Pltfs. brought an action in rem against the shipowners, claiming judgment for the validity of the mtges. & an order for sale of the vessel by the marshal. No appearance was entered by defts. & judgment was given condemning the vessel & ordering her sale. Thereupon the charterers intervened & claimed (a) a declaration that the charterparty was binding on the mtgees., who had notice of its existence when the mtges. were executed, & (b) an injunction to restrain pltfs. from exercising their right to an order for sale of the vessel except subject to the terms of the charterparty. The interveners also alleged that the mtges. were invalid:—Held: the interveners had no locus standi to dispute the validity of the mtge., but were only entitled to be heard on these questions whether pltfs. ought to be restrained from exercising their rights in such a way as to interfere with the interveners' contractual rights under the charterparty.—THE LORD STRATHCONA, [1925] P. 143; 95 L. - 518a. ————.]—In a collision between Swedish & British steamships, for which both ships were held to blame, a seaman on the former vessel was drowned. Under Swedish law the Swedish shipowners paid compensation to the relatives of the seaman. At the reference to assess the collision damage the Swedish shipowners claimed to recover from the owners of the British vessel a moiety of the compensation so paid. The registrar allowed the item. On appeal:—Held: the decision of the registrar was wrong for apart from Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (c. 57), the Ct. of Admlty. had no jurisdiction to entertain an action in rem for loss of life, & the Admlty. rules as to division of loss had no application to such a claim, & sect. 3 of —A ship registered as a British ship, & nominally owned by a duly registered British co., was in fact owned & controlled by the Hamburg-Amerika Line, of Hamburg, which, in the person of its nominees, owned all the shares in the British co. & appointed its directors. Accordingly, after the outbreak of war with Germany, the ship was seized as prize, & on July 28, 1916, the Prize Ct. pronounced her to have belonged at the time of seizure to enemies of the Crown, & ordered her to be detained by the marshal until further order. Meanwhile on Jan. 11, 1916, under Prize Ct. Rules, Ord. 29, the ship had been requisitioned by the Lords Comrs. of the Admiralty, & she remained in their possession. On Apr. 5, 1917, the writ in the present action was issued claiming a declaration under M. S. Acts, 1894 (c. 60), & 1906 (c. 48), that the ship was forfeited to the Crown on the ground that she was not entitled to be registered as a British ship:—Held: as the Lords Comrs. of the Admiralty had merely temporary possession of the ship & had to return her into the custody of the Prize Ct. which had at some time to make a final decree either of condemnation or release, the Admiralty Ct. had no jurisdiction to entertain the forfeiture action & to make the usual order for appraisement & sale, & the action must be dismissed.—*THE ST. 668a. — Issue—Res not within jurisdiction.]

(1) It is not necessary that, at the time of the issue of a writ in rem, the res should be within the jurisdiction of the ct.; & Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (c. 57), s. 8, which provides that in the case of collision or salvage actions the proceedings must be commenced within two years of the cause of action, is complied with if the writ is issued within two years; the sect. does not contemplate that the arrest of the res constitutes the commencement of the proceedings.

(2) In general, the ct. will not grant an extension of time for the renewal of an unserved writ, which has not been renewed within the period of one year as provided by R. S. C., Ord. 8, r. 1, if, but for the extension of time, the claim would be barred by a statute of limitation. But, inasmuch as Maritime Conventions Act, 1911 (c. 57), s. 8, contains provisos for extension of time unknown to any other statutes of limitation, the application to renew a writ in an action which comes within the operation of sect. 8 must be considered on its merits, & if, under the circumstances, the ct. would give leave to issue a writ notwithstanding the lapse of Pltfs. did not admit the facts set out in defts.' affidavit in support of the motion:—Held: the facts being in dispute the ct. could not try the issue on motion by affidavit & the motion must be dismissed, but without prejudice to the right of defts. to apply, when the issues were defined by pleadings, for the question of law to be tried as a preliminary point.—THE SYLVAN ARROW, [1923] P. 14; 92 L. The case came within the principle of *R. S. 701 iii. — Creditor's action—Claim for building, equipping or repairing.]—As soon as a creditor finds a ship under arrest of the ct., he may bring his action for, & the Admty. Ct. acquires immediate & irrevocable jurisdiction over any claim for building, equipping, or repairing the ship. That jurisdiction is established without the litigant having to show that the original action under which the ship was arrested must eventually succeed, & notwithstanding that the arrest was made without particulars being given to prove without doubt the status of pltf. in that original action.—ERIKSEN BROTHERS v. THE MAPLE LEAF (1922), 67 D. L. R. 261; [1922] 3 W. W. R. 41.—CAN.

701 iv. — Repairs continued after arrest.]—Resps. contracted with the owner of a ship to do certain repairs, & it was delivered to them for the purpose. When the repairs were going on the ship was arrested at the suit of appls., who claimed for earlier repairs & necessities. After the arrest the ship was left in the actual possession of resps., who continued to do the repair work contracted for without the sanction of the ct. but in good faith:—Held: resps. should have priority for repairs made after the arrest so far as the selling value of the ship was thereby increased.—MONTREAL DRY DOCKS & SHIP REPAIRING

A foreign ship was seized under a sheriff's writ of fi. fa. in execution of a judgment obtained by the charterers of the ship against the owners of fifty-six sixty-fourth shares in the ship. Subsequently the ship was arrested by the Admty. marshal in an action in rem for necessities. Various other writs in rem were issued against the ship, including a writ by the master in respect of wages. The sheriff was unable to effect a sale, & the ship was sold by the marshal without prejudice to the rights of the various claimants:—Held: the fact that the sheriff was in possession did not deprive the marshal of his power to arrest the ship in actions in rem.—THE JAMES W. Pltfs. moved to amend their writ by adding to the amount claimed & for the issue of a warrant to re-arrest the B.:—Held: the ct. might direct measures to be taken to do full justice to pltfs., & to that end permit the issue of a warrant for the re-arrest of the ship, but with costs of the motion & of the re-arrest against pltfs.—HALL COAL CO. v. 781b. Undertaking to put in bail—Afterwards withdrawn—Effect of subsequent arrest of vessel.]—On June 22, 1920, defts.' solrs. gave an undertaking to enter an appearance & put in bail in respect of a writ in rem claiming damages in respect of loss by collision. In consequence defts.' vessel was not arrested. On Feb. 17, 1921, defts.' solrs. wrote to pl'ts.' solrs. that their clients were unable to make arrangements for bail, that accordingly the undertaking for bail was withdrawn, & that, as the vessel was within the jurisdiction of the ct., pl'ts. could arrest her. Pl'ts.' solrs. arrested the vessel, but wrote to defts.' solrs. that they reserved all their clients' rights under the undertaking for bail. On Mar. 16, 1921, the vessel was appraised as being at that time of a value of £600. Defts. provided bail in that sum & the vessel was released. On Apr. 12, pl'ts. applied for an order that defts.' solrs. should forthwith provide good & sufficient bail, pursuant to their undertaking. It appeared that in June, 1920, the value of the vessel was much in excess of £600, & pl'ts. estimated her value at £4,500 :—Held : (1) the undertaking to give bail could not be withdrawn by substituting the vessel for the bail ; (2) pl'ts. had not waived their rights under the undertaking by arresting the vessel ; (3) defts.' solrs. must complete their undertaking by putting in bail to the value of the vessel as on June 22, 1920 ; (4) nature of bail discussed.—THE BORRE, [1921] P. 390 ; 91 L. 781e. Benefit of bail—Action in name of cargo owners—Some owners not joining in proceedings.]—The steamships W. & J. came into collision & the W. & her cargo were damaged. Before the issue of the writ an undertaking to put in bail to the amount of £100,000, had been given on behalf of the owners of the J. The writ was in the names of "The owners of the steamship W. & cargo v. the owners of the steamship J.," but at that time no authority from any of the cargo owners had been received. While the litigation was proceeding the owners of the W. asked the various underwriters on the cargo, subrogated to the rights of the respective cargo owners, to join in the proceedings or share in the costs. Some assented & some declined. The litigation proceeded to the House of Lords, where the J. was held alone to blame. The sum of £100,000 being insufficient to satisfy all the claims, the owners of the W. contended that having sued as owners of the ship & bailees of the cargo they were entitled to receive the whole of the bail for which the undertaking had been given. pay themselves the amount of their own damage as shipowners in priority to all other claimants, & that the non-assenting cargo owners had no right to share in the fund :—Held : (1) although, as bailees of the cargo, the shipowners were entitled to recover the full value of the damage to the cargo, represented by the bail, they must account to all the owners of the damaged parcels of cargo for their share ; (2) it was the duty of the ct., when the bail was recovered, to see that all persons having a claim on the fund, including the non-assenting cargo owners, shared in the distribution.—THE JOANNIS VATIS, [1922] P. 92 ; 91 L. J. P. 182 ; 126 L. T. 718 ; 15 Asp. M. L. C. 506, C. A.

781f. Several salvage actions.]—A vessel which had stranded on rocks & sustained heavy damage got off with the assistance of various salvors & was placed in dock for temporary repairs. In respect of these services various salvage actions & an action by the ship repairers for salvage &/or necessities were instituted. No defence was put in, but in the first action an appearance was entered & an undertaking given to put in bail for ship, cargo & freight in the sum of £1,000. The cargo & freight were valued at £327. Before the other actions were instituted the cargo had been landed & dispersed. After some temporary repairs had been effected the vessel was sold by the marshal. She only realised £889 :—Held : the bail for cargo & freight did not constitute a fund in which all the salvors could share ; the undertaking was given in one action only, & pl'ts. in that action, in which the total values were £1,217, could treat ³²⁷ of £1,000 as bail representing the cargo & freight.—THE RUSSLAND, [1924] P. 55 ; 93 L. 781g. Amount of bail—Value of ship & freight—Limit of liability—Facts disputed by plaintiffs.]—If, in an action of damage by collision, the amount for which the action is brought exceeds the statutory limit provided by M. S. Act, 1894 (c. 60), s. 503, deft. shipowners on filing an affidavit in the damage action stating the tonnage of their ship & that the collision happened without their actual fault or privity, will, if these facts are not denied by pl'tf. shipowners, be entitled to have the ship released on bail being given to an amount sufficient to cover the statutory limit, together with interest & costs. But if pl'ts. dispute the facts on which the right to limit liability depends, bail must be given to the full value of defts.' ship.—THE CHARLOTTE, [1920] P. 78 ; 89 L. J. P. 62 ; 123 L. In a consolidated salvage suit where the owners of two tugs, separately owned, joined in one writ, & the masters & crews in another, defts. tendered a lump sum which the ct. upheld, but as defts.' affidavit of values was only handed to pltfs. on the day of the trial:—Held: (2) pltfs., the tug owners, who had been given the conduct of the consolidated action, were entitled to their costs; (3) the interests of the masters & crews being identical with those of the owners, the masters & crews were not entitled to be separately represented at the expense of defts. S. O., Ord. 19, r. 28, is a matter for the discretion of the ct. In such cases the proper course is that there should be the communication between the solrs. which commonly takes place in admty. cases, & that the solrs. should ascertain whether the parties are ready to file preliminary acts under Ord. 19, r. 28. If both parties are not ready to deliver preliminary acts, or one of them declares himself unable or unwilling, then the matter should be raised by summons. If in such a case an order is made for preliminary acts to be filed, such order is not properly complied with by the party whose vessel has not been in collision filing a blank preliminary act.—THE EL Oso (1925), 133 L. Pltfs. issued a writ in rem against the owners of the C., & the usual preliminary acts were filed by both parties. In their defence the owners of the C. blamed the B., & pltfs. added the owners of the B. as second defts. Thereupon the owners of the C. obtained an order that the owners of the B. should forthwith file a preliminary act:—Held: (1) the only parties entitled as against second defts. to a preliminary act were pltfs., & they would be so entitled when they had filed a preliminary act against second defts.; first defts. were not entitled to require second defts. to file a preliminary act unless they chose to become pltfs. & issue a writ against second defts., & the order must be set aside; (2) if it were a matter of discretion, the guiding principle, that of mutuality, would be infringed by the order made, as second defts. would be bound by a preliminary act which they had filed, & the parties at whose instance it had been filed would not be bound, as against second defts., by the judgment in the present action.—THE CARLSTON. Defts. directed that a report on a printed form headed "Confidential report for the information of the Authority's solr." should be made by the master of the vessel. The report was subsequently passed through various departments in defts.' offices until it reached the solr.'s hands. It was then dealt with by the solr. in the course of his professional conduct. A report was made in these circumstances by the master of a vessel belonging to defts. in respect of a collision with pl'ts.' vessel. Defts. had called for reports from the first, second, third, & fourth officers of the steamer, in order to investigate the question of the management of the vessel & the conduct of their officers in the prevention of theft, which reports were in due course obtained through defts.' agents in China. They also pleaded certain soundings which differed from those pleaded by certain of pl'tfs. Pl'tfs. by their reply joined issue upon the defence save in so far as the same consisted of admissions:—Held: pl'tfs. were entitled to put in the logs of defts.' vessel with a view to proving that the ship was in real danger, & also a graphic representation of the soundings based on sketches in defts.' log, but not to call evidence as to the facts, e.g. the displacement of certain tugs.—THE WOODARRA (1921), 38 T. After postponement—Decrease in value of ship—Liability of intervener causing postponement to give further security.]—In a mtge. action in rem plths., mtgees., in Jan., 1925, recovered judgment by default condemning the ship & ordering her sale by the marshal. Thereupon certain charterers, to whom the mtgors. had chartered the ship for a term of years, intervened, claiming a declaration that the charterparty was binding on the mtgees.; & by an order of Mar. 3 the sale of the ship stood over pending the trial of the issue, upon the interveners giving security in an amount satisfactory to the registrar for loss arising from delay & any loss on sale due to a fall in shipping values. On July 15 the ct. gave judgment that plths. were not bound by the charterparty, that they were entitled to the judgment they had obtained, & that the costs of & occasioned by the intervention should be paid by the interveners. On Oct. 14 the ship was sold by the marshal for £20,000 less than she had been valued at nine months previously. Plths. took out a summons for further security :—Held : although judgment had been given against the interveners & they were not appealing against that decision, the matter was still at large, as they were contesting plths.' claims before the registrar, & the interveners could be ordered to give further security in respect of possible loss of capital & interest & for the marshal's expenses; the case must be referred to the registrar to find what amount should be given & what was the amount of plths.' damages under each head.—THE LORD STRATHCONA (No. 2), [1926] P. 18; 95 L. 1520a. — Measure of compensation.—While it has always been the practice, owing to the nature of their calling, to allow seafaring witnesses to be detained on shore to give evidence, & to allow them reasonable compensation for their detention, it is a question for the taxing master whether a party who seeks to charge his opponent with the cost of detaining an expensive witness has acted reasonably in incurring the expense or whether he ought not to have examined the witness on commission.

A taxing master should bear in mind that a witness duly summoned is bound to attend, & the witness is not entitled to receive, as the measure of his compensation, the exact sum he may prove he has lost by reason of the detention. He is, however, entitled to some compensation, & not merely to the conduct money given him with his subpoena; & the wages he is earning may afford an important indication of what is fair compensation. But although this is correct in the case of seamen, as regards captains & other officers, as in the case of professional witnesses, their earnings cannot be taken as a fair criterion on which to base the allowance.—THE IBIS VI, [1921] P. 255; 90 L. 1521a. Costs of obtaining statements from independent witnesses—Discontinuance of action.—In a collision action, before pltf's. had filed their preliminary act or statement of claim, defts. took statements from independent witnesses on other vessels. Pltf's. shortly afterwards discontinued the action. On the taxation of defts.' bill of costs the assistant registrar disallowed the costs of obtaining these statements, on the ground that there was "a well-settled principle of taxation that a party is only entitled as against his opponent to incur such costs or expenses as will enable him to conduct his case at the stage which the proceedings have reached, & not incur expenses in anticipation of matter, which, as events turn out, never arise":—Held: R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 27 (29), was not limited in the way stated by the assistant registrar; if solrs. could compel the discontinuance of an action by collecting the necessary evidence, they were entitled to do so, & the costs in question were not prematurely incurred, & defts. were entitled to recover them from pltf's. on taxation.—THE CHANNEL QUEEN, [1928] P. 157; 97 L. 1551a. ——— Unascertained liability—Right of plaintiffs in limitation suit to claim against fund.—In Feb. 1917, two Norwegian vessels, the C. & the O., came into collision & the C. sank. In Mar. 1917, the owners of the cargo laden on board the C. began an action against the owners of the O. in the Admty. Ct. The action was heard in May, 1919, when both vessels were pronounced to blame, & accordingly it was adjudged that pltf's. were entitled to receive a moiety of the amount of their damage from defts. Thereupon defts., the owners of the O., commenced a limitation action against the owners of the C., the owners of her cargo, & all persons claiming to have received damage by reason of the collision. This action was heard in Feb. 1920, when a decree was pronounced limiting the liability of the owners of the O. to £8 per ton on the registered tonnage of the O. calculated in accordance with M. S. Act, 1894 (c. 60). The decree provided that all claims were to be brought in within three months & that claims not so brought in would be excluded from sharing in the limitation fund. Claims were filed by the owners of the cargo on the C., but although the owners of the C. entered an appearance they took no further steps in the limitation proceedings. Meanwhile, however, in Feb. 1919, the owners of the C. had commenced an action in Norway against the owners of the O. & in June, 1920, when the reference was held in the limitation proceedings & the registrar made his report, the trial of the Norwegian action was still pending. The owners of the O. accordingly took out a summons asking that the report be not confirmed & that they might have leave to file a claim against the fund in respect of any liability they might incur under the Norwegian proceedings. The judge declined to postpone the distribution of the fund & dismissed the summons. Pltf's., the owners of the O., appealed:—Held: (1) pltf's. had no absolute right under the limitation sects. of M. S. Act, 1894 (c. 60), to have the distribution of the fund stayed & to bring forward a claim when ascertained; (2) limitation proceedings do not contemplate claims by pltf's., & the owners of the O. could not file a claim against the fund in their own right; (3) had an application been made in proper form the ct. would have had a discretion to extend the time before distributing the fund, in order to allow pltf's. to ascertain their liability under the pending Norwegian judgment & to apply to the ct. to adjust the distribution of the fund so that pltf's. might obtain credit for the amount payable under the Norwegian judgment; but, having regard to the lapse of time & to the fact that limitation proceedings contemplate that claims shall be brought in promptly & the distribution of the fund not be unreasonably delayed, the ct. had rightly exercised its discretion in refusing to postpone the distribution of the fund.—THE KRONPRINZ OLAV, [1921] P. 52; 90 L. The ct. found the master guilty of negligence & severely censured him, but did not deem it necessary to deal with his certificate. The master served notice of appeal on the Board of Trade, but the Board took the view that no appeal lay unless the officer's certificate had been suspended or

The second defts. were paid a commission by the first defts., & received nothing from pltfs. The first defts. were unable to deliver the

G. brought an action for specific performance against B., who by her defence signed by counsel pleaded the contract with E. in terms that made the pleading a valid memorandum within the statute. G. added E. as a deft. to the action; & E., by a counterclaim, claimed specific performance of his agreement:—Held: counsel was the duly authorised agent of B. to sign the 108 i. Broker.]—A broker is an agent of a special kind. A broker who approaches a buyer or seller acts in the first instance as agent of the person who employs him, but directly the other party is aware of the fact that he is a broker, he becomes the agent of both parties, not with a plenary power to bind both parties as he chooses, but to communicate between them until they are ad idem.—*JACOBS LEVITATZ & BRAUDE v. 149 iii. — Statute of Alberta, 1906 (c. 27).]—It is merely the terms of the agency agreement, whether they may be meagre or detailed, that must be in writing under the above Act. The price & the other terms of the proposed sale may or may not be mentioned. If they are, in the circumstances, an essential part of the agency agreement they ought to be in writing. But it is a question of interpretation, even since the statute, whether the terms mentioned as those of the proposed sale are intended merely as a basis on which the agent may negotiate or are intended to bind the agent strictly to a sale on the named terms before he can claim his commission.—KING v. SCHON, [1918] 3 W. W. R. 892; 44 D. L. R. 111.—CAN.

149 iv. — Real Estate Commission Act, R.S.A., 1922 (c. 139), s. 2.]—The fact that a written instrument evidencing an agreement for the sale of land does not contain all the terms of the agreement does not prevent it being sufficient to satisfy the proviso to the above sect., if it is one which the ct. will order to be rectified to include the terms agreed on but omitted by mutual mistake, & which when so rectified will be enforceable by the parties thereto subject to such legal or equitable defences available to either of them as the agent who effected the agreement cannot be held accountable for.—HANTON v. STEDMAN, [1925] 1 W. W. R. 642.—CAN.

149 v. — Auctioneers & Commission Agents' Act, 1922, s. 23—Sufficiency of agency contract.]—So long as the relationship of principal & agent in respect of the transaction is evidenced in writing, the mischief aimed at by the above sect. has been duly met & the requirements of the sect. satisfied, & the other terms of the agency contract may be effectively made & effectively varied verbally.—CANNIFFE v. HOWIE, [1925] S. R. Q. 121; 19 Q. J. P. 57.—AUS.

149 vi. — — — — —.]—So long as the relation of principal & agent in respect of the transaction in question has been evidenced in writing, the requirements of the above sect. have been complied with, & any document signed by pltf. at any time before action brought, which evidences the essential fact, the existence of the relationship in respect of the transaction in question, is sufficient to comply with the Act. It is sufficient if the writing manifests a present intention of engaging or appointing the agent in respect of a transaction by any suitable words, whether contained in one document signed by deft., or in several documents, sufficiently interconnected by internal reference, either direct or inferential, one or more of which are signed by deft., manifesting such intention on his part.—*SKIPPER v. Dft. agreed, & on the same day pltf. introduced B. to deft. with whom a sale was arranged. Pltf. in his evidence stated that he was not a land agent, & for the preceding five years had had no transactions for the sale of land except the one in question:—Held: the arrangement between the parties was not one of a series nor the commencement of a series of transactions, but a solitary transaction, & pltf. was not a land agent within the above Act.—*COOKE v. 215a. Extent of doctrine.—An agency of necessity can arise in other cases than that of carriers by land or sea or the acceptor of a bill of exchange for the honour of the drawer. Extraordinary circumstances, such as war conditions, which make it impossible for a buyer of goods on behalf of a principal abroad either to despatch them or to communicate with him, would entitle the buyer to sell the goods as an agent of necessity. But in order to establish an agency of necessity the agent must prove that there was an actual & definite commercial necessity for the sale, & that the transaction was bond fide in the interest of the principal.

Where an agent in London bought skins in 1915 & 1916 to be forwarded to his principal in Roumania as the principal might direct, & in consequence of the occupation of Roumania by the Germans in 1916, the agent was unable to send the skins to his principal or communicate with him, & the agent thereupon sold the skins without authority.—Held: the agent had failed to establish agency of necessity because (a) the deterioration of the furs might have been prevented by putting them in cold storage at a comparatively small expense, & moreover, they had steadily increased in value, & (b) the agent had not acted bond fide in selling the skins.—PRAGER v. BLATSPIEL, STAMP & HEACOCK, LTD., [1924] 1 K. B. 566; 93 L. J. K. B. 410; 130 L. T. 672; 40 T. L. R. 287; 68 Sol. Jo. 460.

240 v. — Effect of ratification clause.—Where the whole object of a ratification clause is to carry on business in the principal's name, & the acts to be ratified, even when excessive, are specifically said to be acts done in the principal's name, the clause cannot be construed to change the whole nature of the power by making the attorney the universal agent of his principal.—*BANK OF TORONTO v. 247 i. General powers—Limited by recital.—A power of attorney enabling an agent to grant a lease is not revoked by the return of the landlord to the United Kingdom, even though the document containing the power of attorney states that it is granted owing to the grantor being about to depart from the United Kingdom.—*GRAHAM v. 277 iv. — — — — —.]—Power to borrow money & secure its repayment by mtge. is not to be inferred merely from general powers added to an enumeration of specific powers in a power of attorney, unless the exercise of such a power is strictly necessary to carry out the express purpose of the instrument or the acts specifically authorised thereby.—ANDREWS v. SINCLAIR, [1923] 2 D. L. R. 903; 2 W. W. R. 166.—CAN.

277 v. — — — — —.]—A bare power of attorney to make & indorse notes, cheques, etc., does not authorise the attorney to raise loans on his principal's credit for the principal himself or for the attorney's own accommodation or for a third party; nor is such authority conferred by a general power given the attorney to do all "other acts & things for the purpose of carrying on any business in my name." The power to borrow money must be conferred in express terms, & when this power is alleged to be based on a power of attorney, the document must be read strictly.—*BANK OF TORONTO v. "may have with the Collector of the Port of Montreal or relating to the Department of the Customs of the said Port . . . ratifying & confirming all that . . . said attorney & agent shall do. . . ." Cheques to the order of the collector of Customs were given to H. on his requisition for the payment of duties on goods imported by applt. co., these cheques being made by the latter for fixed amounts corresponding to the invoices. Afterwards, through fraudulent devices, H., having succeeded in passing entries for much smaller sums than the quantity of goods required, induced the Customs House cashier to take the cheques thus issued by applt. co. for a higher amount than the one apparently due, & either to apply the surplus in payment of duties owing by third parties or to reimburse him in cash.—Held: (1) it was within the scope of the power of attorney given to H. by applt. co. that he should receive, in cash from the custom officials, balances of cheques delivered by him to them, after deducting the duties payable in respect of entries made by H. on behalf of applt. co.; (2) it was not within the scope of the power of attorney that he should direct the application of balances of applt. co.'s cheques in payment of duties owing by H.'s other customers.—*CANADIAN PACIFIC RY. In pursuance of the oral instructions of the solr., & on production of the power of attorney & a certified copy of letters probate of the husband's will, the bank paid over the balance of the account to the husband's exors.—Held: the bank had acted rightly.—*ROSS v. 338a. ——— Authority to sign for business purposes.—Resps. had two accounts with applt. bank at Sydney in connection with a business which they there carried on. They informed the bank in writing that the two managers of their business had authority together to sign & indorse cheques, to draw & indorse promissory notes & bills of exchange, & to transact on their behalf all business connected with the accounts. Banks in Australia frequently issue to a customer, in exchange for a cheque in favour of the bank, a cheque, described as a "bank cheque," drawn by the bank on itself in favour of a person designated by him, or to bearer. In exchange for cheques drawn in favour of applt. bank by the managers, the bank issued to one of the managers bank cheques payable to a name designated by him; these cheques he fraudulently appropriated :—Held : applt. bank was not entitled to debit the bank cheques against resps. The manager had not implied authority to receive bank cheques, & the circumstances in which on certain previous occasions the manager had been allowed to give instructions to the application of the amount of cheques drawn, made the evidence fall far short of the strong case needed to show an ostensible authority prevailing over written instructions.—AUSTRALIAN BANK OF COMMERCE v. The above price to be clear of all commission charges." The agent, within the fourteen days, signed a contract of sale by which the property was sold to pltf. for £6,700, payable £1,000 deposit (£50 preliminary deposit, to be increased to £1,000 within one month), £2,250 within three months, & £3,450 within six months, possession to be given after the second payment £2,250 at the end of the three months. There was no provision for interest on the balance:—Held: the document signed by defts. was not an authority to the agent to sign a contract containing the above terms as to payment.—*BOYD v. 398 iii. — Contract containing penalty clause.—Held: the existence of the penalty clause, which was not covered by the agent's instructions, & was not separable from the remainder of the contract, justified the principal in repudiating the agent's action, & the contract must be set aside.—DUPREEZ v. Defts. were not prompt in providing funds, & pltf. complained of the delay which hampered him in buying, & in order to induce him to carry out the contract, defts.' agent offered an advance of 25 cents per bushel on the contract price for four cart loads of potatoes:—Held: the agent on the spot, looking after defts.' interests, had a general authority sufficiently broad to cover the making of the contract for the advanced price.—LEGACY v. DAVISON (1919), 52 N. S. R. 543.—CAN.

423 iv. — Express authority to let on weekly tenancy—Lease granted for long term.—Pltf. was the owner of premises let to a weekly tenant. When the tenant left she recommended deft. to pltf. as a tenant. Pltf. never saw deft., but pltf.'s husband arranged some form of lease with him, & thereafter collected the rent, which was paid monthly, on behalf of pltf. & with her authority. In an action of ejectment deft. alleged that pltf.'s husband had given him a lease for four years from Dec. 1913, & that he was a tenant from year to year. Pltf. denied any knowledge of a lease for a term, or that she had given authority to her husband to make such a lease:—Held: the fact that pltf.'s husband had collected her rent was no evidence that he had authority to make a lease for four years on her behalf.—VOGE v. KERR (1919), 19 N. S. W. L. R. 34; 36 N. S. W. W. N. 19.—AUS.

I will take £2,500 for the freehold, & stock & furniture at valuation, or will lease for a term of five years, rent £5 per week. £1,000 walk in, walk out." The agent submitted the property to pltf., who elected to take a lease. The agent drew up an agreement to leave the property upon the terms mentioned by deft., & signed it on deft.'s behalf:—Held: deft.'s letter did not authorize the agent to bind him by a concluded contract, but merely amounted to an authority to find a purchaser.*—*QUICK v. 485a. Improper sale.—Pltf. was the owner of the A. tapestry & the L. tapestry, & he gave to P., a dealer in antiques, a limited authority to obtain & submit offers from possible purchasers. P. falsely represented to pltf. that he could obtain £525 for the A. tapestry, & pltf. allowed him to take it away for delivery to a purchaser, who in fact did not exist. P. then sold the A. tapestry to deft. for £250. Subsequently P., who never had authority to sell the L. tapestry, stole it from pltf. & sold it to deft. In an action for conversion deft. contended that P. had been in possession of the tapestries as a mercantile agent within the Act of 1889, & that as he had bought them from P. in good faith he had acquired the property in them. He also contended that pltf. had held out P. as a person with authority to sell & was estopped from saying that P. had no such authority in fact :—Held : (1) although P.'s authority was limited, & although he was not acting for any principal other than pltf., yet these facts did not prevent him from being a mercantile agent & in the circumstances he was a mercantile agent & in possession of the A. tapestry with the consent of pltf., & as to that tapestry the defence under the Act of 1889 was established; (2) as to the L. tapestry, as P. was never in possession of it with pltf.'s consent, the defence under the Act failed, & as pltf. had never represented to deft. that P. had authority to sell it, there was no estoppel, & pltf. was entitled to recover the value of the L. tapestry alone.—*LOWTHER v. 495a. — Agent obtaining possession by trick—Authority to sell—At specified price.]—The owner of a motor car delivered it to a mercantile agent for sale. The owner stipulated & the agent agreed that the car should not be sold at less than a specified price without the owner's permission. The agent intended from the beginning to sell the car immediately for the best price he could get & to use the proceeds for his own purposes. On the day on which he got the car he sold it for less than the specified price to a purchaser who bought it in good faith & without notice of the agent's fraud. The agent misappropriated the proceeds. The car was subsequently purchased by deft. In an action of detinue by the owner of the car against deft. :—Held : (1) deft. acquired a good title by virtue of 1889 Act, s. 2; (2) the mercantile agent had not rendered himself liable to be convicted of larceny by a trick, inasmuch as he was authorised by pltf. to pass the property in the car to a purchaser; (3) as pltf. in fact consented to the mercantile agent having possession of the car, it was immaterial whether the latter committed larceny by a trick.—FOLKES v. KING, [1923] 1 K. B. 282; 92 L. J. K. B. 125; 128 L. T. 405; 39 T. L. R. 77; 67 Sol. Jo. 227; 28 Com. Cas. 110; 86 J. P. Jo. 552, C. A.

495b. To specified person—Sale to third party.]—Pltf., desiring to sell his motor car for £210, & being informed by N. that he had a friend H., who would probably buy it for that price, allowed N. to have possession of the car for the sole purpose of showing it & endeavouring to sell it to H. There was no such person as H., & N. represented that there was with the intention of obtaining the car for his own benefit. N. afterwards through an intermediary sold the car to defts. for £110. Before N. got possession of the car he had been convicted of theft & other offences, but that was not known to any of the parties. While N. was in possession of the car he obtained an appointment as car salesman to a firm of motor engineers. In an action by pltf. against defts. for the return of the car or its value & damages for its detention :—Held : (1) N. had obtained the car from pltf. by larceny by a trick, pltf. never having given any real consent to his having or passing the property therein, & pltf. should succeed in the action unless defts. had some valid defence thereto; (2) defts. could not rely upon the defence that under 1889 Act, s. 2 (1), the sale to them was as valid as if the seller had been expressly authorised by pltf. to make the same, inasmuch as N. was not a "mercantile agent," & if he was, the sale by him was not a sale in the ordinary course of his business as a mercantile agent, within that sub-section; & further, because defts. had failed to

sp. Act of 1889—"When acting in ordinary course of business" defined.]—The expression "when acting in the ordinary course of business of a mercantile agent," means when acting st. Act of 1889—Necessity for proof of mala fides of purchaser.—Where an owner of goods, who has placed them with a mercantile agent, sues an alleged purchaser thereof from the agent for wrongful conversion, & deft. relies on [the above Act] the actual payment of money by deft. to the agent will not destroy the fact of mala fides, but the fact that the transaction is found not to have been an ordinary sale, i.e. a sale to one desirous of either using the goods or disposing of them to advantage, can of itself have a bearing only on the question of good faith, & proof of the dishonesty of the agent is not sufficient: it must be shown that deft. acted in bad faith, & the evidence should be such as to prove to the hilt the mala fides of the alleged sale.—ACME STEEL GOODS CO. OF CANADA, LTD. v. WALSH CONSTRUCTION CO., LTD., [1922] 1 W. W. R. 689; 63 D. L. R. 529; 30 B. C. R. 539.—CAN.

573i. Agent—Authority to buy at discretion—Secret limitations.—If a person desiring to buy grain arms his agent with contract forms for the purpose & sends him out to have these forms executed by vendors & with authority to sign them on his behalf subject to the verbal condition that the agent must stipulate that the contracts are not to come into effect until his principal has approved of the samples, this is a holding out that the agent has authority to make the contracts, & the principal is bound thereby though no such stipulation is made therein & no samples approved by the principal, if the vendors have no notice of such limitation of the agent's authority.—*REED & KEAST v. 608a. Tenant of public-house—Not being licensee—Holding out.—Deft. was the licensee of a public-house at which meals were served. In 1917, an agreement was entered into between deft. & the general manager of the owners & a third person, whereby the latter became the tenant of the licensed premises & deft. was released from all obligations under the tenancy. The licence, however, was not transferred, & deft.'s name remained painted up over the doorway. During the continuance of the new tenancy liquor as well as food was sold on the premises. Pltfs., during this period, supplied fish, fruit & vegetables to the tenant. The accounts were not fully met, & pltfs., on discovering that deft. was the licensee, which discovery was made after the goods had been supplied, sought to make him liable for the price on the ground that the tenant was either the agent of deft. by operation of law, or that deft. was estopped from denying such agency:—Held: where two people agreed that one should illegally & improperly occupy a position which could only be lawfully occupied by the other, that did not necessarily make the person occupying the position the agent for all purposes of the person who ought to be occupying it; the tenant was not in fact deft.'s agent; & as between himself & pltfs., deft. was not estopped from setting up the true state of affairs, because, whatever misrepresentations were made, they did not reach pltfs. nor cause them to act to their detriment.—*MACFISHERIES, LTD. v. At the time the goods were supplied, pltf. did not know that C. was a member of a syndicate or was acting for others:—Held: defts. other than C. were not liable to pltf.—*MCLAUGHLIN v. Pltf. sued deft. for the price, alleging that under the King's Regulations deft. was liable or that he was liable as principal for the acts of the mess secretary:—Held: the Regulations did not create any liability between the commanding officer & tradesmen, & as deft. neither gave nor authorised the orders, & pltf. did not give deft. credit, the action failed.—LASCELLES v. W. was authorised to receive payment in cash for coal supplied by pltfs. to their customers. Pltfs. had notified their customers, including defts., that all cheques must be made payable to pltfs.' order, & not to that of W. Defts. nevertheless paid for coal supplied to them by pltfs. by cheques made payable to W. or order. All these cheques were duly honoured on presentation. W. paid seven of defts.' cheques into his own private account & embezzled the proceeds:—Held: as W. was authorised by pltfs. to receive payment in cash for coal supplied, & defts. had paid W. by cheques payable to his order, & the cheques were duly honoured, defts. were discharged, notwithstanding that pltfs. had notified them that all cheques must be made payable to pltfs.' order.—BRADFORD & SONS v. & told him to make an offer through D.; that D. procured from pltf. a written offer to purchase at $5,000, paying part only in cash, & that offer was refused by L.; that D. obtained from pltf. a second offer to pay all cash, & this L. also refused:—Held: D. had authority to receive an offer, & as the making of a deposit was a part of that offer, D. was not going beyond his authority in receiving it.—SILVERMAN v. PART V. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 15.

804 i. Agent—Implied authority from circumstances—Husband authorised to purchase stock for wife.—The fact that a husband was authorised to act, & has acted as his wife's agent in the purchase of stock through brokers does not in itself justify the brokers in assuming that he is her agent to direct a sale of it; & even assuming that the rules of the stock exchange subject to which the order to purchase was placed confer on the husband authority to direct such sale, the brokers' responsibility to the wife for the proceeds of the sale is not discharged by payment to the husband unless they show that he had authority, either express or implied, to receive the money.—AIKMAN v. BURDICK BROTHERS, [1923] 4 D. L. R. 852; 3 W. W. R. 785; varying, [1923] 1 D. L. R. 1165; 31 B. C. R. 478.—CAN.

808 v. ——— Break in market.—Instructions by an owner of wheat to his agent to "sell" without more means "sell as soon as possible," unless there is something in the circumstances or the custom of a particular trade known to both parties to give the words a different meaning. Where instructions to sell, without stipulating any price, were given after the close of the market on May 3:—Held: the agent was justified in selling without further instructions at the opening of the market on May 4, though the market had broken by reason of the Grain Exchange having withdrawn option trading & the possibility of the Govt. fixing the price.—GEARHART v. QUAKER OATS CO., [1919] 3 W. W. R. 888.—CAN.

809 ii a. ——— Deft. wired to S., a land agent: "Bed-rock, £13,250 net, £400 down, stock & furniture at valuation." S. replied, "Your wire says £400 down; suppose you mean £4,000, wire us giving authority to sell if we can get your net price." Deft. then wired, "Four thousand down. Sell if you can get my net price." S. replied, "Have sold in accordance with your wire, freehold for £13,750, stock & furniture at valuation, showing you £13,250 net, £4,000 to be paid down, balance to be arranged on mtge. by you. Possession as soon as license granted, not later than Aug. 20, £500 deposit paid."—Held: S. had no authority to sell on the terms on which he did sell.—PRINGLE v. MCKAY, [1922] N. Z. L. R.

815 iii b. ——— A land agent, whom pltf. had informed of his willingness to sell a property for £900, obtained an offer of £825

& telegraphed it to pltf., but through a mistake in transmission the message as delivered to pltf. mentioned £925 as the amount of offer. Pltf. telegraphed his acceptance without naming an amount. The offer having been withdrawn, the agent agreed to sell the property to deft. for £825, & let him into possession. On the tender of the formal contract to pltf. for execution a month later he learned about the mistake in the telegram for the first time & refused to complete:—Held: the specific authority originally given to the agent did not authorise the sale of pltf.'s property for less than £900, & no land agent as such is held out as having a general authority on behalf of his client to sell on any terms or at any price.—SHORTAL v. BUCHANAN, [1920] N. Z. L. R. 103.—N.Z.

v. ——— Pltfs., an incorporated co., owning lots of land, appointed C. their general manager to supervise the sale of the lots. In the agreement between pltfs. & C. it was provided that he had no authority to make any representation as to pltfs.' properties other than those contained in their printed matter, & that he should have authority to accept offers for the purchase of lots according to pltfs.' price-list. Pltfs. employed G. to sell their lots. G., in Mar. 1914, telephoned to deft. from pltfs.' office & induced deft. to buy two of the lots, upon the express agreement that pltfs. would resell the lots not later than Aug. 1914, at a profit of $100 on each lot; G. informed deft. that he was authorised by C. to make this arrangement. C. was present when G. was telephoning, & heard what G. said; C. told G. that he should not have said that pltfs. would resell the lots; but, according to the testimony of G., C. himself was not called as a witness, C. ratified the representation made in his name & ostensibly by his authority:—Held: C., as general manager, had ostensible authority to make or ratify the collateral agreement, & any secret restriction of his authority would not affect deft., who relied upon his being the general manager.—CANADIAN GENERAL SECURITIES CO., LTD. v. GEORGE (1918), 42 O. L. R. 560; 13 O. W. N. 355; 14 O. W. N. 71; 43 D. L. R. 20.—CAN.

817 ii. ——— Implied authority. A broker who had purchased corn on margin for a customer:—Held: justified in selling on the customer failing to forward margin money when a slump occurred in the market-price, a general condition of the broker transacting such business being that he reserved the right to close transactions without further notice when margins were unsatisfactory, which condition the ct. inferred must have been known to the customer who had been for some time a "room trader" & dealer on a larger scale in the broker's office.—MALOOK v. BICKELL, [1920] 1 W. W. R. 407; 50 D. L. R. 590; 17 O. W. N. 294; 59 S. C. R. 429.—CAN.

817 iii. ——— Authority to find purchaser.—On Jan. 20, 1920, deft. handed to his brokers a letter in these terms: "I authorise you to procure a buyer of the above premises for Rs. 45,000 & on your sending same, I shall pay you as remuneration at 1 per cent. on the purchase-money. The same will be paid at the registration of the conveyance, otherwise not." The offer contained in the letter was accepted by pltf. & thereupon the fact of such acceptance was communicated on the same day to deft.:—Held: the offer contained in the letter amounted only to an offer to be put into touch with intending buyers of the premises & it was in no sense an authority to the brokers to sell deft.'s property or an offer on the part of the vendor to sell the premises to whoever might be brought in touch with the vendor by the brokers.—PURNA CHANDRA DUTT v. INDRA CHANDRA ROY (1921), 1 L. R. 49 Calc. 389.—IND.

821 i. ——— General authority—Sale in own name.—Held: position of pltfs. being that of brokers, in selling in their own name they acted beyond the scope of their authority.—PATERSON v. MCCALLUM, [1921] N. Z. L. R. 869.—N.Z.

833 xiii a. ——— Instructions to procure purchaser at specified sum.—In negotiations for the sale of property a notification by a principal to his agent that he will accept a purchaser at a specified sum will not authorise the agent to conclude a contract.—CARNEY v. FAIR (1920), 54 I. L. T. 61.—IR.

sk. Solicitor—Authority to receive tenders—Tenders to be sent either to agent or principal.—Exors. gave instructions to solrs. to advertise for tenders for a property & they told the solrs. to insert in the advertisement a notice to the effect that tenders might be sent either to the solrs. or to either of the exors.; this latter the solrs. did not do. A tender was received by the solrs. & forwarded by them to the exors. & they wrote acknowledging the receipt thereof. Some days later the tenant of the property forwarded a tender to one of the exors., who did not communicate with his co-exor. or the solrs. about it. The solrs., having heard no more from the exors. entered into a contract to sell the property to the person who 834a. ———.]—A general authority to an agent to find a purchaser of a house does not authorise the agent to sign a contract binding on the vendor. There must, to justify such a signing, be a special & express authority to sign.—LEWCOCK v. BROMLEY (1920), 127 L. T. 116; 37 T. L. R. 48; 65 Sol. Jo. 75.

834b. ———.]—The mere employment of an estate agent by an owner to dispose of a house confers no authority to make a contract. The agent is solely employed to find some one to negotiate with the owner. But if the agent is definitely instructed to sell at a certain price, those instructions involve authority to make a binding contract & to sign an agreement.

But the authority is limited to signing an open contract & does not authorise the agent to sign a contract with special conditions, e.g. as to title with which it is no part of an estate agent's duty to deal.—KEEN v. MEAR, [1920] 2 Ch. 574; 89 L. J. Ch. 513; 124 L. T. 19.

836b. ———.]—Authority alleged to be limited to state price.—Action for specific performance of a contract alleged to have been entered into by letters between pltfs. & H. & R., estate agents, whom pltfs. alleged were agents for the first deft. for the sale to pltfs. of freehold premises. The defence was that the agents had a limited authority to state a price only. The premises had been offered for sale by auction by order of the mtgees. under particulars & conditions of sale referred to in the correspondence on Jan. 18. H. & R. inclosed plan & auction particulars to pltfs. stating in their letter that their client would be willing to sell the freehold at £550. On Jan. 27, pltfs. offered £400. On the 28th H. & R. submitted that offer to the first deft., & asked for her instructions. On Feb. 8, the first deft.'s husband communicated with H. & R. over the telephone, & on Feb. 10, they wrote to pltfs. stating that their client would not accept £400, & that "we are now authorised to close with you if you will increase your offer to £450." Pltfs., on Feb. 14, wrote to H. & R. referring to the letter of Feb. 10, & stating "we are prepared to accept your offer of this property agreeing to the price of £450. Kindly forward the contract in due course." On Feb. 17, H. & R. wrote informing the first deft. that, as instructed by her husband, they had offered the property to pltfs. for £450, & that pltfs. had agreed to buy. The second deft. was prepared to purchase the property from the mtgees. at a price more than £450:—Held: the agents had authority to conclude the contract, & pltfs. were entitled to judgment for specific performance of it.—*ALLEN & CO., LTD. v. sanitary authority of W., it was provided that whenever the council was in vacation the mayor & the chairmen of the respective committees of the council might give such instructions as were requisite with respect to any matter of an urgent nature, provided that all such acts were in due course reported to the council. The council of W. held no meeting between July 26, 1917, & Oct. 18, 1917—the summer vacation, & the public health committee of the council did not sit between July 17, 1917, & Oct. 9, 1917. On July 17, 1917, the public health committee passed a resolution appointing its chairman, & in his absence the acting vice-chairman, to deal with all urgent matters on behalf of the committee during the summer vacation. This resolution was reported to the council & approved by them on July 26, 1917. About the middle of Sept. 1917, the medical officer of health, being satisfied that a nuisance existed upon certain premises in the district of the council & city of W., caused a written notice of the fact of its existence to be served on the owner of the premises under Public Health London Act, 1891 (c. 76), s. 3. As the nuisance was not abated, the matter was reported by the medical officer to the chairman of the public health committee, & the latter, considering that the matter was urgent, & acting under the authority conferred upon him by the resolution of the public health committee, which had been confirmed by the council, as before stated, directed that a notice should be served upon the owner of the premises requiring him to abate the nuisance in accordance with the provisions of sect. 4 of the Act. This notice, which was issued in due form, was served upon the owner on Sept. 25, 1917. This action of the chairman was reported to the public health committee at their first meeting after the summer vacation, on Oct. 9, 1917, & approved by them, & the matter was later on, on Oct. 18, 1917, reported to & approved by the council. As the nuisance still continued, proceedings were taken against the owner by the sanitary inspector, & on Dec. 5, 1917, an order was made for its abatement by the magistrate who heard the complaint. The owner thereupon applied for & was granted a rule nisi for certiorari to quash the order of the magistrate on the ground that the same was made without jurisdiction, the notice of Sept. 25, 1917, not having been given by the authority or direction of the council or of the public health committee, or after consideration by them in pursuance of Public Health London Act, 1891 (c. 76), s. 4 (1):—Held: as the act of the duly authorised agent of the council, namely, the chairman of the public health committee, appointed to act in urgent matters during the vacation under the bye-law & in pursuance of the resolution of the committee subsequently ratified by the council, was reported to & approved & ratified by the council prior to the institution of proceedings against the owner of the premises, the ratification related back to the time of the doing of the act in question, namely, the serving of the notice of Sept. 25, 1917, & the magistrate had jurisdiction to make the order of Dec. 5, 1917.—*R. v. 1184 v. ———.]—Goods not in accordance with order.]—Defts. gave to pltf. a written order to ship from England on account of debts, one thousand two-gallon & two hundred & fifty three-gallon stoneware jars. Pltf. ordered jars from a manufacturer in England to be shipped in performance of this order. Two lots were shipped & delivered to debts, who paid for them. Delivery of the last lot, which comprised thirty-nine three-gallon & three hundred & forty-two two-gallon jars, was refused by debts on the ground that there were twenty-three more of the three-gallon jars & twenty-five less of the two-gallon jars than had been ordered, & also that the mouths of a large number of the jars were not of the specified size:—Held: pltf. was under a duty to purchase goods for debts, of the description ordered, & his failure to do so amounted to a breach of duty.—BULTERS v. ROOPE, [1922] N. Z. L. R. 549.—N.Z.

1188 ii. ———.]—Wheat held by debts, for pltf. was on pltf.'s order shipped by debts, from M. to A. Pltf. telegraphed instructing debts to sell at once. Defts. wrote saying that until the cars arrived at A. they were unable to sell. They at once, however, tried to sell & after ten days did so:—Held: they were justified in selling at the price then obtainable & without receiving further instructions.—*JACKSON v. 1243a. — Extent of liability.]—Pltf. employed deft., a chartered accountant, to investigate the affairs of a co. in which he was interest-d. In a letter of instructions to deft. pltf. inserted libellous statements concerning two officials of the co. Deft. handed the letter to his partner, who negligently left it at the co.'s office. The manager found it, read it, & communicated its contents to the two persons defamed, each of whom sued pltf. for libel & obtained judgment against him for damages & costs. Pltf. then sought to recover from deft. the amount which he had paid for damages & costs in the libel actions as damages for breach of an implied duty to keep secret the letter of instructions:—Held: pltf.'s liability for damages in the libel actions did not result from deft.'s breach of duty, & deft. was liable for nominal damages only.—*WELD-BLUNDELL v. 1243b. — ———.]—Accountants, employed to prepare balance-sheets from the books of a firm, stated the amount of "cash at the bank" as it appeared in the books, without examining the bank pass-book, or obtaining any statement in reference thereto from the bank, or informing the firm that they had not done so. The entries in the books were falsely made by a fraudulent clerk, whose defalcations were not discovered, as they would have been if the entries in the books had been checked by reference to the pass-book:—Held: (1) the accountants were negligent; (2) they were liable in damages for the amount of the defalcations of each year which would have been discovered if the proper steps had been taken as to the pass-book.—*FOX & SON v. Their duty to their principal does not cease when they have procured an offer to purchase which he accepts subject to contract. 1214 iv. — Negligent misrepresentation.]—An agent who in breach of his duty to his principal induces him by negligent misrepresentation to enter into a contract is liable to make good to his principal the loss arising therefrom.

In such a case the principal may recover either in tort or in contract, & it is no answer to his claim that he is also entitled to recover from the other party to the contract induced by his agent.—YOUNG v. TASSELL, [1918] N. Z. L. R. 924.—N.Z.

1214 v. ———.]—The duty of a paid agent to his principal is to exercise care, skill, & honesty, & if he takes on himself to convey information which he considers it material that his principal should know, & which he recommends & intends his principal to adopt, it is his duty to use reasonable care & skill in ensuring the accuracy of that information.—*BROWN v. 1245 iv. — ———.]—A law-agent, to whom a client entrusted money for investment on heritable security to yield 5 per cent., invested £1,000 of the amount in 1903 on a heritable bond which bore to be secured over tenement property, & £200 on a postponed bond over other subjects. These properties both belonged to another client of the agent's firm, who, in 1905, died insolvent, & heavily indebted to the firm. He had granted an ex facie absolute disposition of the tenement property in favour of the firm prior in date to the bond for £1,000, which loan was accordingly not validly secured; & the postponed bond for £200 was worthless, as the prior bond exhausted the value of the security subjects. None of these facts were communicated to the lender:—Held: while the agents were not guilty of negligence in investing the money as they did in 1903, in view of the fact that they were called upon to obtain a 5 per cent. investment, they were guilty of negligence upon the death of the borrower in 1905, in respect that, a conflict of interest having then arisen between them & the lender in connection with the £1,000 bond, they failed to inform their client of the position, failed to realise her investments, & failed to advise her to seek independent legal advice.—*WERNHAM v. 1260 i. Factor.]—Where advances are made by a factor on the security of a world commodity, such as grain, consigned to him for sale, it is his duty to deal with the goods in such a way as to guard, not only himself, but the principal also, against loss. There is implied in every such transaction a right on the part of the factor to realise on his security whenever the exigency of the case demands it.—UNITED GRAIN GROWERS, LTD. v. MABEY, [1925] 1 D. L. R. 301; [1925] 1 W. W. R. 19.—CAN.

1262 ii. — Extent of duties.]—If a local agent is entrusted by an absent owner with looking after & renting a furnished house, then, although he is not an insurer of the safety of the property, he must use reasonable care & diligence in its protection & preservation, & if he fails to do so he will be liable for the resulting loss. If furniture disappears or is damaged beyond reasonable wear & tear, he is prima facie liable to account for it. Evidence sufficient to excuse him from liability would in some instances be quite light, in others more burdensome, depending on such questions as the checking over or not of the articles of the furniture, the character of the tenants & the constituents of the tenant's family, the value & nature of the missing articles, etc.

When the owner claims damages against the agent for lost or damaged articles the question of liability may be directly involved in regard to each article, & that liability is a question for the judge, & in such case the value of any article or the damage done to it can be most conveniently determined by the judge when deciding the question of liability, rather than by a referee.—CARLILE v. NORTHERN TRUSTS CO., [1924] 2 W. W. R. 961.—CAN.

1262 iii. — ———.]—A house agent, employed to look after the renting of a furnished house, must keep a proper inventory of the furniture & check it over carefully with each incoming & outgoing tenant, & he must exercise care in seeing that tenants to whom he rents the house are the proper sort of persons to occupy it; but, in the absence of a special contract, the agent is not a guarantor of the rent, or bound to pay the taxes, or to notify the owner so as to prevent a sale of the house for non-payment thereof.—*HYLAND v. 1426a. Proceeds of sale of goods—Goods consigned by commission agents for principal—Right of agent to set off claims against consignors.—In 1917 pltf. & F., merchants at Odessa in the Russian Ukraine, consigned large quantities of pigs' bristles to a Russian bank at Odessa, as commission agents, to send the goods to England for sale & remit the proceeds to the consignors. The bank, as principals, sent the goods to defts., as their agents, who knew that pltf. & F. were the original consignors. Afterwards the revolution broke out in Russia, & in Dec. 1917, all private banks in Russia were abolished by decree of the Govt., & in 1918 their assets & liabilities were taken over by the People's Bank of the Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic. In 1920 the People's Bank was by further decree abolished & its assets & liabilities were transferred to the Central Budget & Accounts Administration of the Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic. One result of this legislation was that the head office of the Odessa bank in Petrograd was raided & its shares were confiscated, but the Odessa bank was allowed to carry on its business as usual until 1920, when it was closed by a local soviet. This permission was the result of the establishment of an independent republican Govt. over the Ukraine—the Ukrainian Soviet Govt., over which the Russian Soviet Govt. claimed neither a de facto nor de jure jurisdiction, & which was also recognised by foreign powers as an independent Govt. Later on a full federation was entered into between the Ukraine Republic & the Russian Soviet Republic & recognised as a de facto & recently, as a de jure Govt. by the Govt. of this country. During transit of the goods to England some of the goods respectively consigned by pltf. & F. became inextricably mixed, with the result that F. assigned all his rights in his consignment to pltf., & notice of the assignment was given to defts. Before the closing of the bank at Odessa the bank ceded all their rights in the bristles consigned to them to pltf. & F. The bristles consigned to defts. were sold by them in 1920, & pltf. demanded payment of the amount of the proceeds, less the amount of defts. commission, but defts. refused payment, alleging (inter alia) that the goods belonged to the bank at Odessa & that defts. were entitled to set off against pltf.'s claim a debt due to them from the People's Bank in Russia & the Russian Soviet Govt., & pltf. in 1923 brought this action :—Held : (1) assuming that the bank at Odessa was an effective bank up to the time when the bank was closed, the bank's instructions to defts., followed by the transfer of the bank's rights to pltf. & F. & the transfer of F.'s rights to pltf., made it clear that the bank's title to the bristles had gone; (2) assuming that the bank was non-existent & that some other person or persons had given the instructions to sell, the sale by defts. was without the authority of the bank, & in that case the bank's title had gone. In either case pltf. as a disclosed or undisclosed principal was entitled to the proceeds, less defts.' commission with interest from the date of the demand.—*DORF v. The broker, as he was entitled to do by the terms of his agency, closed the account by selling the cotton which he had bought for applt. He sold (inter alia) two lots of foreign cotton to different jobbers at the respective market prices of the day & immediately bought back from the same jobbers at the same prices equivalent amounts of cotton of the same description. The commission obtained by deft. from the purchaser, who had to pay cash to pltf., was for raising loans to enable her to pay the seller:—Held: as the commission obtained from the purchaser by deft. was not a commission on the price, but in respect of an entirely different transaction, his conduct was perfectly honest, & he had not forfeited his right to be paid a commission by pltf.—*STANTON v. Deft. found a purchaser & a contract of sale was signed under which pltf. gave the purchaser certain provisional rights over the unsold portion. Afterwards pltf. endeavoured to obtain from the purchaser a modification of the contract with regard to the rights over the unsold portion, & deft. did considerable work in trying to induce the purchaser to vary the contract in this respect. 1751a. —.]—Pltfs., who were shipbrokers, negotiated on behalf of defts., the owners of a steamship, a charterparty of the steamship which was to be in force from Oct. 1920 for five years, & which contained a clause providing that the charterers should have the option of purchasing the steamship at any time between the signing of the charter & the completion of the charter period for £125,000. On the day when the charterparty was signed defts. signed & gave to pltfs. a commission note in these terms: "We hereby agree to pay you . . . 5 per cent. brokerage on hire. . . . Should the option of purchase contained in the charter be availed of, the brokerage on purchase to be 3½ per cent. . . ." The charterparty was acted upon until June, 1921, when defts. sold the steamship to the charterers for £65,000. Pltfs. brought an action against defts., claiming (inter alia) 3½ per cent. commission on £65,000, the price paid by the charterers for the steamship, &, in the alternative, a quantum meruit for their alleged services in effecting the same:—Held: (1) the former of these claims failed, the option of purchase mentioned in the commission note never having been exercised, & the sale effected being a sale at a different price from that upon which alone the brokerage of 3½ per cent. was to become payable; (2) the latter

The shareholders had passed a resolution authorising a sale at a fixed minimum price upon terms agreeable to the directors, & a letter from the co.'s managing director to pltfs. offered $35,000 commission should pltfs. make a sale at a certain named price, which price would net the co. such minimum price. 1780 ix. — Agreement to pay commission on work done.—Pltf., who was employed by deft. to sell a station property & to find a lease for another, found A., who was ready & willing to purchase the one & to lease the other, & with him deft. entered into a contract. Subsequently the contract having fallen through, pltf. was employed by deft. to raise money for him which it was hoped would enable the purchase & lease by A. to be carried through, & a written agreement was entered into between pltf. & deft., by which it was provided that in the event of the completion of the sale & lease deft. should pay to pltf. a certain sum "representing commission due to" pltf. "on these transactions." The sale & leasing were never completed. In an action to recover the sum mentioned in the agreement, the trial judge found that when the agreement was entered into pltf. had a right to recover a reasonable sum for commission in respect of the work he had then done, & that the contract did not deprive him of that right:—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover a sum made up of 1 per cent. of the purchase-money & 5 per cent. of a year's rent.—*FRY v. No hire was in fact earned under the charterparty:—Held: (1) the charterers, as trustees for the brokers, could enforce the clause against the shipowners; (2) a custom by which commission was payable only if hire was earned under the charterparty could not be set up by the shipowners as an answer to the brokers' claim, inasmuch as it was inconsistent with the terms of the clause.—AFFRÉTEURS RÉUNIS SOCIÉTÉ ANONYME v. Deft. & the purchaser came to an agreement for sale on crop payments at $60 an acre, & signed an agreement prepared by pltf., which was crude & improvident but one from which the rights of the parties could be defined. Subsequently a more elaborate agreement was drawn by deft.'s solr., which because of certain onerous additions therein for the protection of deft. the purchaser refused to sign, & the transaction was broken off:—Held: there was in effect a sale of which pltf. was the causa causans, & he was entitled to payment for his services, on a quantum meruit basis.—*BANNERMAN v. From July 10, 1916, onwards the agent regularly sold goods of that class on behalf of another firm, & he also bought & sold such goods on his own account:—Held: the agent was not entitled to an accounting for the period subsequent to July 10, 1916, as he was then in material breach of his contract, but he was entitled to an accounting for the period prior to that date during which he had duly obtempered the contract.—GRAHAM & Co. v. The goods arrived on Oct. 20, & on Oct. 22 defts. cleared & trucked the goods to Johannesburg & sent pltf. a consignment note which he received on Oct. 26. Immediately on receipt of the note pltf. telegraphed to defts. instructing them to keep the goods for sale in Durban. Def'ts. on the instructions of pltf. had the trucks stopped & returned to Durban. Def'ts. in order to obtain delivery of the goods paid the railway charges & upon pltf.'s refusal to reimburse them declined to hand the goods over to pltf.:—Held: def'ts. in railing the goods without awaiting special instructions had acted in accordance with their ordinary duty as forwarding agents, & in the absence of special instructions to the contrary defts. were justified in so railing the goods.—PATEL v. - 1947a. —.]—By a contract in writing deft. appointed pltf. to be sole agents for the United Kingdom, with certain exceptions, for a period of three years. Pltf. were to be paid a commission at the rate of 22 per cent. on all goods sold throughout the United Kingdom, with the exceptions above referred to, whether the goods were sold through the instrumentality of pltf. or not, & deft. agreed with pltf. that he would keep them fully supplied with samples, & would execute all orders with due diligence, & would not, directly or indirectly, canvass orders or in any manner approach or solicit any of the customers, or potential customers, of pltf. in respect of the sales of his goods. Before the expiry of the three years deft. broke these undertakings & then wrote to pltf. cancelling the agreement :—Held : as it was a necessary implication from the terms of the contract that pltf. would not decline reasonably to introduce customers, the agreement was not void for lack of mutuality, & although the mere appointment of an agent on commission for a term of years does not carry with it the necessary implication that the business shall be carried on for that term, yet, as deft. had undertaken certain obligations to facilitate the earning of the commission & had broken his undertakings, he could not, by a purported cancellation of the contract, limit his liability for damages to the period prior to such purported cancellation.—*WARREN & Co. v. - 1951a. —.]—By an agreement made between pltf. & a limited co., which carried on business in Lancashire, in consideration of pltf. subscribing for £1,000 in shares of the co., & of introducing to the co. certain new classes of goods to be manufactured by them, the co. appointed him their sole agent in the United Kingdom, India. & the Colonies for the sale of those goods for the term of seven years, if the agent should so long live, & thereafter until the agreement should be determined by six months' notice on either side. The agent was to use his best endeavours to obtain orders for the co.'s goods at prices to be from time to time agreed upon, & all orders obtained by the agent were at once to be communicated to the co., who upon approving or rejecting the same were to inform the agent thereof & who were to carry out such orders as were accepted without undue delay; & the agent was not definitely to accept orders for the co., but only subject to confirmation & acceptance by the co., such confirmation or acceptance not to be unreasonably withheld. The co. were to pay the agent a commission upon the invoiced prices of all goods delivered by the co., & duly paid for by the respective purchasers. A few months afterwards the co. required fresh capital, & they applied to pltf. to assist them in finding it, telling him that otherwise they would have to close down. Pltf. tried to do so, but failed. The co. then asked pltf. to give up the agency for the Manchester district, telling him that he would have to stand down so far as that district was concerned, in which case they thought that they could find the necessary capital, but he refused. The co. thereupon being insolvent passed resolutions for voluntary winding up & ceased to do business through pltf. & eventually sold their business. In an action to recover damages for breach of the agreement to employ pltf. as their agent for the seven years :—Held : the agreement was to employ pltf. as agent for the seven years & a term could not be implied to the effect that the co. could terminate the agency at any time by ceasing to carry on their business; & the circumstances coupled with the voluntary winding up showed a repudiation by the co. of the agreement, & they were therefore liable in damages for the breach.—*REIGATE v. 1967 ii. ———.]—In a five years' agreement between a selling agent & a firm of merchants it was provided that, if at the end of the first three years the agent had not realised a certain turnover, the merchants should be entitled to terminate the agreement. The agreement further provided that the merchants undertook to supply goods to the agent, who was bound to buy exclusively from them. At the end of the three years the value of the goods sold & delivered by the agent failed to reach the stipulated turnover, & the merchants terminated the agreement. The value of the sales effected by the agent had in fact materially exceeded the stipulated figure, but the value of the goods actually delivered by him fell short of it, owing to the failure of the merchants to supply him with the full amount of goods ordered by him. The merchants, who were not manufacturers, were dependent on delivery to themselves by the manufacturers, & owing to war conditions, they were themselves unable to obtain the full supplies they required. They had, however, obtained sufficient goods to have implemented the agent's orders, but they preferred to distribute these goods ratably among all their agents & customers, the agent in question receiving his full share. In an action by the agent against the merchants concluding for damages for unjustifiable termination of the agreement:—Held: debts were not entitled to terminate the agreement.—DOWLING v. 1978 iii. ———.]—Pltf. & debts., an English business house, entered into an agreement by correspondence by which pltf. was to be the selling agent of debts.' goods in British Columbia. In the letter from debts. setting out the proposed terms of agreement were the words, "this offer to be firm for one year." Debts. broke the agency agreement during the first year:—

1978 iv. ———.]—In 1911 resps. agreed to employ applts. as under-brokers for the business of a co. during the subsistence of an agreement which they themselves had as brokers to the co.; the latter agreement was for five years. In Aug. 1912, resps. wrongfully determined the agreement with applts. On Dec. 2, 1912, resps., bona fide & not as a means of limiting the damages, made a new agreement with the co., the terms of which were inconsistent with, & thus put an end to, the original agreement between resps. & the co. In Jan. 1913, applts. sued resps. for damages:—Held: the damages recoverable were limited to the amount which applts. would have earned as under-brokers down to Dec. 2, 1912.—LAOHMANDAS, ETC. v. oral authority. At B.'s request C. made a cheque for the purchase price payable to him. C. bought in good faith & for value. M. repudiated the sale & sued to vindicate the cattle sold without authority:—Held: the written authority & the request for personal payment should have put the purchaser upon inquiry.—MULLER v. C. never disclosed to defts. that he was acting as the agent of pltf. Subsequently C. explained to defts. that he was acting as agent for pltf., & at his request the agreement was cancelled. In an action for specific performance:—Held: the agreement not being one in which any personal qualification by C. was a material factor, the mere non-disclosure of the person actually entitled to the benefit of the contract for the sale of real estate did not amount to misrepresentation.—DYSTER v. RANDALL & SONS, [1926] Ch. 932; 95 L. J. Ch. 504; 135 L. T. 596; 70 Sol. Jo. 797; [1926] B. & C. R. 113, C. A.

2126a. Sold by agent—Effect of misrepresentation as to being principal.]—G., employed as a traveller by a firm of builders, owed debt. £17 for goods sold. He asked debt. to buy timber from him, telling him that he had left the employment of the builders & had set up as a timber merchant on his own account, & debt. agreed to order timber from him on the terms that G.'s debt of £17 should be set off against the price. G. had not set up in business on his own account, but was employed by pltf. as an agent for sale on commission. Timber was delivered to debt. with invoices & letters bearing the name, address, & description of pltf., which G. told debt. were his own trade name, address, & description. Pltf. brought an action in the county ct. for the price of the timber, & the county ct. judge found that debt. honestly believed that the name, address, & description on the invoices & letters were those of G., but that debt. was put upon inquiry by the invoices & letters, & had notice that G. was not selling as a principal but only as an agent for pltf., & he gave judgment for pltf. for the price of the timber:—Held: debt. had no more than constructive notice that pltf. was the principal of G., & in the circumstances constructive notice was not equivalent to actual notice; debt. had made no contract with pltf., & was entitled to judgment.—*GREER v. By the "building contract" debt. covenanted to build the vessels according to the terms of the "vessel contract," & this contract was expressed to be made with pltf. as well as with A., & debt. also confirmed provisions of the "vessel contract" for payment of the instalments of the purchase price to A. & appointed A. his agent to receive payments. Upon the signing of the contracts a first payment made by pltf. to A. was distributed by A. between the three "builders," who proceeded with the construction of the vessels. Upon pltf.'s failure to make the next deposit as provided for in the "vessel" contract, debt. gave notice terminating the contract. Pltf. having brought action for repayment by debt. of money paid on account of the vessels, less such expenses as debt. had 2139b. Account stated & signed by agent.]—In Mar. 1918, a tank steamer was damaged by fire & her repairs were entrusted to a firm of ship repairers at A. The steamer was insured. The owners sent out an agent from L. to expedite the repairs & authorised him to sign the repair account with the Lloyds' surveyor as "approved subject to adjustment & conditions of insurances." In Jan. 1919, the repairers delivered to the owners an account of the repairs signed by the owners' agent & by Lloyds' surveyor in the above form after a detailed examination of the account. The owners paid part of the amount due on this account but declined to pay the balance on the ground that the charges were excessive. The repairers sued the owners for the balance of amount due for work & labour done by pltf. & materials supplied at the request of defts., & in the alternative, claimed the balance as being the amount found due from defts. to pltf. on accounts stated between them & contained in an account signed by defts. by their

seal.—Defts. made an agreement with B. for conditional sale to him of a large quantity of land, the intention of the parties being for its subdivision & sale for fruit-farming purposes. All surveys & sales were to be approved by defts., a minimum price per acre in selling was stipulated, & the proceeds of sales were to be paid into a bank to defts.' credit, & title to be retained by defts. until the full purchase price of the sale to B. was realised. On certain amounts of sales being made, defts. agreed to do certain clearing, irrigating & tree-planting, B. acting as their agent in the supervision thereof. B. was to receive commission on sales made, should he not succeed in carrying out the agreement. B. made an approved agreement with pltf. for sale of a lot, to be selected by pltf. who sought to recover from defts. the amount of payments made by him:—Held: the fact that pltf.'s agreement was with B., in B.'s own name & under seal, did not prevent recovery from defts. as for money had & received.—*HITCHCOCK v. agent, less the sums since paid by debts. in respect thereof. Debts. denied that the agent was authorised to agree the amounts due from debts. to pltf., or that he in fact purported to agree such amount, or that the account constituted an account stated:—Held: the signature of debts.' agent was an agreement by him, with their authority, that the amount charged for the repairs was correct, &, there being no ground for re-opening the account, pltf. were entitled to judgment.—CAMILLO TANK S.S. 2147a. ———.]—A member of the Stock Exchange was indebted to debts. He became a defaulter on the Stock Exchange, & the liquidation of his affairs was undertaken by pltf. as official assignee. For the purposes of the liquidation he was authorised by pltf. to sell, & accordingly sold, certain shares standing in his name to debts., who were not members of the Stock Exchange, but who knew his position & that of pltf. as official assignee. Pltf. having sued debts. for the price of the shares:—Held: the action was maintainable, & debts. were not entitled to a set-off in respect of their debt.—RICHARDSON v. The latter, pressing D. for a settlement, accepted as an accommodation D.'s personal cheque for the amount of his claim against the F. Co. On the afternoon of the same day, D. informed resp. that the cheque of the F. Co. had arrived. At that time, D. had also received from applt. co. two drafts, payable to the order of resp. D. obtained resp.'s indorsement on the larger one of the drafts on the representation that it was the cheque of the F. Having $5,000 of pltf.'s money on hand he invested it by buying a part interest in the assignment of agreement for sale, & a declaration of trust was made by the trustees in pltf.'s favour to the extent of $5,000 & interest. The investment turned out badly & pltf. sued deft. co. for recovery of his money:—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover.—MC CRINDLE v. LONDON SCOTTISH CANADIAN INVESTMENT SYNDICATE, [1922] 3 W. The jury found that the rider was acting as the agent or servant of deft.

in the management of the motor bicycle at the time of the accident:—Held: the jury's findings & verdict must stand.—THOMPSON v. REYNOLDS, GIBSON v. REYNOLDS, [1926] N. 131.—IR.

The car was kept in a garage on deft.'s property which adjoined the son's home. Deft. was not licensed to drive & had never been seen driving the car, which on many occasions was driven by the son, who worked with his father. The accident took place whilst the car was proceeding in the direction of the homes of deft. & his son:—Held: the evidence was not sufficient to establish as between deft. & his son the relationship of principal & agent.—GOLDMAN v. 2317 ii d. —.]—Pltf. collided with deft.'s motor car, which was driven by J., a son of deft., & sustained serious injuries. In answers to interrogatories deft. admitted that she was the registered owner of the motor car; that her son C. & her daughter H. were licensed drivers; that she had purchased the car for pleasure; that she paid for all the petrol & oil; that her son J. resided with her; that she paid the rent for a lock-up garage, the key of which was kept by her son C. A witness stated that he saw J. driving his mother's car more than once prior to the day of the accident. Deft. denied that she knew that J. had a key of the garage in his possession on the day of the accident, or that she knew he had access to the key, & stated that she never at any time gave J. permission to drive her car, & that he never drove it to her knowledge:—Held: if the answer of the jury that J. at the time of the accident was driving the car with the implied authority of deft., amounted to a finding of agency, it must be set aside, on the ground that there was no evidence to support it.—GIBSON v. O'KEENEY, [1928] N. I. 66.—IR.

2317 ii e. —.]—A motor car owned by deft. was, at the time of an accident, being driven by a person to whom it had been lent by him:—Held: the mere proof of deft.'s ownership of the car was not of itself sufficient to establish a prima facie case of liability on his part.—FERGUSON v. - 2474a. —.]—The owners of a chartered ship sued the K. Coal Co. for demurrage at the port of loading under a charterparty expressed to be entered into "between G. T. G. & Co., owners' agents, & A. B. Co., Copenhagen, charterers." The charterparty, which was on a printed form, provided for payment of demurrage by "the charterers," & at the end of the charterparty the following stipulation was added in writing: "Freight & demurrage (if any in loading) to be paid in Glasgow by the K. Coal Co., Ltd." The charterparty was signed as follows: "For the A. B. Co., Copenhagen, J. B. J., of the K. Coal Co., Ltd. For & by telegraphic authority of owners, for G. T. G. & Co., J. M., as agents only." It was admitted that J. B. J. signed on behalf of the K. Coal Co.:—Held: (1) the K. Coal Co. were not by reason of the form of the signature made liable upon the charterparty; (2) the clause in writing did not import a promise of liability sufficient to rebut any inference to the contrary from the form of the signature.—KIMBER COAL CO. v. sc. In general.]—By conferring authority upon his agent the principal gives third persons the right to assume that they can deal with the agent in the matters covered by that authority until they receive notice of his authority having been revoked, or at least until some circumstance arises which in all reason should put them upon inquiry, & this rule applies especially in favour of third parties who began to deal with the agent while his authority did in fact exist.—WATSON v. is not entitled to relief against the elevator co. for the loss of his share by the lessee, unless notice of the change of relationship has been given to the co.—NORTH AMERICAN FINANCE CO. v. WESTERN ELEVATOR CO. (1922), 66 D. L. R. 467; 32 Man. L. R. 76; [1922] 2 W. W. R. 162.—CAN.

st. Agent accepting goods after revocation.]—Applts., a Durban firm, entered through V. into contracts with farmers in Alexandria for the supply of chicory. In 1917 V. had authority to accept chicory on behalf of applts., but when applts. entered into a contract with resps. for the 1918-1919 crop of chicory, this authority of V. had been withdrawn. Resps. tendered a consignment of chicory, which was accepted at Alexandria after examination by V., & sent to applts. at Durban; but it was rejected by applts. as being unsound in terms of the contract. Prior to the sending off of this consignment, applts. had notified all the farmers by circular that they would reject any chicory not "tip-top," & charge railage & storage to the senders.—Held: the circulars should have put resps. on inquiry as to V.'s authority.—ELLIS BROWN v. 2457 i. Agent cannot sue.]—Pltf. sent to defts. a quotation for goods, written on paper headed, "Niels Storaker, Representative for Alliance Export & Import Co., Christiania, Norway. All orders & contracts are subject to the suppliers' terms of contract. No order or contract is firmly accepted until the suppliers have consented to book it." In the letter he wrote: "All orders are booked on the understanding that my principals are given the option of shipping by steamer or sailing vessel." Defts. gave pltf. an order. Pltf. wrote to defts. saying: "I have cabled the order over to-day & I hope soon to be able to give upon cable acceptance." Subsequently he wrote: "I am glad in being able to inform you that the above-mentioned order has been booked by my principals & will send you official confirmation in due course." Pltf.'s letters were all signed "Niels Storaker" without any qualification:—Held: pltf. was contracting merely as agent, not as principal, & was not entitled to sue on the contract.—STORAKER v. 2457 ii. —.]—An order for books, addressed to the publishers on a form apparently supplied by them, requested delivery through "your distributors," contained an agreement to pay them (the distributors) at their office & provided that "this order to be binding shall be accepted by them." As the work proceeded pltf. prepared estimates & addressed them to the co. whose name he had entered in his books. When the work was finished he was paid a sum on account, but when trying to get payment of the balance he was told that the work had not been ordered on behalf of the co., but for other principals. Thereupon he sued H. The judge found that H. impliedly undertook personal liability for the work, that pltf. gave credit to the co. up to a certain date, but did so under a mistaken impression, & that he never gave exclusive credit to them in such a way as to bind himself to look to them, & that he never gave credit to H. before the work was completed:—Held: H. was liable for the balance.—GARDINER v. They then became entitled to receive from the Govt. in Russia an equivalent amount in roubles at a fixed rate of exchange. In Mar. 1917, the Imperial Govt. was overthrown by a revolution, & was succeeded by a Provisional Govt., which in its turn, was, on Nov. 7, 1917, displaced by the Bolsheviks, who, on Dec. 13, forcibly dissolved the Constituent Assembly & established a Soviet Republic. Pltf. having received no roubles in Russia, brought actions against the bankers to recover two sums of money, one of which was paid to them by pltf. in the second action before Nov. 7, & the other by pltf. in the first action on Nov. 9, at which date they did not know of the Bolshevik revolution. Pltf. in both actions alleged that the bankers & the Russian Govt. were merely trustees for them, & the money having been paid under a contract, the consideration for which had entirely failed, they were entitled to recover. Pltf. in the first action further contended that they had paid the money under a mistake of fact, & on that ground also they were entitled to recover it :

- 3040a. ———.]—By an underwriting contract dated Dec. 3, 1919, a syndicate agreed with a co. in consideration of a commission to subscribe for 150,000 of 350,000 shares to be offered to the public by a prospectus then about to be issued, & all allotments to the public were to be applied in relief of the syndicate's obligation to take up the 150,000 shares. By a sub-underwriting letter applt. agreed with the syndicate to subscribe 10,000 of the 150,000 shares underwritten by them & stated: "We now hand you application for the shares hereby underwritten by us together with cheque for £1,256, being deposit of 2s. 6d. per share." The letter also provided that applt. was only to be allotted & pay for so many of the 10,000 shares as should be his due proportion of the shares not taken up by the public, & that he was to receive a commission on the shares sub-underwritten by him. The letter also contained this clause: "This contract & our said application shall, notwithstanding any withdrawal on our part &/or any repudiation of our responsibility hereunder, or under the said application form, be sufficient to authorise & empower the directors to allot to us the above-mentioned shares & enter our name in the register of members in respect thereof." Applt. did not in fact sign or hand to the syndicate any written application to the co. for the 10,000 shares as contemplated by the sub-underwriting letter, but he handed to the syndicate the letter together with his cheque for £1,250 in their favour. On the issue of the prospectus only 55,000 shares were applied for by the public. On Dec. 12 the syndicate verbally applied in their own name & in the names of several sub-underwriters including applt. for an allotment of the total amount of the shares which they were bound to take up & paid with their own cheque for the total amount of the application money. On the same day the co. allotted to applt. 6,334, being his proportion of the 10,000 shares under his sub-underwriting letter. On Dec. 22, applt. wrote to the co. withdrawing his application for shares, meaning his sub-underwriting letter, but on Dec. 29 the co. sent him the usual formal notice of the allotment to him of 6,334 shares. On motion by applt. to rectify the register by removing his name therefrom as the holder of the 6,334 shares:—Held: the authority given by applt. to the syndicate to apply for shares was a continuing & irrevocable authority coupled with an interest which he was not entitled to withdraw.—Re OLYMPIC REINSURANCE CO., POLE'S CASE, [1920] 2 Ch. 341; 89 L. Agriculture Act, 1920 (c. 76), s. 28—To what tenancies applicable.]—The above sect., which renders a notice to quit a holding invalid if it purports to determine the tenancy before the expiration of twelve months from the end of the then current year of tenancy, applies not only to the case of a yearly tenancy but to all contracts of tenancy in which a notice to quit is required to determine the tenancy, including a lease for twenty-one years with an option to either party to determine it on six months' notice at the end of the first seven or fourteen years of the term. A notice to quit includes a notice to determine the tenancy.—EDELL v. DULIEU, [1924] A. C. 38; 93 L. J. K. B. 286; 130 L. T. 390; 40 T. L. R. 84; 68 Sol. Jo. 183, H. L.

The elder brother, the active partner, gave notice in writing to the landlord that he intended to leave the farm. Subsequently they declined to remove from the farm, on the ground that the notice being in the name of one of the joint tenants only, was insufficient to prevent renewal of the lease by tacit relocation :—Held : (1) the notice necessary, under A. H. (Scotland) Act, 1908 (c. 64), s. 18 (1), to prevent tacit relocation, might be given by a duly authorised agent for the tenant; (2) as the evidence showed that the elder brother had sufficient authority to terminate the lease on behalf of the partners, the notice given by him was effectual to prevent tacit relocation, although the fact that he was acting both for himself & as agent for his brother did not appear ex facie of the notice.—*GRAHAM v. At the time of the contract deft. was in occupation of the land as yearly tenant, but was under a notice to quit which had been served upon him by the vendors. All the persons whose consents were necessary for the sale subsequently joined in the conveyance to pltf., which was executed after the passing of the Act of 1919:—Held: the contract of sale was entered into with pltf. before the passing of the Act of 1919, & the notice to quit, therefore, was valid, & pltf. was entitled to possession.—BROOKS v. BLOOR (1920), 90 L. J. K. B. 577; 124 L. T. 316; 36 T. L. R. 826; 64 Sol. Jo. 685, D. C.

30e. Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923 (c. 9)—Farm held under two landlords—Notice to quit given by both—Contract for sale by one for part of farm.]—On May 20, 1912, T. let a farm to C. from year to year from Oct. 11, 1911, at an annual rent of £150. On Dec. 23, 1914, T. conveyed about half the farm to pltf.s, subject to & with the benefit of the tenancy agreement. T. died on Jan. 4, 1919, & C. continued to pay the whole rent to her exors., as he had since the conveyance paid it to T. After Oct. 11, 1922, the rent fell into arrear. By a notice to quit dated Oct. 10, 1923, the agents of T.'s exors. & the agent of pltf.s jointly gave C. notice to quit the whole holding on Oct. 11, 1924. By an agreement dated Oct. 1, 1924, T.'s exors. agreed to sell their part of the farm to C., & it was conveyed to him on Apr. 17, 1925. C. refused to give up possession to pltf.s of their part of the holding, contending that under sect. 26 of the above Act the contract by T.'s exors. to sell to him rendered the notice to quit null & void. Pltf.s brought an action for a declaration that the notice to quit was effective, & to recover possession of their land:—Held: as the contract to sell a part was not made by the persons who gave notice to quit the entire holding, but only by some of them, sect. 26 of the above Act did not apply; the tenancy had been duly determined as regards pltf.s' land, & pltf.s. were entitled to the declaration which they asked & to an order for possession of their land.—ROCHESTER & CHATHAM JOINT SEWERAGE BOARD v. 56a. ——— Grass land laid down by tenant.]—By a tenancy agreement made in 1894 the trustees of an estate, of which pltf. was the present tenant for life in possession, agreed to let to deft. certain farm lands & house buildings comprising 138 acres more or less, as described in a schedule attached to the agreement, on a yearly tenancy, at the rent of £48. The tenant covenanted to manage & cultivate the land in a husbandlike manner, & that he would not plough or otherwise break up "any grass land" without the consent of the landlord. In the schedule to the agreement the premises were described as consisting of 130 acres 1 r. 31 p. of arable & 8 acres of grass land. In 1898 the tenant laid down 40 acres more to permanent grass. On notice being given to him to determine the tenancy on Sept. 29, 1919, he claimed the right to plough up this 40 acres of permanent grass which had been arable at the commence-had exercised the right to sell given the lessor under the lease & that his lease was therefore at an end; pltf.'s allowing the purchaser to withdraw from the agreement to purchase did not affect deft.'s rights or reinstate the lease.—RINK v. ment of his tenancy. In an action by pltf. to restrain him from so doing in breach of his covenants an interim order was made granting the injunction on the usual undertaking as to damages. Deft. counterclaimed for damages by reason of the interim order:—Held: (1) on the true construction of the agreement, the covenant not to plough up any grass land was not restricted to the 8 acres of grass at the date of the demise but extended to the grass land in dispute & pltf. was entitled to the relief claimed; (2) on the evidence, the proposed dealing with the land would have been a breach of the covenant to cultivate in a husbandlike manner; (3) deft. had suffered no damage from the granting of the interim injunction.—CLARKE-JERVOISE v. 164a. Against sub-letting—Letting of grass keep in last year of tenancy—Agistment.]—Where the tenant of a farm covenants not to underlet or permit any other person to use or occupy any part of the demised premises without the written consent of the landlord, the sale or letting by the tenant, without such consent, in the last year of his tenancy of the grass keep, i.e. growing herbage, of his pasture lands for a definite period, is a breach of the covenant, although such sale or letting is in accordance with the usual practice of an outgoing tenant in that part of the country. Semble: agistment, i.e. the taking in by the tenant of the sheep or cattle of another to be depastured on the farm at so much per head per week, would not be a breach of the covenant.—RICHARDS v. In ejectment for a forfeiture:—Held: (1) the work thus to be performed meant any work for which teams are generally used, & therefore included drawing coals to B. 229a. Incoming tenant agreeing to repay compensation paid by landlord—Action by landlord on agreement—When cause of action arises.]—By an agreement dated Dec. 24, 1915, made under seal, pltf. let to deft. a small-holding from year to year from Feb. 2, 1916, at a rent of £132 10s. a year payable by half-yearly payments on Feb. 2, & Aug. 2, each year. The tenant agreed "to pay on entry any allowance or compensation which may be due from the council to the outgoing tenant in respect of feeding stuffs or manures or any improvements mentioned in A. H. Act, 1908, Sched. 1, Part III." Deft. entered into occupation of the small-holding on Feb. 2, 1916. At that date the amount of the compensation payable to the outgoing tenant had not been fixed, & it was not until Feb. 11, 1918, that the amount of compensation was agreed to. It was then agreed that the council should pay the outgoing tenant £30 17s. 6d., & that sum was paid by the council to the outgoing tenant on Mar. 17, 1921. On Jan. 13, 1923, pltf. council brought an action in the county ct. claiming to recover from deft. the sum of £30 17s. 6d. under the agreement of Dec. 24, 1915. Deft. pleaded that pltf.' cause of action had arisen on Feb. 2, 1916, the date of his entry on the holding, & that therefore the claim was barred by Stat. Limitations, s. 3, because the action was not brought "within six years next after the cause of such action or suit":—Held: pltf.' cause of action against deft. did not arise on Feb. 2, 1916, when deft. entered on the holding but only on Feb. 11, 1918, when the amount of the compensation was ascertained by agreement; therefore the time only began to run from Feb. 11, 1918, & the action was not barred.—*CHESHIRE COUNTY COUNCIL v. The tenant planted trees & bushes in accordance with the agreement. At the end of the tenancy he claimed compensation for the improvement thus made:—Held: he was not entitled to compensation, the improvement being one which he was required to make by the terms of his tenancy & the contract of tenancy having been made before Jan. 1, 1921.—*HUCKELL v. SUB-SECT. 1a.—COMPENSATION FOR INCREASED OR DIMINISHED VALUE OF HOLDING.

A. Compensation to Tenant.

See A. H. Act, 1923, s. 9.

B. Compensation to Landlord.

See A. H. Act, 1923, s. 10.

264a. Notice of claim—Time for giving—Agriculture Act, 1920 (c. 76).—Held: the meaning of sect. 19 of the above Act taken as a whole was that the landlord should have a right of compensation for deterioration under the sect. if he gave a notice before the termination of the tenancy & not otherwise; but if he had a right under contract to claim for deterioration apart from the sect., nothing in the sect. should interfere with that right.

A tenant held a farm as a yearly tenant under the landlord upon the terms, as the arbitrator found, of an agreement in writing under which the father of the tenant had originally held the farm. On Aug. 20, 1920, the landlord served a notice to quit upon the tenant, which expired as to the land, other than the boozy pasture, on Feb. 2, 1922. The tenant gave up possession of the land except the boozy pasture, the tenancy of which did not expire until May 1, 1922, upon that date. On Mar. 28, 1922, the landlord gave notice of & particulars of a counterclaim against the tenant for waste wrongly committed or permitted by the tenant & for breach of contract or otherwise, whereby he claimed for neglect in the care of hedges & ditches on the land & dirty land:—Held: (1) the landlord's claim was not barred by sect. 19 of the above Act; (2) the boozy pasture & the rest of the farm were held under one contract of tenancy; illegal:—Held: the question of the claimant's title to present a claim was not one of the matters remitted by the Act to the exclusive jurisdiction of the arbiter, but was a question precedent to the existence of a statutory claim, & the ct. had jurisdiction to entertain the action of interdict.—DONALDSON'S HOSPITAL (EDINBURGH) TRUSTEES v. EBBLEMONT, [1925] S. C. 199; on appeal, [1926] S. C. (H. L.) 68.—SCOT.

the contract did not finally cease under sect. 10 (7) of the above Act until May 1, 1922, the date of the termination of the boozy tenancy, & the landlord's notice was therefore in time.—Re ARDEN & RUTTER, [1923] 2 K. B. 865; 130 L. T. 51; sub nom. ARDEN v. RUTTER, 92 L. J. K. B. 894, C. A.

265a. Right to compensation—Tenant holding over after notice to quit.—A tenancy was determined by notice to quit on a certain day. The tenant remained on in possession for about nine months, & was finally ejected. Two days before his ejectment he furnished details of his claim for compensation:—Held: the tenant, from the date when his notice expired, was not holding under a contract of tenancy, & the land which he persisted in occupying unlawfully was not a holding within sect. 11 of the above Act, & he, therefore, was not within the benefit of the Act.—CAVE v. PAGE (1923), 67 Sol. Jo. 659, C. A.

265b. Liability to pay compensation—"Landlord"—Purchaser entitled to rents—Purchase not completed till after claim.—Certain landowners let a farm to tenants. In 1917 they gave notice to the tenants to quit at Michaelmas, 1918, with a view to the sale of the farm. In Oct. 1917, they agreed to sell the farm to a purchaser. On July 5, 1918, the tenants gave to the purchaser, who was then entitled to the rents & profits, notice in writing under sect. 1 (1) of the Act of 1914 of their intention to claim compensation in terms of sect. 11 of the Act of 1908. On July 18, 1918, the sale of the farm was completed:—Held: (1) the purchaser was the "landlord" within the Acts; (2) the notice of intention to claim compensation was rightly given to him; (3) he was liable to pay compensation.—BRADSHAW v. BIRD, [1920] 3 K. B. 144; 90 L. J. K. B. 221; 123 L. T. 703, C. A.

265c. — — — — — Person entitled to rents at end of tenancy.—(1) Where the tenant of an agricultural holding, who has been disturbed in his tenancy, becomes entitled under sect. 11 of the above Act to compensation for loss in connection with the sale or removal of his household goods, implements, or stock on the condition, among others, of giving to the landlord a reasonable opportunity of making a valuation of such goods, etc., the question whether he has given such a reasonable opportunity is in each case a question of fact depending on the circumstances. sn. — — — — — Loss from error in valuation of waygoing grain crop.—Under the lease of a farm the landlord took over the waygoing crop of grain from the outgoing tenant at fairs prices, the quantity of the growing crop being mere lapse of an interval of several months between notice of intention to claim compensation & sale or removal is not of itself sufficient to satisfy the condition.

(2) Where the tenant of an agricultural holding has given notice to his landlord under sect. 11, proviso (b), of his intention to claim compensation for disturbance, & the landlord before the appointment of an arbitrator under that sect. assigns the reversion, the person who is liable to pay such compensation as may be awarded is the person who is entitled to receive the rents at the termination of the tenancy, & the notice of intention to claim so given to the original landlord will enure for the benefit of the tenant as against such last-named person.

(3) Assuming sect. 48 (2) of the above Act to apply to proceedings for compensation for disturbance as well as for improvements, the commencement of the "proceedings" is not the service of notice of intention to claim compensation, but the appointment of the arbitrator.—DALE v. 266e. Agriculture Act, 1920 (c. 76)—Right to compensation—Withdrawal of notice to quit—What amounts to.]—In Sept. 1920, a landlord gave to the tenant notice to quit his tenancy of a farm for which he was paying a yearly rental of £506 2s. On Dec. 31, 1920, the landlord wrote to the tenant: "I have received an offer of £670 per annum for your holding. If you choose to give me the same, you are most welcome to continue the tenancy":—Held: having regard to sect. 10 of the above Act, the letter of Dec. 31, 1920, did not constitute an offer in writing to withdraw the notice to quit within the proviso to sect. 10 (1) of that Act.—Re PERRETT & BENNETT-STANFORD, [1922] 2 K. B. 592; 91 L. J. K. B. 930; 128 L. T. 57; 38 T. L. R. 849; sub nom. PERRETT v. BENNETT-STANFORD, 66 Sol. Jo. 680, C. A.

266f. — — — — Ejectment proceedings following notice to quit.]—The landlord of a farm served on the tenant a notice to quit on Mar. 25, 1923. Owing to the illness of his wife, the tenant did not quit the farmhouse at the expiry of the notice, but he quitted the land, save as under the custom of the country, immediately after the expiry of the notice. Ejectment proceedings were brought by the landlord & judgment was obtained by default of appearance. On being served with the notice to quit, the tenant duly served on the landlord a notice of intention to claim compensation for disturbance under sect. 10 of the above Act:—Held: if the tenant was ejected, the ejectment was in consequence of the notice to quit, & therefore, the tenant had quitted the farm in consequence of the notice to quit terminating the tenancy, & the tenant was accordingly entitled to compensation under sect. 10 of the Act.—MILLS v. ROSE (1923), 68 Sol. Jo. 420, C. A.

266g. — — — — Necessity for proof of loss or expense—Entire holding in occupation of sub-tenants.]—The effect of sect. 10 (6) of the above Act is that as a condition precedent to his right to compensation for disturbance a tenant must prove that he has incurred some loss or some expense of the kind indicated in the sub-sect.; that on proof of that he is entitled as a minimum to one year's rent of the holding; but that unless he proves some loss or some expense of the kind indicated he does not bring himself within sub-sect. 6 & is not entitled to compensation. Therefore where a lease of a holding under the Act was duly determined by notice to quit & the holding was entirely in the occupation of sub-tenants whose sub-tenancies terminated without notice on the termination of the lease, & the lessee did not sell or remove any household goods, implements of husbandry, fixtures, farm produce or farm stock on or used in connection with the holding:—Held: he was not entitled to compensation for disturbance under sect. 10. —AGRICULTURE & FISHERIES MINISTER v. DEAN, [1924] 1 K. B. 85; 93 L. J. K. B. 374; 130 L. T. 709; 40 T. L. R. 285; 68 Sol. Jo. 401, C. A.

ascertained by arbn. After threshing it was found that the quantity had been underestimated by the arbiters. The outgoing tenant claimed, under the above sect., as compensation for loss in connection with the sale of the farm produce, a sum representing the difference between the price he had received & the price of the actual quantity threshed:—Held: the loss was not "directly attributable to the quitting of the holding," but had arisen from an error of the arbiters.—MCGREGOR v. BOARD OF AGRICULTURE FOR SCOTLAND, [1925] S. C. 613.—SCOT.

sp. Agricultural Holdings (Scotland) Act, 1923 (c. 10), s. 12 (6)—Refusal of landlord to take over stock—Claim for loss on sale.—The tenant of a farm received notice to quit. Having taken over 266i. Given under Act subsequently repealed—Necessity for notice under repealing Act.]—A tenant who had on Sept. 29, 1920, received notice to quit his farm on Sept. 29, 1921, gave notice on Nov. 17, 1920, to his landlord of his intention to claim compensation for disturbance under A. H. Act, 1908, s. 11. That sect. was repealed by the Act of 1920, which came into force on Jan. 1, 1921, & by sect. 10 substituted a new right to compensation for disturbance. The tenant gave no notice of his intention to claim compensation under that sect. as required by sub-sect. 7 (b) thereof:—Held: not having given notice under sect. 10 of the Act of 1920, he had no right of claim under that sect., but his right of making a claim under A. H. Act, 1908, s. 11, was preserved by Interpretation Act, 1889 (c. 63), s. 38, notwithstanding the repeal of sect. 11.—HAMILTON-GELL v. WHITE, [1922] 2 K. B. 422; 91 L. J. K. B. 875; 127 L. 266j. Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923 (c. 9)—Right to compensation—Refusal or failure to agree to arbitration.]—(1) A landlord of a holding gave the tenant notice to quit, & in the same document stated that he had no desire to terminate the tenancy if the tenant would agree to his demand that the rent should be fixed by arbn. The tenant did not agree to arbn.:—Held: the tenant did not thereby disentitle himself to compensation, for the refusal or failure to agree to arbn. dealt with by sect. 12 (1) (e) of the above Act is a refusal or failure which has taken place before the date of the notice.

(2) It cannot be laid down as a matter of law, that in no case can the minimum compensation of one year's rent provided by sect. 12 (6) be reduced under the provisions of sect. 12 (8) if the tenant, having held two or more holdings as tenant, remains in possession of one of them. But the provisions of sect. 12 (8) have no application to a case in which the tenant remains in possession of the other holding or holdings, not as tenant, but as owner.—*WESTLAKE v. 266l. — Liability to pay compensation—"Landlord"—Agreement for sale—Whether purchaser entitled to rents.]—In July, 1924, the owner of an estate, which included a farm in the occupation of tenants, agreed to sell the farm to a purchaser, who agreed to pay the purchase money in Oct. 1924. The agreement was subject to conditions of sale, by one of which the purchaser agreed to pay the balance of the purchase money on the day named in the contract, & in that respect time was to be of the essence of the contract; & it was further agreed that "all rents & periodical outgoings" should be "apportioned up to the completion," & added to or deducted from the purchase money as the case might require. On Sept. 23, 1924, notice was given to the tenants to quit the farm on Sept. 29, 1925. The purchase was not in fact completed until Oct. 1925:—Held: (1) "completion" in the condition of sale meant actual completion, & not the date named for completion; (2) on Sept. 29, 1925, the vendor was the "person entitled to receive the rents & profits" of the farm within sect. 57, & he, & not the purchaser, was the "landlord" within sect. 12 & the person to pay compensation to the tenants.—RICHARDS v. PRYSE, [1927] 2 K. B. 76; 96 L. J. K. B. 743; 137 L. T. 170, C. A.

266m. — Notice of claim—By whom given—Joint tenancy.]—W., who had been tenant of a farm for many years, entered into negotiations with his landlord to have his tenancy agreement, upon the termination thereof, transferred to himself & B., & as the result of those negotiations W. became joint tenant of the farm with B. at the request of, & for the protection of, the landlord. Upon the termination of W.'s tenancy B. paid W. for the tenant right & also provided the whole of the finance necessary for carrying on the farm. On Feb. 21, 1924, W. alone gave notice to quit. On Mar. 21, 1924, the landlord served notice to quit upon both tenants, upon the ground that they were not cultivating the farm according to the rules of good husbandry. Thereupon B. gave notice to the landlord of his intention to claim compensation:—Held: (1) the notice given by B., being the one of the joint tenants who owned the household goods & agricultural implements & had suffered loss by their removal or sale upon the expiration of the joint tenancy, was sufficient to give the arbitrator jurisdiction; (2) it being the object of sect. 12 (7) (b) of the above Act that the landlord should have notice of what compensation was claimed against him, it would, in the case of a joint tenancy, be a great hardship upon the tenant who had a proper & valid claim for compensation which was to be defeated because his joint tenant, who had no such claim, had not joined in the notice.—HOWSON v. BUXTON (1928), 97 L. J. K. B. 749; 139 L. T. 504, C. A.

SUB-SECT. 3a.—COMPENSATION FOR ENFORCEMENT OF PROPER CULTIVATION.

266n. Corn Production Act, 1917 (c. 46), s. 9 (9)—Who is person interested—Tenant.]—(1) A notice to convert certain land into tillage, made under sub-sect. 1 of the above sect. & Defence of the Realm Regulations, 1914, reg. 2 M, was served on the owner of land who was in occupation. After the service of the notice the owner agreed to let the land to a tenant who entered into occupation & carried out the requirements of the notice. The notice had not been served on the tenant. The tenant claimed compensation for loss alleged to have been suffered by him by reason of his having carried out the requirements of the notice, & the claim was referred to arbn. under the Act, & the arbitrator stated a case in which he asked the ct. certain questions:—Held: the tenant was a "person who was interested in the land in respect of which the notice was served," within sub-sect. 9 of the above sect., inasmuch as he was interested at the time when the loss was alleged to have occurred: & the tenant came within the words of the sub-sect. "who suffers any loss by reason of the exercise of the powers conferred by this sect.," & was entitled to compensation for the loss, if any, though the notice had not been served on him, as he had carried out the requirements of the notice.

(2) Two notices were served, each in respect of a different field in a separate farm occupied by the same tenant:—Held: in the circumstances, the loss, if any, in respect of each field should be assessed separately.

(3) The tenant of certain land in respect of which a notice to plough had been served under the Act sent in a claim for compensation on Sept. 28, 1918, for the year 1918, & in 1919 he sent in a claim for compensation for 1919. The arbn. to assess compensation was held after both claims had been sent in:—Held: the assessment should not be based on the loss, if any, in each year separately; (BANKES, L.J.) the arbitrator should take the experience of the two years, setting off any profit in one year against any loss in the other; (SCRUTTON & ATKIN, L.J.J.) the whole effect of the exercise of the powers conferred by the sect. had to be considered by the arbitrator, including an estimate of the probable loss or profit in the future.—Re TODD & NORTH RIDING OF YORKSHIRE AGRICULTURAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, [1921] 1 K. SUB-SECT. 3b.—ASCERTAINMENT OF COMPENSATION.

266r. In respect of what holdings compensation payable—Tenant sub-letting farmhouse.]—By an agreement of tenancy a landlord demised to the tenant a farm of 1,000 acres together with a farmhouse & some cottages. There was a provision that the tenant should use the demised premises for farming purposes. The tenant subsequently, with the permission of the landlord, sub-let the farmhouse to a lady who used it as a house for paying guests. Upon the determination of the lease, the tenant made a claim for compensation under A. H. Act, 1908:—Held: the ct. must have regard to the substance of what had been done; by the lease the holding was an agricultural one, & the fact that the farmhouse had been let to a sub-tenant did not cause it to cease to be a "holding" within the Act.—Re RUSSELL & HARDING (1922), 128 L. 266s. Notice of claim—To whom given—Purchaser—Taking subject to existing tenancies.]—Appl. was the tenant of an agricultural holding under a tenancy expiring on Sept. 29, 1922. In May, 1922, the landlord contracted to sell the holding, subject to the tenancy, to resp., completion to take place on Sept. 29, 1922. The completion in fact took place on Nov. 2. The contract of sale contained a general condition that the rents, profits or possession of the property should be received or retained & the outgoings discharged by the vendor up to the time appointed for completion, & that current rents should be apportioned. By a special condition it was provided that for the purpose of this general condition any rent payable on Sept. 29 was to be deemed "current rent," & was to be payable by the purchaser on completion. After the determination of the tenancy the purchaser as "landlord" made a claim against the tenant for dilapidations, & the tenant counterclaimed for compensation:—Held: the purchaser was not at the date of the termination of the tenancy the "landlord" within A. H. Act, 1908, s. 48, & Agriculture Act, 1920 (c. 76), s. 18.—TOMBS v. TURVEY (1923), 93 L. J. K. B. 785; 131 L. T. 330; 68 Sol. Jo. 385, C. A.

266t. Particulars of claim—Sufficiency.]—Held: having regard to the severity of the penalty attached to non-compliance with Agriculture Act, 1920 (c. 76), s. 18 (2), namely, total extinguishment of the claim, the presumption was that the requirement of “particulars” was not intended to be construed strictly, & for the purpose of keeping the claim alive & enabling the parties to get before the arbitrator, a less degree of particularity was required to satisfy the sect. than would be required of particulars of a statement of claim in an action, notwithstanding that when the parties get before the arbitrator he might be of opinion that the particulars were insufficient, & might order further & better particulars to be given.—JONES v. EVANS, [1923] 1 K. B. 12; 92 L. J. K. B. 35; 128 L. T. 228, C. A.

266u. Award—Setting aside—Jurisdiction of court—Error on face of award.]—The inherent jurisdiction of the High Ct. to set aside an award under A. H. Act, 1908, on the ground of error appearing on the face of it where there has been no misconduct on the part of the arbitrator is not taken away by that Act. That jurisdiction was not excluded by Arbitration Act, 1889 (c. 49), & when the jurisdiction under that Act with reference to arbn. proceedings under the A. H. Act, 1908, was transferred to the county ct. by that Act, the inherent jurisdiction of the High Ct. in those matters was neither expressly nor by implication transferred to it.—Re JONES & CARTER, [1922] 2 Ch. 599; 91 L. 266v. — Time for notice of motion to set aside.]—In an arbn. under the A. H. Act, 1908, the award was made on Apr. 8, 1921, & on June 3 applt. gave notice of motion to set aside the award on various grounds. There was no rule either under County Cts. Act, 1888 (c. 43), or under A. H. Act, 1908, dealing with the time within which a notice of motion to set aside an award must be given:—Held: the words “principles of practice” in County Cts. Act, 1888 (c. 43), s. 164, did not refer to specific rules of the High Ct., & the time limit of six weeks under R. S. C., Ord. 64, r. 14, was not a “principle of practice” within that sect. of the Act; therefore the only time limit applicable in the present case was under Stat. Limitations & under the doctrine of laches, & the motion to set aside the award was made in time.—MCCREAGH v. FREARSON (1921), 91 L. J. K. B. 365; 126 L. T. 601, D. C.

266y. Recovery of compensation agreed or awarded—In what court.]—A. H. 266z. Costs—Agreement as to—Validity.]—The parties to an arbn. under A. H. Act, 1923, agreed beforehand that the successful party should have costs on the High Ct. scale. The agreement was not communicated to the arbitrator, who gave his award in favour of the landlord, & awarded that each party should pay his own costs. In an action by the landlord to enforce the agreement the judge gave judgment for the tenants, on the ground that the Act gave discretion to the arbitrator as to costs:—Held: the agreement was valid & enforceable.—MANSFIELD v. ROBINSON, [1928] 2 K. B. 353; 97 L. J. K. B. 466; 139 L. T. 349; 92 J. P. 126; 44 T. L. R. 518, D. C.

267a. — “Treated as a market garden.”]—(1) Held: the word “treated” in sect. 42 (1) of the above Act, in the collocation in which it was there used did not mean simply that the holding should be in use or cultivation as a market garden, but that it should be let by one person as landlord & occupied by the other as tenant as a market garden, & so treated as between them for the purpose of governing their rights in respect of the holding as a market garden.

By an agreement in writing dated Dec. 31, 1919, & made between the landlord of the one part & the tenant therein described as “market gardener” of the other part, it was agreed (clause 1): that the landlord should let & the tenant should take the farm therein described for the term of one year from Sept. 19, 1919, & so on from year to year at the yearly rent of £185 by half-yearly payments on Mar. 25 & Sept. 29 in each year, & that the tenant should pay to the landlord as a further rent at the rate of £6 per cent. per annum on all sums of money expended by the landlord in the supply of any fruit trees during the tenancy. PART V. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 3b. :

266t. 1. Particulars of claim—Sufficiency—Agricultural Holdings (Scotland) Act, 1923 (c. 10), s. 15 (2).]—By a letter, written on receipt of a notice from the tenant of his intention to terminate his tenancy of a sheep farm, the landlord intimated that he reserved his claim in respect of depletion of the sheep stock; & by a second letter, written within two months after the termination of the tenancy, in which he referred to his former letter, he stated that only 51 per cent. of the sheep stock had been delivered to the incoming tenant, & that the amount of the claim would be intimated when the exact shortage was determined:—Held: (1) in view of the severity of the penalty attached to non-compliance, the requirements of the above sub-sect. were sufficiently complied with if fair notice was given to the opposite party of the nature of the claim against him & of the case he had to meet; (2) the letters general practice in the neighbourhood, & was not to cut down, grub up, or destroy any fruit trees growing in or upon the land, or at any time to be planted thereon, under the provisions of the agreement, without the consent in writing of the landlord or his agent first had & obtained. By clause 9 the landlord was during the term to supply the tenant at his own expense with all fruit trees which might at any time be agreed between the landlord & tenant to be necessary, & the tenant was to pay a certain additional rent in respect of the fruit trees so supplied. Clause 11 contained the following proviso: "That nothing herein contained shall be deemed to be an agreement by the landlord that the premises hereby demised or any part thereof shall be let or treated as a market garden or give rise to a claim for compensation for fruit trees or bushes under A. H. Act, 1908, or any statutory modification thereof":—Held: (2) clause 11 of the agreement contained the clearest possible expression of the intention of the parties that the holding was not to be treated as a market garden; there was therefore no agreement in writing within sect. 42 (1) of the Act, by which it was agreed that it should be let or treated as a market garden, & therefore no claim to compensation on that basis arose, because the existence of such an agreement was a condition precedent to such a claim; (3) the agreement was not one which was avoided by sect. 5 of the Act, because the condition precedent to the tenant having the right to claim compensation had not been satisfied.—Re MASTERS & DUVEEN, [1923] 2 K. B. 729; 68 Sol. Jo. 11; sub nom. MASTERS v. DUVEEN, 93 L. J. K. B. 57; 130 L. T. 13, C. A.

A lease of a farm contained a covenant by the lessee to deliver up at the end of the term all the demised premises & all new & other buildings & erections thereon & all such fixtures as were in anywise affixed or fastened to the freehold of the premises:—Held: the covenant effectually excluded the provisions of sect. 21 of the Act, & the tenant was not entitled to remove certain buildings & fixtures erected & affixed by him during the term.—*PREMIER DAIRIES v. One of the conditions upon which pltf. purchased the crop of swedes was that he should not remove from the field more than one-half of the crop of swedes, the other half having to be consumed on the field. Deft. put a number of sheep into his field of grass, & the sheep got into pltf.'s field of swedes & did considerable damage to the swedes :—Held : the fact that the right of pltf. to remove the swedes from the field was limited to one-half of the crop did not prevent him from maintaining an action of trespass in respect of the damage done by deft.'s sheep, as pltf. had such an exclusive right of possession in the crop as would entitle him to maintain an action of trespass.—*WELLAN v. estates. On Jan. 18, 1922, a contract was entered into by A. for sale of part of the settled land, subject to the agreement of Dec. 7, 1920, & on Mar. 14, 1922, such land was conveyed to the purchaser, subject to the agreement:—Held: the proceeds of sale of the timber belonged to A.

(2) At the date of the contract for the sale of land & at the date of the conveyance, part of the timber, to the value of about £500, remained uncut:—Held: although as regards the purchaser of the land the timber was divided from the freehold, yet nevertheless it remained part of the inheritance & subject to the limitations of the settlement; accordingly, it did not vest in A., but being however part of the inheritance & still remaining subject to the limitations of the settlement, on severance it became the property of A., & therefore the £500 belonged to him.—*Re LONDESBOROUGH (EARL), SPICER v. Merchantable timber was to mean & include all trunks & branches of trees not less than six inches in diameter at a height of four feet from the ground. The purchasers took possession of the forest, but shortly afterwards an agrarian law was passed in Latvia under which the forest & all the timber therein became the property of the Latvian State, the agreement became annulled, & all the rights of vendors & purchasers in the forest & the timber became entirely confiscated:—Held: the contract was not an executed contract on the part of the vendors at the date when it was signed, & the property in the timber had not passed, to the purchaser; the performance of the contract was entirely frustrated by the act of the Latvian State, & the parties were released from it.—*KURSELL v. This bough suddenly broke in fine weather, fell upon pltf.'s vehicle then passing, & caused damage. Neither deft. nor his servants knew that the bough was dangerous, & the fracture was due to a latent defect not discoverable by any reasonably careful inspection:—Held: deft. was not liable, as the mere fact that the tree overhung the highway did not make the tree a nuisance, & as he neither knew nor ought to have known of the actual danger, & there was no absolute obligation on him to support a tree overhanging the road unless it appeared, or would appear on a proper inspection, that nature could no longer be relied upon to support it.—NOBLE v. - 971a. Feeding stuffs—Act of 1906, s. 1 (4).—In Sept. 1922, pltf., a pig-keeper, saw defts.' managing director, who offered to sell him the bakery sweepings as pig food at 2s. 6d. a bag. Pltf. accepted the offer & purchased the sweepings from defts. & fed five pigs with it successfully from Sept. 1922 to Jan. 1923, when the pigs became ill & four of them died. The sweepings consisted of ingredients used in making bread, together with dust & dirt & other odds & ends & string:—Held: the words "on the sale of any article" in the above sub-sect. were wide enough to cover the sale of these bakery sweepings; the effect of the sub-sect. was to put the risk upon the seller, who, knowing the constituents of the article which he chose to sell as food for cattle, was made responsible if in fact it contained some article deleterious; if the seller desired to protect himself against the stringent provisions of the Act, it was competent to him to do so by a special contract made for that purpose.—PULLING v. his default is to protect the purchasers of fertilisers, the effect of non-compliance with the requirement is not merely to render the vendor liable to the penalty, but also to make the sale illegal & preclude the vendor from suing for the price. (2) The fact that, owing to the nature of the article sold as a fertiliser, an analysis of it would necessitate so expensive a process as to make it impossible to sell it after analysis at a profit, affords no “reasonable excuse” within sect. 6 (1), for omitting to give the invoice required by the Act. Semble: neither will impossibility of analysis afford any excuse, the intention of the statute in that event being to prohibit the sale of the article altogether. (3) The expression “without prejudice to any civil liability” in sect. 6 (1) refers to the civil liability of the vendor, not to that of the purchaser.—ANDERSON, LTD. v. DANIEL, [1924] 1 K. An amending Order in Council made on Nov. 27, 1917, after reciting that doubts had arisen as to the effect of the Order & the proper interpretation of the Proclamation, ordered that the following persons (inter alios) should be deemed to have become British subjects by virtue thereof: "any Ottoman subject who was ordinarily resident & actually present in Cyprus on Nov. 5, 1914." Resp., an Ottoman subject by birth, carried on business in Cairo from 1893 to 1913. In Dec. 1913, he went to Cyprus, & after three or four months brought his family there. He rented a house in Cyprus monthly, & while there discontinued his business in Cairo. He was present in Cyprus on Nov. 5, 1914, & remained there until Oct. 1915, when he returned to Cairo, his family following in December. He received a passport describing him as a British subject, & was so registered at the British Consulate at Cairo, but after annual renewals registration was refused in 1919. He sued for a declaration that he was entitled to registration:—Held: if there were any difference between "resident" & "ordinarily resident" the latter became the test by virtue of the interpretative Order of 1917; but on the facts resp. was both "resident" & "ordinarily resident" in Cyprus on Nov. 5, 1914, whether or not Cyprus was then his domicile; & whatever may have been his motive for going there, he was a British subject by virtue of the Order in Council.—*GOUT v. custodian. In an action to obtain release of their property:—Held: the onus was on pltfs. to show that they had lost their original German nationality before Jan. 10, 1920, & not on deft. to disprove it.

Pltfs. had left their birthplace, Idar, in the district of Birkenfeld, about 1893, & with the exception of short annual visits to their mother, & in the case of one, six weeks' military training in 1896, they had resided uninterruptedly out of Germany from 1893 to 1917 or 1918, when they were repatriated, after war internment, to Idar, where according to the police register entries, if genuine, they were registered as stateless on their arrival, & also on their departure for Amsterdam in 1920. On Jan. 29, 1923, the Birkenfeld Govt. after inquiry as to the period of pltfs.' absence from Germany, & as to their German visits during that period, granted them certificates to the effect that during that period they had forfeited their German nationality by ten years' "uninterrupted" residence abroad within North German Nationality Law, 1870, s. 21, & were therefore stateless on Jan. 10, 1920. These certificates were based on the view of the Administrative Cts. which, in considering whether German visits break the ten years' period, look to the number, length, purpose & intent of those visits. They were, however directly contrary to the view of the Leipzig Reichsgericht, which holds that the smallest visit, accidental or otherwise, breaks the period:—Held: (2) the certificates, which were admittedly only prima facie evidence & open to review in any German ct., were not conclusive in an English ct., & the onus was on pltfs. to substantiate them; (3) if the Leipzig ct. view was right, the certificates were invalid; (4) even if the Administrative Ct. view was right, pltfs. had failed to satisfy the English ct. that an Administrative Ct. on being informed of all the circumstances, including fraudulent conduct by pltfs., applications as German nationals in 1915 & 1921, & previous false statements as to their German visits, would necessarily uphold the certificates; (5) having regard to the conflict of opinion in the German cts., pltfs. had failed to discharge the onus of proving that by unquestionable & undoubted German law they had lost their nationality on Jan. 10, 1920.—HAHN v. PUBLIC TRUSTEE, [1925] Ch. 715; 95 L. J. Ch. 9; 133 L. T. 713; 14 T. L. R. 586; 69 Sol. Jo. 824.

— British subject marrying German & naturalised as German during war.]—By a settlement dated in 1902 a fund of £5,000 was vested in trustees on trust to invest & pay the income of the trust funds to H. during his life or until he should become bkpt. or charge it, "or until some event shall happen . . . whereby the income or any part thereof if belonging absolutely to him would become vested or charged in favour of some other person or persons or corpn.," & in the event of the determination during the life of H., of the above trust in his favour the trustees were given a discretion to apply the income for the benefit of all or any the said H., & his present or any other after-taken wife & his issue & the persons interested for the time being under the ulterior trusts, & subject thereto, were directed to hold the capital & income of the trust funds upon trust for the benefit of the issue of H. & in default of issue upon trust for H.'s nephews & nieces. H. was born in England of English parents but had resided in Germany since 1906 & had been twice married there to German wives. During the war, on Aug. 8, 1916, he obtained a certificate of naturalisation as a German. In these circumstances a summons was taken out by the trustees to have it determined whether the life interest of H. in the funds was forfeited by the charge imposed on property of German nationals in this country on Jan. 10, 1920, by the Treaty of Peace with Germany, art. 297, or Treaty of Peace Order, 1 '19, & how the income accrued since Aug. 4, 1914, ought to be disposed of. It was admitted at the hearing on behalf of H. that in a German ct. applying German law he would be recognised as a German citizen. No question arose as to the income before Nov. 4, 1915, which had been paid over to H.'s agent:—Held: (1) the decision whether a person was a German national within the Treaty & Order fell to be determined exclusively by German municipal law, & accordingly H. was a German national; (2) H.'s interest under the settlement was forfeited as on Jan. 10, 1920, & subject to the payment of costs the accumulations of income in the trustees' hands from Nov. 4, 1915, to Jan. 10, 1920, must be paid to the custodian.—*Re CHAMBERLAIN'S SETTLEMENT, CHAMBERLAIN v. Pltf., who was born in Ireland, having become a naturalised American citizen, returned to Ireland in 1916 & took part in the rebellion of Easter, 1916, & was interned. On his release he took part in illegal drilling, &, on being arrested in Ireland, a sum of money was found upon him, which was taken & detained by the police authorities, the seizure & detention being subsequently ratified by the Chief Secretary for Ireland. In an action by pltf. against the Chief Comr. of the Police for the recovery of the money, deft. pleaded that pltf. was an alien & that the money was detained by direction of the Crown as an act of State :—Held : the plea was bad & pltf. was entitled to judgment.

- 140a. Member of Stock Exchange.—By the rules of the London Stock Exchange each member is elected for one year only, & must come up for re-election annually under rule 21, which provides that the committee shall on the first Monday in March proceed (inter alia) to elect such members as they shall deem eligible to be members of the Stock Exchange during the following year commencing on Mar. 25 then instant. In 1917 an objection was lodged against the re-election of applt., who was a British subject naturalised in this country & denationalised in Germany, at the election to be held in March of that year, on the ground of his enemy birth. Upon the invitation of the committee applt., first in a letter & afterwards at an interview, set forth various facts in proof of his loyalty to the country of his adoption, but eventually the committee refused to re-elect him. Applt. impeached this decision on the ground that the committee had acted arbitrarily & capriciously & had been influenced by irrelevant considerations :—Held : the decision of the committee had proceeded solely upon the ground of applt.'s enemy birth, & before deeming him ineligible for re-election on that ground he had been given an opportunity of being heard. The committee having acted honestly & fairly in the exercise of their discretion & within their competence, it was not open to any ct. to review their decision.—WEINBERGER v. INGLIS, [1919] A. 198a. —.]— Jan. 1914, pltfs. entered into a contract with defts., who were a co. incorporated under the laws of Belgium & had their registered office at Antwerp, to sell to them manganese ore deliverable in certain quantities during the second half of 1914 & the three following years alongside steamer in Bombay. In Sept. 1914, when the German armies were threatening Antwerp, the managing director of deft. co. removed all the co.'s goods & the money in bank to London & came himself to London, & there, without any formal authority from the co., carried on business in his own name, but for the benefit of the co. After the German occupation of Antwerp the German authorities placed the co. under compulsory administration. During the German occupation, meetings of the directors & shareholders were held at which formal business was transacted. These meetings were held so as to comply with Belgian law & to keep the co. in existence. The co. also collected & paid debts due to & owing by it in order to prevent the German authorities from winding up the co. & investing the uncalled capital in German War Loan, & with the like object it created a debt against its uncalled capital in favour of its bankers for the purpose of paying arrears of dividend on its preference shares. Pltfs. contended that the co. was an enemy, & they claimed a declaration that the contract was dissolved & was no longer binding on them:—Held: pltfs. were entitled to the declaration claimed; though acts which were necessary merely for the purpose of keeping the co. in existence might not amount to "carrying on business" within the Proclamation of Sept. 14, 1915, the collection of debts & discharge of liabilities with the intention of continuing the business amounted to a "carrying on business," & constituted the co. an "enemy" within the Proclamation.—CENTRAL INDIA MINING CO. v. At the end of the first year there was a balance in favour of pltfs. In an action to recover the amount of the balance defts. pleaded that as the Bolsheviks had in Nov. 1917, usurped supreme power in Russia, & as the British Govt. was carrying on warlike operations against them pltfs. were alien enemies, & that owing to the entire suspension of business in Petrograd by reason of the usurpation the basis of the contract had been destroyed:—Held: as the Bolshevik Govt. had not been recognised by this country as the Russian Govt., & as pltfs. had not adhered to the Bolsheviks pltfs. were not alien enemies; & as defts. with knowledge of the facts had continued to treat the contract as alive by crediting pltfs. with premiums & debiting them with losses, the Bolshevik revolution had not so destroyed the basis of the contract as to put an end to it, & pltfs. were entitled to recover.—EASTERN CARRYING INSURANCE CO. v. 215 i. Licensed to trade for limited purposes—Banking transactions.]—The London agency of a German bank, which at the outbreak of war in 1914 became an enemy, held a bill, drawn by a German subject & accepted by a Scotsman, which had been sent from Germany for collection. It had been the practice of the bank that, if bills so sent were dishonoured, no legal proceedings were taken against acceptors in Great Britain, but the bills were retransmitted to the German office so that proceedings might be taken in the German cts. against the German indorsers. Licences covering the whole period of the war were issued to the London agency, empowering it to carry on banking business under supervision, to the extent of completing current transactions, so as to make its realisable assets available to its creditors, "so far as those transactions would in ordinary course have been carried out through" the London establishment. The bill having been dishonoured on presentation, was retained by the London agency, which debited the German office with the amount, & filed a letter, which owing to war conditions could not be sent, to the German office intimating the circumstances. In an action on the bill brought in 1922 by the Public Trustee against the Scottish acceptor:—Held: as an action on the bill was not a

referred to the registrar & merchants for assessment. Before defts. had filed their claim in the registry the war had broken out. A few days before the Peace Treaty was ratified the claim & vouchers were filed, but by consent they were treated as having been filed after the ratification. Thereupon pl'tfs. took out a summons for an order to set aside the filing & service of the claim & vouchers on the ground that under arts. 296 & 297 of the Treaty & Treaty of Peace Order, 1919, s. 1 (xvi & xvii), the parties had no right to litigate the claim in the registry, inasmuch as, being a debt owing to German nationals, it had to be settled through the intervention of clearing houses:—Held: (1) defts.' claim was not a debt but a right, which by the Peace Treaty, art. 297, was subject to the right to be retained & liquidated "in accordance with the law of the allied State . . . concerned," namely, Great Britain; (2) not being a debt, art. 296 did not apply; (3) although defts. would not be able to handle the sum awarded, there was nothing in art. 297 or in Treaty of Peace Order, s. 1 (xvii) to deprive defts. of their right to proceed to a reference, or to prevent pl'tfs. paying money into ct. with a notice that it was in satisfaction of the claim of German subjects.—THE MARIE GARTZ, [1920] P. 172; 89 L. No part of the annuities could be paid to the annuitants during the war by reason of Trading with the Enemy Amendment Act, 1914 (c. 12), but accumulations were retained by the exors., as no order was made under sect. 4 of the Act vesting the annuitants' interests in the custodian:—Held: (1) as the Act of 1914 only suspended payments to the alien enemies & did not determine the ownership & ultimate destination of their annuities, those annuities were not forfeited ab initio; (2) the annuities were forfeited & determined in the case of the German nationals as from Jan. 10, 1920, by the charge imposed by the Treaty of Peace with Germany & Treaty of Peace Order, 1919, & in the case of the Austrian national as from July 16, 1920, by the charge imposed by the Treaty of Peace with Austria & Treaty of Peace (Austria) Order, 1920; (3) the accumulations of the annuities until those respective dates became subject to the charges & payable therefore to the custodian or the administrator of Austrian property as the case might be.—*Re LEVINSTEIN, LEVINSTEIN v. 215g. — — — — —.]—Under the trusts of a marriage settlement of 1903 & in the events that had happened certain infant children, German nationals, were on Jan. 10, 1920, when the Peace Treaty came into operation, entitled contingently on attaining twenty-one or marrying to an annuity of £150 a year. If neither infant attained a vested interest the annuity passed to the husband, also a German national. The annuity was secured by the covenant of the wife's parents with the trustees, all British subjects, & was payable during the lives of the surviving covenantor & the surviving child, but the trustees were not to be liable for any loss occasioned by their neglect to enforce the covenant. The infants' contingent title accrued in possession on the wife's death on July 17, 1918, but the trustees had not enforced the payment of any instalment since then. The custodian having claimed the annuity, the trustees submitted the matter to the ct. The custodian had not obtained a vesting order:—Held: both the arrears & the contingent future instalments payable after Jan. 10, 1920, were property rights or interests within Peace Treaty Order, 1919, s. 1 (xvi), & notwithstanding the infants' personal incapacity, were caught by the charge.—*Re NEUBURGER'S SETTLEMENT, FORESHEW v. By his will dated Mar. 31, 1911, a testator bequeathed an annuity of £250 to an Austrian national "until he shall die or voluntarily or involuntarily alienate or encumber . . . the same." Testator died on Aug. 22, 1914, during the war. The annuity was therefore accumulated in the hands of his legal personal representative, who made the proper returns to the custodian under Trading with the Enemy Amendment Act, 1914 (c. 12), s. 3, but no vesting order was made under sect. 4. By Treaty of Peace (Austria) Order, 1920, the annuity & its accumulations were, as from July 16, 1920, charged in favour of the administrator of Austrian Property, to secure (inter alia) payment of debts owing by Austrian to British nationals:—Held: (1) the accumulations up to July 16, 1920, passed to the administrator of Austrian property; (2) the charge created by Treaty of Peace Order was not an involuntary alienation or encumbrance within the meaning of the will, so that the current annuity since July 16, 1920, was not forfeited, but was payable to the administrator of Austrian property.—*Re BIEDERMANN, BEST v. 215l. ——— Belonging to foreign bank in liquidation.]—Pltfs. were the receivers of the Austro-Hungarian Bank appointed by the Reparations Commission under Treaty of Peace with Austria, art. 206, & entrusted with the duty of liquidating the bank for the purpose of distributing the liability on the currency notes of the bank among the several States among which the territory of the former Austro-Hungarian monarchy had been divided. Art. 249 of that Treaty provided that "subject to any contrary stipulation" in the Treaty, the British Govt. might retain & liquidate the property in this country of "nationals of the former Austrian Empire" which expression, as the ct. found, included the Austro-Hungarian Bank, & charge it with the payment of claims by British nationals in respect of (inter alia) debts due to them by Austrian nationals. By the same article Austria undertook to compensate her own nationals for the retention of & charge upon their property. Defts. were the custodian of enemy property in this country & the administrator appointed by Order in Council to liquidate the property of Austrian nationals in this country & administer the above-mentioned charge. Pltfs. claimed that art. 206 was a "contrary stipulation" within art. 249, that the property of the bank in this country was consequently not subject to the charge, & that they & not defts. were entitled to administer that property:—Held: there was no inconsistency between the two articles, which dealt with different subject matters, the only effect of art. 249 upon the liquidation under art. 206 being to replace the assets of Austrian nationals in this country by assets of equal value in Austria if the Austrian Govt. carried out its undertaking, & the action must be dismissed.—*LUXARDO v. 215m. ——— Policy money—Payable in England.]—Pltf. co. was incorporated by special Act of the Legislature of New York, & had its central office & the bulk of its assets in New York. The co. had a branch in London, & in most of the capitals of Europe, the branch in Paris being its head office for Europe. The general manager of the London branch had no general authority to issue policies in this country. Certain life policies signed by the president & secretary of the co. & countersigned by the general manager for Europe were issued in London to German nationals before the outbreak of the war. The policies were not under seal. The policy moneys were expressed to be payable in London, but all premiums were payable either at the central office in New York or at the office where the insurance was payable & proofs of death were to be furnished at the New York office. An indorsement on the policy provided that it should be construed according to English law. In an action to determine whether the policy moneys payable under the policies in question, which had matured on or before Jan. 10, 1920, the date when the Treaty of Peace with Germany came into force, were "property, rights & interests within His Majesty's Dominions" belonging to German nationals, & as such were subject to the charge created by Treaty of Peace Order, 1919, s. 1 (xvi):—Held: (1) there was nothing in art. 299 of s. V. of the Peace Treaty, or in par. 11 of the annex thereto, to indicate that the property, rights, & interests of the assured under such contracts were to be excluded from the general charge under par. 4 of the annex to s. IV.; (2) inasmuch as a corpn. might have a dual residence, & there was evidence that pltfs. were resident both in New York & in London carrying on business in both places & in both places being subject to the jurisdiction of the cts., it was permissible & necessary to look at the terms of the contracts & to determine from them at what place the debts would be recoverable. Applying that test in the present case, the debts were recoverable in London where they were expressed to be payable, & that being so, they were situate within His Majesty's Dominions & became subject to the charge.—*NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE CO. v. of a quantity of nitrate, delivery of which was to be made to defts.' agent alongside the vessel at Iquique, & payment for which was to be made in London after presentation of bills of lading. Several cargoes were shipped, but war broke out before the vessels arrived at their destination & before the bills of lading, which were made out to order, could be presented. In these circumstances defts. procured delivery to their sub-purchasers by giving an indemnity to the ships, & presumably received payment for the nitrate from their sub-purchasers. After an interval the German sellers duly notified their claim for the price of the nitrate & for interest to the German clearing office, which in turn passed it on to the British clearing office. Defts. were prepared to pay what the Germans claimed as the price of the goods, though they disputed the existence of any debt, either in the strict legal sense or in the sense in which the expression is used in Treaty of Peace, art. 296, & they disputed the claim for interest. As the Treaty only contemplated the admission of debts, & defts. were prepared to pay the amount claimed as the price of the goods, the British clearing office admitted the debt, & the principal money was cleared in 1923. At a later period the claim for interest was again put forward. This claim defts. still disputed, but the two clearing offices arrived at a joint decision that interest was payable upon the principal sum admitted by the British clearing office. Notice of the decision was conveyed to defts. in a letter dated Sept. 13, 1923. The decision took the form of an intimation that the British & German clearing offices had jointly agreed that interest in accordance with par. 22 of the annex to sect. III. of Part X. of the Treaty was payable upon the admitted debt at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum calculated from dates specified. The notice then continued as follows: "In default of a notice of appeal under r. 22 of the Rules of Procedure of the Anglo-German Mixed Arbitral Tribunal, the interest on the said sum of . . . at the rate of 5 per cent. from (the date named) to the date of crediting & advice to the German clearing office will be credited by the British clearing office to the German clearing office." No appeal was brought, & after the expiry of the time for appealing, pltf., the controller of the British clearing office, sought to enforce this joint decision by action on the ground that a joint decision unappealed from should, on a true construction of the Peace Treaty, be regarded in the same light as if it was a foreign judgment, or the award of an arbitrator, & should, therefore, be enforced by the cts. of this country on the same principle as either a foreign judgment or an award is enforced:—Held: under Treaty of Peace, art. 296, as carried out by Treaty of Peace Act, 1919, & Treaty of Peace Order, 1919, the joint decisions of the clearing offices were not in the nature of judgments or of awards under an arbn., so as themselves to be enforceable by action, & therefore the action failed.—*CLEARING OFFICE CONTROLLER v. The Dresdner Bank accepted the bills at their London branch & received as security Russian promissory notes. Defts. provided no funds to meet the bills when they fell due &, under an arrangement between the Treasury & the Bank of England, the amount payable was discharged by the Bank of England. By 1917 the Dresdner Bank in London had repaid the sum due for principal & interest to the Bank of England. In 1918 the Board of Trade, under the above Act, ordered the business carried on by the Dresdner Bank in London to be wound up, & appointed a controller to wind up the business, with power to collect all moneys owing to the bank & to bring actions in the name of the bank:—Held: (1) the transaction was part of the "business" of the London branch of the Dresdner Bank; defts.' liability to put the Dresdner Bank in funds to meet the bills was an asset of the London branch within the above sect., even if the London branch accepted the bills on the instructions of the head office in Berlin & debited the current account of the head office with the amount paid on the bills, & defts. were liable to repay pl'ts. the money paid by them to the Bank of England in respect of the bills with simple interest at 5 per cent. on each instalment from the date of payment; (2) the action by the controller in the name of the Dresdner Bank (London Agency) was not an action in the name of a branch of that bank but an action in the name of the Dresdner Bank, & the addition of the words "London Agency," being merely descriptive, did not change pl'ts. from being the Dresdner Bank into something unknown to the law as a legal person.—DRESDNER BANK v. 223d. At the outbreak of war in 1914, a British subject, resident in England, & three German subjects, resident in Germany, were carrying on business in partnership in London. The outbreak of war having dissolved the partnership, the British partner with the sanction of the Home Office proceeded to wind up the business. He got in a large sum of money, representing assets of the business, & discharged nearly all the liabilities, & had a balance in hand. The controller, appointed in 1918 under Trading with the Enemy Acts, 1916 (c. 105) & 1918 (c. 31), sued, in the name of the firm, the British partner for the balance of assets. Deft. contended that he had himself claims against the business, & that he was entitled to the taking of partnership accounts to ascertain those claims before paying over the assets:—Held: under the Acts, the controller had not the powers of a trustee in bkpcy., his outside powers being those of a liquidator in a voluntary winding up, & he could not therefore override the ordinary law of partnership which entitled deft. to the taking of accounts between himself & the other partners.—*MEYER & Co. v. sect. 1 (1) of the above Act to wind up the English business of an enemy co. or firm, does not represent the co. or firm. His duties are to get in the assets & discharge the liabilities of the business.

By an agreement, dated Mar. 28, 1913, H. was engaged as manager of the Newcastle branch of a German co. registered in Holland until June 30, 1918, at a salary of not less than £1,000 per annum. On Aug. 14, 1916, the Board of Trade made an order to wind up the business & appointed a controller under sect. 1 (1) of the above Act. On Aug. 31, 1916, the controller dispensed with the services of H. At that date H. had in his possession certain moneys of the business, which he claimed to retain, as against the controller, to satisfy his claim for damages for breach by the co. of the agreement:—Held: the claim was against the co., & not against the business, & H. was not entitled to retain the moneys as against the controller.—*Re VULCAAN COAL CO., HARRISON v. By the appointment of new directors the co. came under British management. In Dec. 1915, M. Co. agreed to sell, & F. Co. to buy, the whole output of M. Co. until six months after the declaration of peace between England & Germany. In 1919 the Board of Trade, under the above Act, ordered the business of M. Co. to be wound up & the controller sold the business:—Held: although at the outbreak of war M. Co. became an alien enemy, yet its business could be lawfully carried on under new non-enemy management even if enemy shareholders might after the war benefit by such trading, & although it was in consequence of the winding-up order that M. Co. was unable to carry out its contract, it was liable in damages to F. Co. for breach of contract.—Re BRITISH INCANDESCENT MANTLE WORKS, LTD. (1923), 129 L. T. 126; 39 T. L. R. 244; 67 Sol. Jo. 517.

235a. ——— To wind up partnership—Parties.—At the outbreak of war three German subjects were carrying on business in London in co-partnership with F., their English partner. Under the partnership articles F. was the managing partner in London, & on the dissolution by the declaration of war he carried on the business & collected the assets with the view of liquidation. No accounts had been taken between the partners since Dec. 31, 1913. F. died in 1920, & deft. was his legal personal representative. By an order of the Board of Trade it was ordered that all the property, rights, & interests of the three German partners in the assets of the firm in respect of any claim against the English partner, or his estate, should vest in pltf., who should take all necessary proceedings to collect what might be due to the German partners. In an action by pltf. as custodian of enemy property with the object of winding up the partnership he claimed an account against deft. of all dealings between the German partners & the English partner, including all dealings with the partnership assets since the dissolution, payment of what should be found due, & an inquiry of what the partnership property consisted. The German partners were not added as pltf.s. in the action:—Held: in the absence of the German partners as parties to the action no such relief as was asked could be granted, & the action failed.—*PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. On the declaration of war between Great Britain & Austria the vessel was nearing completion, & the purchasers had paid instalments of the price amounting to £79,732. On Feb. 17, 1915, the Admty. requisitioned the ship as she then stood at the price of £86,000, but it was not until July 30, 1917, that the Admty. paid the builders that sum, & they refused to pay any interest from the date of requisition. On Dec. 1, 1917, the Board of Trade pronounced an order vesting the sum of £79,732, with interest from the date of receipt of the instalments, in the custodian for Scotland under the above Act:—Held: the custodian was entitled to decree for £79,732 with interest from the date of the interlocutor of the First Division.—*PENNEY v. His daughter was married to a German national, & was residing in Germany at the time of her father's death. W.'s widow was a citizen of the United States. Early in 1917, an agreement was made by the trustee & the wife & daughter, pursuant to clause 11 of the will, by which, in effect, it was agreed that the whole of the assets in Ontario should be allocated to the widow. In May, 1919, an application was made to the ct., by the Secretary of State for Canada, for an order vesting in the custodian appointed under Consolidated Orders respecting Trading with the Enemy, 1916, one-half of the assets situated in Ontario of the estate of W., on the ground that the said half belonged to or was held or managed for or on behalf of W.'s daughter, who was an enemy. 237b. Right to dividends—On shares held by alien enemies.]—An English co. had certain alien enemy shareholders & certain assets in Germany. From time to time after the outbreak of the war with Germany, resolutions were passed by the directors & by the co. in general meeting declaring interim & final dividends respectively, subject in each case to a condition that as regards members of the co. resident in Germany, Austria & Turkey, the dividend should be payable only out of assets in Germany, & as regards members resident elsewhere out of assets in England. By an order made on Aug. 24, 1916, under sect. 4 (1) of the above Act, it was ordered that the right to transfer the shares held by alien enemies & to receive any dividends "now due & to accrue due thereon" vested in the custodian, & the shares were transferred into his name in due course:—Held: the resolutions, so far as they provided for payment only out of assets in Germany, were void as against the custodian, & the co. was liable out of any assets in its hands to pay him the amounts of the dividends, whether declared before or after the vesting order.—*ARAMAYO FRANCKE MINES, LTD. v. 237c. — Part of trust income—Payable to enemy.]—(1) Held: sect. 2 (1) of the above Act related only to moneys payable under contractual obligations arising out of loans, partnership or membership of a co., & not to trust income payable by trustees to an enemy even when the income was derived from dividends on shares.

(2) By his will a testator, who died in 1904, bequeathed his estate upon trusts whereby the residue & the proceeds of sale thereof were to go in equal shares to his children; & he directed his trustees to retain the share of each of his daughters upon trust during the life of the daughter to pay the annual income to her for her separate use without power of anticipation & until she should do or suffer any act or thing whereby the same, if payable to her absolutely or any part thereof, might have become payable or forfeited to or vested in any other person. In the event of a forfeiture under this provision the income was given upon a discretionary trust during the remainder of the life of the daughter, & subject thereto the daughter's share was to be held in trust for her children & issue as therein mentioned. One of the testator's daughters had intermarried with a German in 1908, & had since resided in Germany. Since the coming into force of the above Act, the trustees had accumulated the income of her share, which amounted on Jan. 10, 1920, the date of the ratification of the Treaty of Peace with Germany, to about £4,000:—Held: the daughter's life interest was not determined on the coming into force of the above Act, but ceased on Jan. 10, 1920, by reason of the Treaty of Peace charge, & the accumulations of income up to that date were subject to the charge.—*Re HALLENSTEIN, HALSTED v. 237d. Liability of custodian for super tax.]—Property belonging to an enemy which is paid to or vested in the custodian under the above Act is, pending its disposition by Order in Council after the termination of the war, removed from the control & beneficial ownership of the enemy. During the interval the beneficial ownership is in statutory suspense or abeyance, the custodian having meanwhile limited powers of dealing with the property.

When war broke out in 1914, M., an enemy within the Act, owned real estate in England & shares & securities in British cos. By orders under sect. 4 of the Act the real estate, shares & securities were vested in the custodian. The Special Comrs. for Income Tax assessed the custodian to super tax as agent or receiver for M. The custodian disputed the legality of the assessment:—Held: (1) M.'s beneficial ownership of the property having ceased on the making of the vesting orders, the profits & gains received by the custodian were received by him in respect of M., but did not in his hands belong to M.; he did not receive or hold them as agent or receiver or trustee for M. within 5 & 6 Vict. c. 35, s. 41, & therefore, he was not liable to be assessed to super tax; (2) as M. could not, after the war, ask to receive back the property except on the footing that a sum equal to the amount of super tax which, but for the war, he would have been liable to pay was paid, the custodian must, under the discretion given to the ct. by sect. 5 (1) of the Act of 1914, pay that sum to the Comrs. as analogous to payment of a debt under sect. 5 (2).—Re MÜNSTER, [1920] 1 Ch. 268; 89 L. Deft., a Norwegian subject, living in England, incurred a debt to pltf., an Austrian co., before the outbreak of war. After the Treaty of Peace pltf. sued deft. for the amount:—Held: although the claim was against a neutral subject, yet, as Treaty of Peace Order, s. 7, made the debt payable to the administrator & transferred to him all the rights of the creditors, pltf. had no right to bring the action.—*JOSEF INWALD ACT. v. 390 i. "Act B.," s. 6—Assignment of chose in action to British firm.—[In payment of debt.].—An Austrian firm was indebted to a London firm at the commencement of the war. On Sept. 25, 1914, the Austrian firm wrote a letter purporting to be an assignment to the London firm of a debt due to them by B. The letter contained an enclosure signed by the Austrian firm addressed to B. amounting to a notice of assignment of the debt. In the following December the London firm forwarded it to B.:—Held: as the transaction of Sept. 25 amounted to a valid equitable assignment of a chose in action for valuable consideration, it was not illegal as contravening the above sect.—GRUNDY v. Defts. were a firm of merchants, British subjects, carrying on business in Bombay. On June 24, 1914, A., a German subject, drew a bill of exchange upon defts. in favour of pltfs. The bill purported to be drawn upon defts. against fifty bales of goods per a German steamer. The bill was accepted by defts. on July 20, 1914, payable at the office of pltfs. in Bombay. The steamer reached Bombay just before the outbreak of war, & in order to evade capture left Bombay & took shelter in a neutral port. The bill was presented for payment on the due date with the shipping documents attached but was dishonoured by non-payment. Pltfs. filed a suit on Sept. 30, 1915, to recover the amount due on the bill:—Held: plffs. were entitled to succeed, as by the above Proclamation the consignees were permitted to take delivery of goods from enemy ships in neutral ports.—MOTISHAW & Co. v. MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA (1916), I. L. R. 41 Bom. 566.—IND.

At the outbreak of war between Great Britain & Turkey deft. bank, a Turkish subject, was the holder of sight bills for the invoice amount in sterling of goods consigned by pltf. to Beyrout, which had arrived there shortly before the outbreak of war, & were subsequently delivered to the customers by deft. bank against payment in piastres. At the conclusion of the war deft. bank claimed the right to pay to pltf. an amount in sterling representing the then value of the piastres which they had received in payment for the goods. Pltf. claimed to be paid the sterling amount of the bills, or, in the alternative, damages for their conversion:—Held: (1) as the bank in Beyrout accepted the payment in lawful money from the Syrian merchant & handed over the goods, it constituted itself, as in a question with the drawer, debtor for the sterling amount on the face of the bill; (2) it was not every contract that was abrogated by the war; it was only a contract which was still executory & which for its execution required intercourse between the British subject & the enemy, & as the contract had been partially carried out, the bills had been indorsed, & the bank had been handed them together with the indorsed bills of lading, from that a subsidiary contract arose, namely, that on payment of the bills the shipping documents should be handed over, to execute which no intercourse between a British subject & the enemy was necessary; & the bank was entitled to do what it did, & there could be no question of conversion, & having constituted themselves debtors in sterling, in sterling they must pay. —*OTTOMAN BANK v. 405a. — — — — —.]—For many years there existed in Germany works for the manufacture of dyestuffs (Farbenfabriken), belonging to a German concern which carried on business in England through agents. In 1878 the agents were a partnership firm consisting of A. & two other persons. In 1895 A. was the sole partner. In that year a limited co. was formed & registered in England, & in 1898 its name was changed to B. Co. Its original capital was £5,000, divided into 500 shares of £10 each of which

A. held five shares & the German concern 470. In 1905 the capital was increased to £25,000 by the issue of 2,000 new shares fully paid, & in 1909 it was increased to £100,000, by the issue of 7,500 like shares. At the times material the German concern held 9,912 shares & A. twenty shares. By an agreement dated in 1910 between the German concern & B. Co., the district of the German concern was defined as the whole world outside the United Kingdom with the Channel Islands & the Isle of Man, & the district of B. Co. as the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands & the Isle of Man. The German concern bound itself not to import goods into B. Co.'s district except for the purposes of B. Co., & B. Co. bound itself not to import into the German concern's district except for the purposes of the German concern. By an agreement, dated in 1912, between the same parties & operative for seven years, the German concern bound itself to sell to B. Co. & to no one else in the United Kingdom for sale in the United Kingdom anilines & chemicals manufactured by the German concern, & B. Co. bound itself to buy from the German concern & from no other manufacturer such dyestuffs. By unwritten agreement B. Co. was bound from its inception to import only from the German concern. From the time of the registration of B. Co. A.'s firm ceased to act as agents for the German concern. B. Co. sold not in the name of the German concern, but in its own name, & as a principal; but it announced to the world on its office windows, & to its customers on notepaper & other documents & by books, catalogues & samples, that it was the sole importer in England of the manufactures of the German concern. It was thus brought home to the customers that they were buying the produce of the German concern as before. The new régime was in effect a continuation of the agency though legally the agency had ceased. The business of B. Co. was conducted by A. & another director, both resident in England. The German concern supplied them with lists of prices to be charged by the German concern to B. Co., B. Co. making a profit by selling to customers at a price higher than the list. If an English customer offered to buy at a price lower than the list, the German concern would reduce its price to B. Co. accordingly. The overwhelming shareholding of the German concern in B. Co. caused it to be vitally interested, as seller & buyer, in the contract between itself & B. Co. & as seller in the contract between B. Co. & its customer. Down to the outbreak of war between England & Germany on Aug. 4, 1914, the ment were varied:—Held: the agreement of Sept. 1914, was not rendered null & void by s. 3 (6) of the above Act, nor by Trading with the Enemy Act 1914.

The goods were shipped on July 2, 1914, per a German steamer, which was subsequently captured with her cargo & condemned by the Prize Ct.:—Held: the contract under which the goods would be delivered in the Hooghly became impossible by the outbreak of war within Indian Contract Act, s. 56, & was void.—

sp. Debtor of alien enemy—Payment of interest in respect of transaction entered into before outbreak of war—Right to repayment.]—Where a person indebted to an alien enemy had paid interest in respect of a transaction entered into before the outbreak of hostilities & sought a refund of the amount paid for the period between the outbreak of hostilities & the date of a licence to trade obtained by the enemy firm:—Held: he was not entitled to such refund, as there was no suspension of interest in respect of such transactions during that period.—*VALLI, ETC. v. sq. Erection of machinery—Replacement of defective parts.]—In Mar. 1913, resps. contracted to supply & erect control of B. Co., its business, affairs & acts, were in the hands of the German concern. On Apr. 1, 1914, B. Co. entered into a contract with a British firm for a supply to the firm of dyestuffs, identified by letters & numbers as the manufacture of the German concern or of other German manufacturers, of which samples from Germany were in the possession of the British firm. It was provided that any duties imposed by the British Govt. on the goods should be paid by the British firm or the price should be advanced accordingly. It was further provided that deliveries or orders off the contract might be suspended by either party if any contingency should arise beyond the control of the parties, such as fire, accidents, war, strikes, or the like. The contract covered a period unexpired at the outbreak of war. At that date quantities of dyestuffs remained undelivered & were never afterwards delivered. An order was made by the Board of Trade, under Trading with the Enemy Amendment Act, 1916 (c. 105), s. 1, for the winding up of the business of B. Co., & a controller appointed. In the winding up the British firm claimed damages for breach of contract in the non-fulfilment of deliveries. The controller resisted the claim on the grounds: (a) that the contract was dissolved at the outbreak of war, because B. Co. was an enemy or of enemy character, because the parties contracted on the footing that the goods should come from Germany, & because continued existence or performance of the contract would involve intercourse with, or tend to assist the enemy; (b) that owing to the suspension clause no right to damages had yet arisen; (c) that the object of the contract had been frustrated, because the period of suspension was indefinite & beyond the contemplation of the parties, because performance of the contract was prevented by Govt. action or embargo, & because the basis of the contract was that the importation of the goods to be supplied should continue to be possible & by reason of war it was rendered impossible. On application to the ct. by the controller for directions whether the claim should be admitted as a debt due from B. Co.:—Held: (1) at the date of the outbreak of war B. Co. assumed enemy character, & accordingly, the contract became dissolved by the outbreak of war as being a current contract entered into with a co. which eo instanti assumed enemy character; (2) the abrogation of the contract by outbreak of war being founded on public policy, the presence of a suspension clause in the event of war did not assist the claimant, & if "war" in the clause included war between England & Germany the clause was void as against public policy, & the claim must be rejected; (3) assuming that B. Co. had not assumed enemy character at the outbreak of war, the claim must fail on the following grounds: that, the contract being for the supply of goods to be obtained from Germany, further performance on the outbreak of war involved intercourse with the enemy & became illegal accordingly; that, the contracts having been made on the basis that the existing commercial conditions would continue & that the basis having ceased to exist by outbreak of war between England & Germany, the commercial object of the contract had been frustrated, & the contract was dissolved at the outbreak of war; (4) the suspension clause was not intended by the parties to apply to war between England & Germany; (5) the doctrine of frustration applied to contracts for the sale of unascertained goods.—Re BADISCHE CO., LTD., Re BAYER CO., LTD., Re GRIESHEIM ELEKTRON, LTD., Re KALLE & CO., LTD., Re BERLIN ANILINE CO., LTD., Re MEISTER LUCIUS & BRUNING, LTD., [1921] 2 Ch. 331; 91 L. He subsequently became a resident in London & was charged & convicted for that, being an alien, he had failed to furnish to a registration officer the particulars required by Aliens Restriction (Consolidated) Order, 1916, & his conviction was afterwards upheld by a Div. Ct. In an action brought by pltf. against the A.-G. for a declaration that he was no alien in England, but a liege subject of His Majesty the King, & entitled to the protection of His Majesty the King in all parts of His Majesty's Kingdom & Dominions:—Held: neither the taking of the oath of allegiance alone, nor the taking of the oath coupled with the grant of the certificate in Australia, made pltf. a British subject in the United Kingdom, & he was, therefore, an alien when in the United Kingdom, & the declaration must be refused. Pltf. was at least to this extent to be regarded as an alien, that he was a person so described in British Nationality & Status of Aliens Act, 1914 (c. 17), & for the purposes of that Act. Another bye-law prescribed what should constitute a lawful fence. Nothing was said as to what should be the effect of a lawful fence, & no bye-law was passed for the purposes of Municipal Act, Man., s. 602 (d):—Held: the effect of the first-mentioned bye-law was to permit cattle, other than those excepted in it, to run at large between certain dates, & in this it ousted the common law liability of the owner of the cattle for damages caused by them when so running at large, & such damages were not recoverable even if the land where the damage was done was surrounded by a lawful fence.

(2) The bye-law also provided that nothing therein contained should prevent the owner of any lands trespassed upon or of any property destroyed from waiving rights created by that bye-law & bringing his action in any competent ct. in consequence of any trespass:—Held: that provision gave no right of action taken away by the other bye-law provision.—*JUKES v. 194 i. — Remoteness of damage.—Damages for personal injuries suffered by the rider of a horse from a kick by a neighbour's trespassing horse are not too remote where the trespassing horse's owner knows that the neighbour frequently rides on horseback, & where it is customary in the country to ride horses when bringing home horses or cattle.—*WHALLEY v. Damage by reason of the possible influence upon the strain of subsequent offspring was held too remote & uncertain to be considered.—MCLEAN v. BRETT, [1919] 3 W. W. R. 521; 49 D. L. R. 162.—CAN.

194 iii. — —.—Deft.'s trespassing "scrub" bull served pltf.'s young purebred heifer:—Held: pltf. was entitled to damages for the decreased value of the heifer caused by her growth being stunted & shape being affected by being bred at an early age, but not to damages based on a consideration of the effects on the minds of others of an erroneous theory that the heifer was liable to "throw back" to the first bull in future breeding.—*COUSINS v. 195 iv. — —.—Deft.'s cattle trespassed on pltf.'s land which was not enclosed by a lawful fence. Pltf.'s son on horseback was chasing the cattle out when pltf. proceeded on foot to drive a steer through a gateway & was charged by the steer & injured. Deft. had no knowledge that the steer was of a vicious nature or liable to attack persons:—Held: pltf. could not recover damages, as the injury was not an ordinary consequence of the trespass; the damages claimed were too remote, & the proximate cause of the injury was pltf.'s action in approaching the animal on foot which he should not have done.—*HATTON v. y i. Restive horse — Negligence.—Pltf. was driving a motor car when he was held up by the traffic police. Deft.'s driver pulled up his horse & cart between the car & the footpath, & the horse became restive & backed into the motor car, occasioning damage to it. The horse had not previously been known to be restive, & was usually quiet, & the driver was unable to say what had frightened the horse. The driver was not in any way negligent in the manner in which he looked after the horse:—Held: there was no evidence of negligence on the part of the driver of the horse or of deft.—*SARTORI v. - 246a. Bull attacking cow—Bull in auction yard.—In an action for damages arising out of an attack on a cow in an auction yard by a bull which was in charge of deft.'s servants, but otherwise unsecured:—Held: there was no presumption in law that a bull would attack a cow in such circumstances, & for pltf. to succeed it was necessary for him to prove negligence in not having anticipated a probable danger; further, if such negligence were proved, it would be no answer for deft. to set up absence of scienter.—*HINCKES v. - 258a. Mare attacking horse—Strange mare turned into field with horse.—Trespass to person or goods by an animal in which there is at common law a valuable property, such as horses & cattle, does not generally render its owner liable.
Deft. put a mare into a field in which there was a horse belonging to pltf. without by the fact that deceased, though knowing of the possible danger, went about her ordinary business on the farm, in the course of which she was killed.—*TARASOFF v. - 246 iii. —.—]—While deft.'s servants were unloading cattle at a railway station a bullock "got wild" on the platform, rushed upon adjoining ground, was driven back, escaped through a gate, ran through the streets of the city, & injured pltf.:—Held: the bullock on emerging from the railway wagon had displayed its wild condition to deft.'s servants in such a way as to deprive them of the benefit of the doctrine of the prima facie harmlessness of domestic animals as frequenters of the highway, & the duty of controlling it as though it belonged to the class of animals feræ naturæ had fallen on deft. & his servants.—*HOWARD v. notifying pltf. The mare kicked the horse, which had to be destroyed. No scienter was proved in deft., but it was found by the deputy county ct. judge that the propensity of horses running loose to injure one another in sport or quarrel was common knowledge:—Held: (1) the mare was not within the class of dangerous animals which the owner must keep at his peril according to the rule in Fletcher v. Rylands (see No. 195); (2) deft. was entitled to assume that the mare, being mansuetæ naturæ, was an innocent animal, & having no notice of any fact indicating the contrary, was not under any duty towards pltf. to give notice of his intention to place the mare in the field, or to have a person on the watch or in charge of her, & on the whole deft. was not liable either for breach of an absolute duty or for negligence.—*MANTON v. For the purpose of their business they had on their premises a heap of bones, which caused large numbers of rats to assemble there. The rats made their way from defts.' premises on to pltf.'s land, & ate his corn, causing substantial loss, in respect of which pltf. claimed damages from defts. It was not proved that the bones kept by defts. were excessive or unusual in quantity:—Held: no cause of action had been established against defts.—STEARNS v. PRENTICE BROTHERS, LTD., [1919] 1 K. 342a. — Whether breach of covenant not to underlet.]—Where the tenant of a farm covenants not to underlet or permit any other person to use or occupy any part of the demised premises without the written consent of the landlord, the sale or letting by the tenant, without such consent, in the last year of his tenancy of the grass keep—i.e. growing herbage, of his pasture lands for a definite period, is a breach of the covenant, although such sale or letting is in accordance with the usual practice of an outgoing tenant in that part of the country.

Semble: agistment, i.e. the taking in by the tenant of the sheep or cattle of another to be depastured on the farm at so much per head per week, would not be a breach of the covenant.—RICHARDS v. DAVIES, [1921] 1 Ch. 90; 89 L. J. Ch. 601; 124 L. T. 238; 65 Sol. Jo. 44.

346a. — Animal stolen—Duty of agister.]—An agister of cattle does not discharge himself of his duty as a bailee for reward by proving that they were stolen without his default, if by using reasonable diligence he could have recovered them.

If, having failed to use such diligence, he is sued for loss of the cattle, he must prove, in order to discharge himself, that such diligence would have been unavailing; it is not for the bailor to prove that it would have retrieved the loss.

A farmer accepted certain cattle for agistment. Some of them were stolen without his default. After learning that they were missing he made no effort, whether by informing the owner or the police, or otherwise, to recover them. It was doubtful whether any reasonable attempt on his part would have led to their recovery:—Held: he was liable for their loss.—COLDMAN v. HILL, [1919] 1 K. B. 443; 88 L. J. K. B. 491; 120 L. b i. — Construction.]—By a contract for agistment pltf. agreed to make available certain properties for the agistment of deft.'s sheep. The terms of payment were 11d. per head per week, £500 to be paid when the sheep arrived, £500 in six months, & the balance when the sheep were removed:—Held: the payment contemplated by the contract was 11d. per head per week, according to the number of sheep on the properties from time to time; the contract was one for making available the area of land agreed on for the sheep, & included the taking care of the sheep agisted at the above remuneration while they were in pltf.'s custody.—SPRING v. YOUNG, [1923] S. A. S. R. 116.—AUS.

344 xii. — Loss of animals.]—Pltf. was the owner of a mare which he delivered to deft. for agistment in his paddock of 6,000 acres, which paddock was heavily timbered & covered with blackboys. After the mare had remained in the paddock for some time, pltf. requested the delivery of the mare in two months' time. Deft. made endeavours to find the mare, but only saw it on one occasion, & thereafter made many attempts to locate the mare, but without success:—Held: deft. was not liable to pltf. for the value of the mare, there being no evidence of negligence.—ROBINSON v. WATERS (1920), 22 W. A. L. R. 66.—AUS.

344 xiii. — Failure to detect loss within reasonable time.]—A large number of sheep were lost, & there was evidence rendering it probable that these had been driven off the run:—Held: an agister of sheep must show that he took reasonable care to see the sheep were on the agistment area, & failure to detect this loss within a reasonable time was clear evidence of negligence.—SPRING v. YOUNG, [1923] S. A. S. R. 116.—AUS.

362 i. — For malicious injury.]—Appet. had cattle on his land under grazing contracts with the owners. These cattle were maliciously driven off the lands & injured:—Held: appet. as bailee in possession could claim compensation for the cattle entrusted to his care.—WORTHINGTON v. The warranty was fulfilled, but the purchaser wrongfully refused delivery, & returned the horse. The vendor then put it up at auction as “in dispute,” & without a warranty, when it was sold for about £40 less than the contract price. In an action for the difference between the price realised at the auction & the contract price:—Held: (1) this was not the proper form of action; (2) the action must be for damages; (3) the conditions of the auction sale were not a test of the value of the horse, the auction being of a horse “in dispute,” & without warranty, & quite different from the original contract conditions; (4) pltf. was not entitled to more

hired a horse from pltf. to drive from T. to L. & return. At a distance of between six & eight miles from S., the horse fell lame in the right hind leg. Deft. drove it to S., put it in a livery stable & gave instructions to have the hoof of the right hind leg re-shod. Deft. hired another horse & continued his journey to L., a distance of over eight miles. He returned next day, took the horse out, & finding that it was not then lame, started with it on the return journey. After travelling about three miles, the horse again fell lame & kept getting a little lammer all the way to T. The journey from S. to T., a distance of twenty-two miles, took seven & one-half hours. There was no evidence as to what caused the horse's lameness. There was no evidence that there was, between the place where the horse fell lame & T. any suitable place in which the horse could have been placed & cared for, or where deft. could have hired another horse to continue the return journey:—Held: as the lameness when it first developed on the return journey was not shown to have been of a more serious nature than often happens to a horse which may nevertheless walk, or even trot slowly, fifteen to twenty miles without serious distress, deft. could not be held guilty of negligence until he had travelled a sufficient distance to satisfy himself that the lameness was increasing so as to make it dangerous to the welfare of the horse to continue the journey.—GAGNON v. LANGIS (1920), 48 N. B. R. 76.—CAN.

374 ii. ——— Bill of sale granted by bailee—Rights of grantee.—A., the owner of twenty-seven cows depasturing on his farm, agreed to lease his farm & cows to G. for a term of years, & it was agreed that G. should have the right to purchase the farm & stock at any time during the term. G. was given possession of the stock & farm. G. gave to applt. a bill of sale over the cows. A. recovered possession of his farm & cows from G., & shortly thereafter applt. seized & sold the cows under his bill of sale. Thirty-four cows were seized & sold, only nine of which were of the original herd, the balance having been bought by G. during the time he had possession of the farm. A. claimed damages for the seizure:—Held: it had not been shown that the cattle substituted by G. for those originally bailed to him had become the property of A., who was entitled to damages only in respect of the cows originally bailed.—NORFOLK CO-OPERATIVE DAIRY CO., LTD. v. ALLEN, [1924] N. Z. L. R. 136.—N.Z.

374 iii. ——— Loss by bailee—Negligence.—In an action for the value of a horse which was lost after it had been hired to deft. under an agreement whereby the latter undertook to take “good care in every way” thereof, it appeared that the horse, which was unbroken, was received by deft. & put into a pasture belonging to a neighbour of deft., & deft. went to see it every other day. The pasture was surrounded by a fence of two strands of wire, & the horse got out twice during the winter but was put back. It disappeared about the end of the following April. The fence was down in one place, & the evidence showed a custom among the farmers in the neighbourhood to allow horses not in use to run at large during the winter. While deft. was given the right to work the horse, it was shown that it was not customary in that locality to break horses until the spring:—Held: deft. had taken sufficiently good care of the horse & was not liable for its loss.—ZIMMERMAN v. ARCHER (1922), 63 D. L. R. 399; [1922] 2 W. W. R. 524.—CAN.

ii. ——— Sale of bull—Bull sterile.—At an auction sale advertised “as pedigree stock sale” resp. purchased from applt. a bull described in the sale catalogue under the heading “Jersey Bulls” as “Lot 78, Bull Harbour Light.” The conditions of sale expressly negatived the existence of any warranties on the vendor's part. At the time of the sale the bull had not been used, but subsequently was found to be sterile. This condition was shown to be a latent defect not discoverable upon examination. In an action by resp. claiming damages:—

Held: as the capacity for procreation was not, by implication, a part of the description, & as the bull complied in all other respects with the description, resp. was without remedy.—DELL v. QUILTY, [1924] N. Z. L. R. 1270.—N.Z.

iv. ——— Default by purchaser—Resale by vendor.—Held: (1) money paid, not as a deposit, but on account of the purchase-price, must be returned to the purchaser; (2) having elected to treat the contract as at an end, instead of suing for damages for breach, the vendor was not entitled to recover anything for the care of the animals from the time fixed by the contract for delivery until he resold.—BALDWIN v. BRIANGER, [1920] 1 W. W. R. 216; 50 D. L. R. 540; 13 Alta. L. R. 27.—CAN.

the cow suffered had not been proved to be due either to negligence on pursuer’s part or to external accident, the guarantee applied.—KYLE v. SIM, [1925] S. C. 425.—SCOT.

563a. ——— Birds lawfully taken elsewhere.]—Applt. was charged under Wild Birds Protection Act, 1880 (c. 35), s. 3, as extended under s. 8 in the county of London by the Wild Birds Protection (Administrative County of London) Order, 1909, par. 4, with having in his possession some goldfinches recently taken. The magistrate found that the charge was proved & dismissed it under the Probation of Offenders Act, 1907 (c. 17), ordering applt. to pay the costs. The birds were lawfully caught in Ireland on or immediately before Dec. 3, 1918, & after being kept there for upwards of a month to enable them to recover their condition, & travel safely, were sent to applt. in London by post.

They were found in applt.'s possession in a wild & terrified state on Jan. 15 1919:—Held: the magistrate was justified in taking into consideration all the circumstances of the case, including the condition of the birds when exposed for sale & the fact that they had to be kept in Ireland for some time in order to endure the journey & arrive alive, & also the length of the journey, in order to arrive at the conclusion that the birds were recently taken.—HARRIS v. on his master's land, & wounded it. The dog was not doing damage & deft. made no effort to drive it away before he shot it, & the justices found that shooting was not necessary:—Held: he was guilty of "cruelly ill-treating" the dog within Protection of Animals Act, 1911 (c. 27), s. 1.—BARNARD v. 541 i. Carrier exempted from liability "in any case" above declared value.]—A railway co. made conditions limiting their liability for loss of or damage to any live stock delivered to them for transit beyond the value, in the case of horses, of £50, unless a higher value was declared in writing at the time of delivery, & a percentage of 1½ per cent. paid on the value, so declared, in excess of the above-named sum. A race horse, exceeding £50 in value, was delivered to the co. for transit by the sender's groom, who informed the booking clerk that he had got "a very valuable 'chaser, worth about £1,000," a figure arrived at by the groom himself from casual gossip. The clerk gave the groom the co.'s form of "consignment note & waybill" for live stock, & the groom filled it in for carriage at the ordinary rate, & signed it, with full knowledge of its contents. The horse having been injured in transit:—Held: (1) the above conditions were not unreasonable; (2) the contract of carriage, which was signed by the groom under a direction by his employer that the horse was to be carried at the ordinary rate, exempted the co. from liability for any greater amount than £50; (3) in order to make the co. liable for the full value of the horse, the declaration of value must have been made with the intention of paying the higher rate, & the statement of value made by the groom to the booking clerk was insufficient.—FOX v. 26a. — Verbal agreement to grant royalties—Amount to be settled by arbitration—Refusal of grantee to arbitrate.]—In 1913 a patent was granted for "Improvements in winches for operating the rope of a duplex derrick." Between the times of the filing of the provisional & complete specifications, the patentee, under a verbal agreement, entered the service of a co. engaged in making windlasses as technical adviser & engineer draughtsman; & the co., while the patentee was in their employment, made & sold the patented windlasses. In 1919 the patentee commenced an action against the co., alleging that it was a term of the verbal agreement that, during pltf.'s service, the co. should have pltf.'s licence to make & sell windlasses under the patent, at a reasonable royalty, & failing agreement between the parties, at such royalty as might be settled by arbn. He contended that he would have received at least 5 per cent. on the selling price of the windlasses. Defts. denied that they had agreed to accept a licence from pltf.:—Held: pltf. had proved that the agreement for a licence had been made; he was entitled to a reasonable royalty; & as the agreement was verbal, & defts. refused to refer the matter to arbn., the matter could not go to arbn. It was directed that the matter should be referred to an official referee for inquiry & report under sect. 13 of the above Act.—FLEMING v. DOIG (J. S.) (GRIMSBY), LTD. (1921), 38 R. P. C. 57.

Regulations of Insurance Commissioners.]—

By an agreement between a medical practitioner on the panel & the insurance committee of a county, the practitioner agreed to give medical treatment to insured persons, & by clause 1 the National Health Insurance (Medical Benefit) Regulations (England), 1913, were incorporated. By clause 14, "any dispute or question arising between the committee & the practitioner . . . relating to the construction of this agreement or the rights & liabilities of the committee or the practitioner . . . hereunder shall be referred to the Comrs." By reg. 51 of the regulations, "Where under the provision of these regulations or of any agreement made between the committee & a practitioner . . . is referred, or any appeal from a decision of the committee is made to the Comrs. the Comrs. shall determine such questions or appeal in such manner as they think fit, & if in the opinion of the Comrs. a hearing is required they may authorise any two or more of the Comrs. to hear & determine such question or appeal, & any decision of the Comrs. or any of them made under this article shall be final & conclusive." A dispute having arisen under the agreement, the practitioner brought an action against the committee in respect thereof, & the committee applied under the Act of 1889, s. 4, to stay the action:—Held: the action must be stayed (PICKFORD, L.J. & SARGANT, J.) upon the ground that there was a "submission" to arbn. within the Act of 1889, s. 27 (BANKES, L.J.), upon the ground that under reg. 51 a special tribunal was constituted with special powers for determining disputes between practitioners & the committee.—*CLEMENTS v. To a claim sent in, the co. answered that they did not agree upon the amount claimed & that under the conditions of the policy they did not admit their liability:—Held: the right of action was that it might be decided whether such rejection was right or wrong, & it was only in the event of that question being decided against the co. that it would become necessary to ascertain the amount of the loss by arbn.—*EAGLE STAR & BRITISH DOMINIONS INSURANCE CO. v. 147a. In a proposal for insurance against accident the intending assured stated his occupation & signed a declaration that the answers to the questions therein were true, & that he agreed that the declaration should be the basis of the contract between him & the insurance co. whose policy, subject to the terms & conditions thereof, he agreed to accept. The policy recited the proposal & declaration "which proposal & declaration warranted to be true it is agreed shall be the basis of this contract . . . & be considered as incorporated herein, & any suppression, misrepresentation, or misstatement of fact in such written proposal & declaration shall ipso facto render this policy null & void"; & it provided that it was a condition precedent to the recovery of any sum under the policy that the conditions indorsed thereon should be strictly observed. Condition 8 provided that the policy might be renewed from year to year but only upon condition that nothing had happened to increase the risk, & if the risk was increased by (inter alia) the assured engaging in some other occupation, then "unless notice in writing of such increased risk is given to the co. . . & any extra premium that may be required paid . . . the policy is void & no claim can be made." By condition 11, "If any question shall arise touching this policy or the liability of the co. thereunder or the extent or nature of such liability or otherwise howsoever in connection herewith then the assured & all persons claiming through the assured may refer & shall be bound, if the co. shall so require, to refer the same to arbn. by one arbitrator to be agreed on or in default of agreement by two arbitrators & their umpire under the Act of 1889 . . . & no person shall be entitled to bring or to maintain any action or proceeding on this policy except for the sum awarded under such arbn." During the currency of the policy the assured was killed by an accident. The co. denied liability on the policy on the ground that the assured either had misstated his occupation in the proposal, or, if not, had changed his occupation for one involving increased risk of which notice as required by condition 8 had not been given to the co., & contended that the policy was therefore void, & they required the dispute to be referred to arbn. under condition 11. In an action on the policy:—Held: (1) upon the co. requiring arbn. condition 11 made the obtaining of an award a condition precedent to a right of action; (2) the co. by relying on the terms of the policy which rendered it void in certain events did not thereby repudiate the policy as a binding contract between the parties, & were entitled to rely upon the arbn. clause as a defence to the actor.—*WOODALL v. The contracts provided that in case of any dispute as to the quality or condition of the goods, the question should be referred to arbn., provided that, "such reference shall be claimed in writing within three days after the goods have been landed." It was also provided that the award in writing of any two arbitrators should be conclusive & binding on all parties, subject to the right of appeal. The goods arrived in

The contracts contained provisions exempting the sellers from liability for late & short shipment attributable (inter alia) to Govt. commandeering of ships, war, "or any other unforeseen circumstances" & included provisions for the shipment of delayed cargoes as soon as possible, subject to a right of refusal on the part of the purchasers. Each contract contained an arbn. clause in these terms: "Any dispute that may arise under this contract to be settled by arbn." Before all the bales had been shipped, the further export of jute from India to the Argentine was prohibited. A controversy having arisen between the parties as to whether, in the circumstances, the contracts had been rendered void & unenforceable quoad the shipment of the remainder of the bales:—Held: on a construction of the contracts, the controversy was a dispute arising under the contracts, & accordingly, fell to be determined by issue between the parties was not the validity of a notice to quit but the question whether the tenant was possessing under the lease or under a new bargain:—Held: as the lease itself was in dispute, the arbn. clause in the lease did not apply.—HOTH v. COWAN, [1926] S. C. 58.—SCOT.

s b. Clause in broker's note—Rules applicable to members only.—Flour was sold by defts. to pltf. under contracts in broker's notes which contained a condition that the rules & regulations of the S. Asscn. should apply. The rules of the asscn. provided that every dispute or difference arising out of any contract or dealing should be referred to arbn. Pltf., who was not a member of the asscn., having sued defts. for damages for breach of contract:—Held: as the rules referring to arbn. were applicable only to disputes between members of the asscn., an application for a stay of proceedings must be dismissed.—*LEVIN v. More than three days after the goods had been landed applt. wrote to resps complaining that the goods were of inferior quality, & some time later he wrote a letter claiming a reference to arbn. Resps. did not then take the objection that the claim was out of time, but signed a submission to arbn. in respect of each contract. At the reference resps took the points that applt.'s claim was out of time, & that the goods should have been examined at the port of landing. The arbitrators awarded "that the buyer was out of time in examining & making claim on the goods, & also in claiming arbn., & that therefore his case fails." The buyer took no steps to set aside the awards, but nearly two years later brought an action claiming damages for breach of contract:—Held: the awards were a bar to the action.—*AYSCOUGH v. 165a. Arbitrator to be appointed within limited time.]—A ship was chartered for a voyage from R. to H. with a full cargo of linseed. The charterparty provided for the reference of all disputes to the final arbitrament of two arbitrators, one to be appointed by each of the parties, with power to appoint an umpire, & the clause continued: "Any claim must be made in writing & claimants' arbitrator appointed within three months of final discharge, & where this provision is not complied with the claim shall be deemed to be waived & absolutely barred." After the arrival of the ship at H. the charterers brought an action against the shipowners in respect of damage alleged to have been occasioned to a part of the linseed during the voyage by reason of the unseaworthiness of the ship at the commencement of the voyage. The shipowners pleaded that the charterers failed to appoint their arbitrator within three months of the discharge of the ship & that by reason thereof the action was not maintainable, & by order of the ct., the question whether the claim in the action was barred by the arbn. clause was tried as a preliminary question of law:—Held: (1) the arbn. clause was not open to objection on the ground that it ousted the jurisdiction of the ct.; (2) inasmuch as the claim in the action was founded upon a breach of the implied condition of seaworthiness, there being in the charterparty no express provision relating to unseaworthiness, the shipowners were not entitled to the benefit of the term in the clause restricting the time within which the action could be brought, & consequently the claim was not barred by the arbn. clause.—*ATLANTIC SHIPPING & TRADING Co. v. 165b. —.]—A charterparty contained a clause providing that all disputes arising out of the contract should be referred to arbn., the claimants' arbitrator to be appointed within a time therein limited, & if he was not so appointed the claim was to be deemed to be waived & absolutely barred. Loss to cargo was suffered owing to the ship's unseaworthiness. The cargo owners claimed damages & went to arbn., but did not appoint their arbitrator within the time limited. An award was made in their favour, the shipowners not appearing:—Held: although the loss was caused by unseaworthiness, & consequently, the above clause could not have been set up by the shipowners, the cargo owners were entitled in virtue of the clause to go to arbn., but only in accordance with its terms, & as they had not complied with those terms the arbitrator had no jurisdiction to make the award.—FORD (H.) & Co. v. COMPAGNIE FURNESS (FRANCE), [1922] 2 K. B. 797; 92 L. J. K. B. 88; 128 L. T. 286; 16 Asp. M. L. C. 102, D. C.

165c. —.]—Pltfs. bought from defts. a quantity of East African copra cake to be of fair average quality, sound delivered. The contract provided that "the goods are not warranted free from defect rendering same unmerchantable, which would not be apparent on reasonable examination"; that any disputes arising out of the contract should be settled by arbn.; & that notice of arbn. should be given & the arbitrator nominated in writing not later than fourteen days after the final discharge of the vessel. Pltfs. resold the copra cake to B. & Co., who resold it to dealers, & they in turn resold it to farmers, who used it for feeding cattle. The cattle fed on the cake became ill, & it was then found on analysis that the cake contained an admixture of castor beans in so large a proportion as to make it poisonous. Claims were then made by the various buyers against their sellers & by pltfs. against defts. as soon as the mischief was discovered, but this was after the expiration of fourteen days from the final discharge of the vessel. Pltfs. claimed arbn., but the arbitrator before whom the matter came held that he had no jurisdiction, as notice of arbn. was not given nor the arbitrator nominated in time. In an action by pltfs. claiming damages, it was found that it was within the contemplation of the parties that the copra cake would be used for cattle food & nothing else:—Held: the presence of the arbn. clause was not in itself a bar to the action, nor was the award, which dealt merely with the arbitrator's jurisdiction & not with the claim.—PINNOCK BROTHERS v. LEWIS & PEAT, LTD., [1923] 1 K. B. 690; 92 L. J. K. B. 695; 129 L. T. 320; 39 T. L. R. 212; 67 Sol. Jo. 501; 28 Com. Cas. 210.

Before completion of discharge defts. made various payments to pltfs. on account of freight, & on final discharge pltf. claimed that £568 was still owing for freight. Defts. admitted that £416 was still owing for freight, but they set up a counterclaim for £581 for short delivery & refused to pay the £416 until their counterclaim was met. Neither party referred the matter to arbn., & more than three months after final discharge pltf. brought an action for £568 balance of freight & defts. counterclaimed £581 for short delivery:—Held: though pltf. could not recover the £568, as the claim for it ought to have been taken to arbn., yet they could recover the £416 about which there had never been any dispute, but the counterclaim, as it was always in dispute, was barred by the arbn. clause.—*BEDE STEAM SHIPPING CO., LTD. v. "If any dispute as to the agreement or any matter or thing therein or intention or construction thereof."—Where a dispute arose on a contract as to the meaning of a clause therein which dealt with tests that the purchaser was making, the purchaser contending that the tests were unsatisfactory, & the vendor that they signed the contract on the faith of an assurance by the purchaser that the tests were proving satisfactory, & the contract contained a clause that if any dispute should arise between the parties as to the agreement or any clause, matter or thing therein contained, or the intention or construction thereof, or in anywise relating thereto, the same should be referred to arbn.:—Held: such dispute came within the clause, & was not a dispute dehors the contract.—*DE LA GARDE v. 238a. "All loss."—In an action in Manitoba against building contractors to recover sums improperly paid to them under a contract, & for damages, a judgment by consent was entered whereby it was provided (inter alia) that pltf. should recover, among other sums, "all loss to pltf. by reason of defective workmanship & materials," & that there should be set off against the sums recovered by pltf. the fair value of the work done & materials provided at fair contractor's prices. The judgment provided further that the sums to be debited & credited were to be determined by two appraisers, & that any matter upon which they differed was to be referred to a named umpire whose decision thereon was to be final; & that the Manitoba Arbn. Act should not apply. Defts. moved to set aside or vary an award made:—Held: (1) under the words "all loss" there was jurisdiction to award to pltf. not only sums actually expended at the date of the award, but also a sum estimated as being necessary to make good the defects; (2) the award being within the jurisdiction conferred by the submission, & there being no error apparent on its face, it could not be questioned either on the facts or on the law.—*A.-G. The contract provided for the payment by monthly instalments on the certificate of defts.' engineer at the rate of 90 per cent. of the value of the work actually executed, the remaining 10 per cent. to be treated as a retention fund, & further provided that any question arising between the parties in connection with the contract, or as to the construction or meaning of the contract, should be referred to the decision of an engineer to be agreed upon, or, failing agreement, to be nominated by the President for the time being of the Institute of Civil Engineers, & such submission should be deemed a submission to arbn. within the Act of 1889. An originating summons having been taken out by pltfs. for the determination of the question whether upon the true construction of the contract, for the purpose of the monthly payments to be made to pltfs. thereunder, the value of the work executed was to be ascertained by adding to the prices contained in the schedules a proportionate amount of the sum therein provided for "general contingencies," defts. moved for a stay of proceedings under the summons:—Held: there was a clear & definite contract between the parties that the matter in dispute should be referred to an arbitrator as being a person who possessed the necessary technical knowledge for dealing with the subject-matter of the contract; if the ct. allowed the action to proceed evidence would be necessary in order to put the ct. in a position to determine the technical meaning of the expression "general contingencies" & a number of other expressions used in the contract; the meaning of those expressions in an engineering contract would be perfectly familiar & would present no difficulty to the engineer to whom the parties had agreed to refer the decision of their disputes; the case was not one which involved a simple question of law, & pltfs. had not discharged the onus of showing that the dispute was one which ought not to be referred to arbn., & the arbn. ought to proceed.—*METROPOLITAN TUNNEL & PUBLIC WORKS v. 629a. — Discretion of court to refuse to appoint except upon terms.]—On an application under the Act of 1889, s. 5, to appoint an arbitrator the ct. has a discretion & may in a proper case refuse to make an appointment except upon terms.

A contract between British shipbuilders & foreign shipowners for the building & purchase of certain ships contained a clause referring disputes & differences to the decision of a single arbitrator in accordance with the Arbn. Act. Disputes having arisen the foreign firm duly gave notice to the British shipbuilders to appoint an arbitrator, & on their refusal to do so, applied to the ct. under sect. 5 of the Act to appoint an arbitrator:—Held: in the case of an application for arbn. by a foreigner residing out of the jurisdiction the ct. had an absolute discretion in assenting to or refusing the application, & in the former case the ct. could attach any reasonable condition, such as making an order for security for the costs of the proceedings, to the granting of the application.—Re BJORNSTAD & OUSE SHIPPING CO., [1924] 2 K. 630a. — — —.]—A contract for the sale of goods was entered into between B., the seller, & R., who, so far as appeared from the contract, were the buyers. The contract contained an arbn. clause. The goods delivered in pursuance of the contract were despatched to a foreign firm, who complained of their quality. Thereupon the foreign firm & R., who said they had merely acted as agents for that firm, claimed to have the dispute as to the quality of the goods submitted to arbn. B., while willing to go to arbn. as between himself & R., refused to assent to an arbn. to which the foreign firm were parties, maintaining that he had sold to R. as principals. R. & the foreign firm then took out a summons for the appointment of an arbitrator pursuant to the Act of 1889, s. 5:—Held: it being in dispute whether there was a submission between B. on the one hand & R. & the foreign firm on the other, there was no "matter" pending in the High Ct. as between those parties; therefore an appeal from an order for the appointment of an arbitrator was not in a matter of practice & procedure within R. 949a. ——.]—An arbitrator appointed under Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908 (c. 28), for the purpose of determining claims & compensation payable in respect of (inter alia) certain fixtures, hay & straw left by the tenant on his farms, & hay & straw removed by him after the determination of the tenancy, held two sittings & then gave notice that he had been waiting to be supplied with information as to the hay & straw sold off & warned the parties that if it was not supplied promptly he would have to hold another sitting. After an interval of less than a fortnight he gave further notice that he would go to the farms on a specified date "to value the hay & straw & to receive an account of the hay & straw removed." The tenant not having such an account ready & thinking that the only question to be dealt with was a valuation of the stacks of hay & straw remaining on the farm did not attend by himself or his representative, but his foreman was present to point out & give information about the stacks on the farms. While there the arbitrator, besides valuing the stacks, questioned the foreman as to the hay & straw removed. Immediately afterwards he closed the hearing & made an award in which he dealt with the claim for hay & straw removed on the basis of the foreman's evidence, which had not been tendered by either party, & was taken in the presence only of the landlord's representative. He did not deal with the question of the fixtures, but purported to reserve power to deal with them, if required:—Held: the award must be set aside as the arbitrator had been guilty of legal misconduct in taking evidence in the absence of, & without previous notice to, the tenant.—Re O'CONOR & WHITLAW'S ARBITRATION (1919), 88 L. J. K. B. 1242, C. A.

949b. ——.]—In an arbn. between sellers & buyer arising out of the rejection by the latter of certain goods which he alleged did not correspond to the contract description, the arbitrators heard the evidence of each of the parties in the absence of the other. No objection was made at the time to this procedure. An award having been made in favour of the sellers, the buyer moved to set it aside:—Held: the award must be set aside, as the arbitrators had acted improperly in hearing the evidence on behalf of one party in the absence of the other.—*RAMSDEN (W.) & Co. v. 949c. ——. Evidence immaterial.]—It is misconduct which may justify the setting aside of an award if the arbitrators hear evidence in the absence of the parties, even though the evidence so received is immaterial. It makes no difference that the arbitrators could not properly have made any other award than that which they did make, & it is quite immaterial whether the evidence wrongly admitted helped the arbitrators to a right conclusion or a wrong conclusion, & the ct. cannot inquire to what extent their minds were affected by such evidence.—*ROYAL COMMISSION ON SUGAR SUPPLY v. 1022a. ——. ——. ——.]—In commercial arbns. the practice is that, unless the parties give notice that they desire to attend personally or by their solr. or counsel, the arbitrators present the evidence & arguments to the umpire & have full power to act as advocates. In an arbn. on a charterparty the umpire without hearing the parties made his award on the case as presented by the arbitrators. On a motion to set aside the award on the ground of misconduct by the umpire:—Held: there was no evidence of misconduct by the umpire, & the motion failed.

In arbn. proceedings prima facie the common law rule applies that the parties should have notice of the proceedings so that they could attend them, if desirous of so doing, & the only way in which the rule can be departed from is by agreement, & the ct. would give effect to their agreement (ATKIN, L.J.).—*FRENCH GOVERNMENT v. 1036a. .]—A contract for the sale of sugar provided that the contract was subject to the rules of the Refined Sugar Assocn. The rules required that all members of the assocn. making contracts subject to those rules should refer any disputes arising out of such contracts, including any questions of law, to the arbn. of the council of the assocn.; & by r. 19: "Neither buyer, seller, trustee in bkpcy., nor any other person as aforesaid shall require, nor shall they apply to the ct. to require, any arbitrators to state in the form of a special case for the opinion of the ct. any question of law arising in the reference, but such question of law shall be determined in the arbn. in manner herein directed." A dispute between the buyers & sellers was referred to the arbn. of the council. The buyers requested the arbitrators either to state their award in the form of a special case under the Act of 1889, s. 7, or alternatively to state a case for the opinion of the ct. under sect. 19 upon certain points of law arising in the reference, or to give them an opportunity of applying to the ct. for an order directing them to state a case. The arbitrators, thinking themselves precluded by r. 19, refused to comply with that request, & made their award without giving the buyers an opportunity of applying to the ct. for an order. The buyers move to set aside the award on the ground of misconduct of the arbitrators in so refusing:—Held: r. 19 & the agreement embodying it were contrary to public policy & invalid, as involving an ouster of the statutory jurisdiction of the cts. under the Arbn. 1051a. — Application to stay proceedings—Until security for costs given.]—The Govt. of an independent State made with a co. a contract containing an arbn. clause. An arbn. took place & was divided into two parts, the first being as to whether the Govt. had committed a breach of contract. The result of this part of the arbn. was that an award was given in favour of the co. & the Govt. was ordered to pay costs. The second part of the arbn. as to the amount of damage then began, & when the evidence had been closed the Govt. asked the arbitrator to state an advisory case for the opinion of the ct., but the arbitrator refused to do so. The Govt. then issued a summons asking that the arbitrator might be ordered to state a case, & thereupon the co., applied that all further proceedings might be stayed until the Govt. (1) had paid the costs which it had been ordered to pay, & (2) had given security to answer the costs of the matter & of the arbn.:—Held: so far as concerned the summons for a case to be stated the Govt. was in the position of a pltf., & it could not rely on its foreign sovereignty, & being out of the jurisdiction must give security for the costs of the summons, but the rest of the co.'s application must stand over to be dealt with on the hearing of the summons.—*DUFF DEVELOPMENT CO., LTD. v. 1058a. .]—A special case stated by an arbitrator for the opinion of the ct. is stated under the Act of 1889, s. 19, or s. 7, according as the arbitrator does or does not retain jurisdiction in the reference. If he retains jurisdiction the case is stated under sect. 19, & no appeal lies to the Ct. of Appeal from the decision of the High Ct. upon the special case; but if he makes his award finally, & retains no further jurisdiction in the reference, the case is stated under sect. 7 & an appeal lies from the decision of the ct.

By a submission contained in a charterparty disputes were referred to two arbitrators & if they could not agree, to an umpire. The umpire stated for the opinion of the High Ct. a special case in which he set out the facts, decided that there had been a breach of the charterparty, & assessed damages for the breach. The award concluded with these words: "The question for the opinion of the ct. is whether upon the true construction of the charterparty & the facts stated by me the decisions at which I have arrived are correct in law. If they be correct my award is to stand, but if incorrect in any particulars I desire that the award may be referred back to me for reassessment of the damages due in accordance with the decision of the ct." :—Held: this was not a final award; the case was, therefore, stated under sect. 19 & no appeal lay to the Ct. of Appeal. —*COGSTAD (C. 1067a. Finality—Request to court to vary if award wrong in law.—Disputes which had arisen under a charterparty were referred to arbn. & the arbitrator made his award in the form of a special case in which, after setting out the facts, & holding that the owners had committed a breach of the charterparty, he made an award in favour of the charterers & assessed the damages & costs payable by the owners to the charterers. The case proceeded as follows: "The question for the opinion of the ct. is whether upon the facts as stated by me my award is right in law. If my award be correct then it shall stand; but should the ct. find that it be wrong in law then I request that the ct. shall vary my award as in their discretion they may think fit, both as to the damages & as to the costs . . . except that if the ct. shall only vary my award on the subject of the amount of the damages, my discretion as to the costs of the reference & the costs of my award shall stand" :—Held: the award was a complete & final award under sect. 7 of the Act of 1889.—*LARRINAGA & Co. v. 1083b. Loss of right to appeal—Acceptance of award.]—In an arbn. concerning a contract of sale of goods the umpire stated a special case in which he made three different awards, leaving the ct. to decide which was right. The judge having decided that the first award was right, applts. demanded & obtained payment of the amount of that award & gave a receipt therefor. They then appealed from the decision of the judge & contended that the second award was the right one:—Held: having demanded & accepted payment under the first award applts. were precluded from contending that it was wrong.—*DEXTERS, LTD. v. 1107a. Award signed by all three as arbitrators.]—Under a submission to arbn. each of the two parties could appoint an arbitrator, & the arbitrators could appoint an umpire. The parties duly appointed arbitrators & the arbitrators appointed an umpire. An award was then made & was signed by these three persons, who added to their signatures the word "arbitrators":—Held: the third person who signed the award was properly appointed as umpire, he acted as umpire, & he really intended to sign as umpire, & the fact that he signed as arbitrator was only a matter to require a purely formal amendment.—*BENABU & CO. v. stitute an error in law on the face of the award sufficient to justify the ct. in setting it aside.—RUF (T. A.) & CO. v. PAUWELS, [1919] 1 K. B. 660; 88 L. J. K. B. 674; 121 L. T. 36; 83 J. P. 150; 35 T. L. R. 322; 63 Sol. Jo. 372, C. A.

1598a. ———.]—Certain trawlers were insured as to three-quarters of their value in the B. Insurance Co. To save their vessels from destruction by enemy submarine, the owners cut away the trawls, which were not insured, & claimed a general average contribution against the co., of which the owners were members. The rules provided that all disputes should be settled in the first instance by a general meeting of the co., or, on appeal, by two arbitrators & an umpire, none of whom should be lawyers. The general meeting having refused the claim, the owners proceeded to arbn. under a submission which provided that "all matters in difference in reference to the said claim for a general average contribution are referred," etc. The umpire by his award ignored the claim for general average. On a motion to set aside the award:—Held: it was bad as disclosing an error in law on the face of it; & having regard to the general terms of the submission, it was not open to resps. to say that a definite point of law had been submitted to arbn., as to which the decision of the arbitrator was final, & the award must be set aside.—*PARSONS v. 1644a. ———.]—Though an award may be set aside for an error of law appearing on the face of it, & though a question of construction is, generally speaking, a question of law, yet, where a question of construction is the very thing referred for arbn., then the decision of the arbitrator upon that point cannot be set aside by the ct. only because the ct. would itself have come to a different conclusion. If it appears by the award that the arbitrator has proceeded illegally, for instance, that he decided on evidence which in law is not admissible or on principles of construction which the law does not countenance, then there is error in law which may be ground for setting aside the award; but the mere dissent of the ct. from the arbitrator's conclusion on construction is not enough for that purpose.—*KELANTAN GOVERNMENT v. 1701a. Liability to cross-examination.—In June, 1913, claimants, R. & Co., effected an insurance with resps., an insurance co., whereby the insurance co. agreed that, if at any time during the period covered by the policy the premises of claimants should be destroyed by fire, & their business should be thereby interfered with or interrupted, they would pay to claimants monthly until such time as the reduction in turnover in consequence of the fire should have ceased, but not exceeding in all nine months, on account of annual net profit & charges as therein set forth, the same percentage on the amount by which the turnover in each month should in consequence of the fire be less than the turnover for the corresponding month of the year preceding the fire as the sum or sums thereby insured should bear to the total of the turnover for the last financial year. It was provided that the amount of the losses under the policy should be assessed by claimants' auditors, L. & G. A condition on the back of the policy provided for reference to arbn. of all differences arising out of the policy. The premises of claimants were destroyed by fire on July 22, 1913, a date within the period covered by the policy. G., a member of the firm of L. & G., duly assessed the amount of the loss suffered by claimants in respect of profits for the period of nine months succeeding the fire. Differences having arisen in regard to the payments under the policy, the parties went to arbn. G. was called as a witness by claimants at the arbn. proceedings, & stated that although it did not so appear on the face of the assessments he was at the time of signing the same satisfied that the losses of the turnover respectively therein stated were in fact sustained in consequence of the fire. There was no suggestion of any fraud on the part of the assessor:—Held: as G., whether regarded as an arbitrator or an assessor, had been called to give oral testimony he could be cross-examined on all relevant issues & consequently could be cross-examined to show that he had failed to take into account certain considerations necessary for arriving at the reduction in the turnover of claimants due solely to the fire.—*RECHER & Co. v. If the umpire by refusing to make his award in the form of a special case deprives the parties of the right to have questions of law, which are neither frivolous nor vexatious but are substantial, decided by the ct., he is guilty of misconduct & his award will be set aside.—Re FISCHER & Co. & MANN & COOK, [1919] 2 K. At the hearing of the arbn. on June 19, 1917, claimant did not press for hire after the seizure of the horses, & on July 31, 1917, the arbitrator issued his award, giving claimant the amount due up to the date of the seizure, but not afterwards. favour of plffs. In an action on the award defts. submitted that the law applicable to the whole contract must be the law of England, & that, since the contract neither was a policy as required by English law nor was properly stamped as such a policy, plffs. could not recover on the award:—Held: as the action was brought on the award, & as the proper inference from the provision as to the arbn. being held in Norway was that the parties intended the law of Norway to govern the contract, plffs. were entitled to recover the sum awarded.—*NORSKE ATLAS INSURANCE CO., LTD. v. sm. What defences available.—Appls. brought an action against the Commonwealth to recover money due under two contracts. While the action was pending the A.-G. of the Commonwealth agreed to submit to arbn. the matters in dispute between the parties. This agreement recited the making of the two contracts. The arbitrator having made his award in favour of the Commonwealth, applts. moved to set aside the award or to remit it to the arbitrator on certain grounds, none of which related to the validity of either of the contracts. was nowhere written by him in the book, but his printed name appeared on the front page of the catalogue pasted in the book. Deft. refused to hand over the goods on the ground that the lot in question had been the subject of a "knock-out" to which pltf. had been a party. In an action for breach of contract deft. pleaded that there was no memorandum signed by him within Sale of Goods Act, 1893 (c. 71), s. 4 (1):—Held: (1) the existence of a "knock-out" did not afford any defence to the action; (2) deft.'s printed name, having been authenticated by his writing down the price & the purchaser's name, was a sufficient signature, & there was a sufficient note or memorandum of the contract, & pltf. was entitled to recover.—*COHEN v. - 280a. — Option to resell on purchaser's default. — Goods were put up for sale by auction, the conditions of sale printed on the auctioneers' catalogue providing: "The lot to be taken away & paid for the day after sale," & "upon failure of complying with the above conditions all lots uncleared within the time aforesaid shall be resold." A purchaser, through his own negligence, bid for a lot for which he had not intended to bid, & the lot was knocked down to him. He afterwards endeavoured to persuade the auctioneers to put up the lot for sale again, but they declined. Upon his refusing to pay, an action for the purchase price was brought by the auctioneers, & the purchaser contended that under the conditions of sale it was obligatory upon the auctioneers to resell the lot in question, & that he could be charged only with any deficiency upon resale:—Held: the words "all lots uncleared shall be resold" did not impose any obligation upon the auctioneers, but merely conferred upon them an option of reselling at their discretion, & the auctioneers were entitled to recover the full price at which the lot was knocked down to the purchaser.—*ROBINSON, FISHER & HARDING v. - 301a. Non-delivery — Goods included in lot by mistake.]—In the catalogue of a sale by auction a lot marked 103 to 109* was included, being various bundles of paper. Item 109* was a bundle which the auctioneer did not intend to be in the catalogue, & he purposed to sell it separately. It was, however, knocked down to pltf., & he paid for it, but the auctioneer refused to deliver it to him. The catalogue announced the sale as being "By order of J. S. & others." The buyer brought an action for damages against the auctioneer:—Held: the various owners of the lots not being disclosed as the principals, & there being no disclaimer by the auctioneer of personal liability, the auctioneer was personally liable for non-delivery; & the fact that the buyer accidentally learned of the ownership of lot 109* was not material.—*PAGE v. PART I. SECT. 1.

sk. Person obtaining possession & control of goods without owner's consent.—To constitute a bailment it is sufficient if the bailee, having obtained possession & control of the bailor's goods without the latter's knowledge or consent, afterwards acknowledges to the bailor that he holds them for him, & thereafter retains possession & control for him with his consent.—MAKOWER, McBEATH & Co., PROPRIETARY, LTD. v. DALGETY & Co., LTD., [1921] V. L. R. 365.—AUS.

13 i. — Licence to occupy floor space.—Deft. was owner of a private garage, & rented to pltf. the right to store his motor car therein. The garage had no dividing partitions or stalls, & no particular space was assigned to pltf. Pltf. was given a key of this garage & was able to enter at any time he saw fit to do so & remove & return his car as he chose.—Held: deft. was not bailee of pltf.'s car.—LESSER v. JONES, [1920] 47 N. B. R. 318.—CAN.

14 i. — Goods left at cloak-room—Ball organised by committee.—The committee hired a hall, & tickets were sold. A room was provided for a cloak-room, & a caretaker of this room hired at a remuneration paid by the committee. When resp. presented his numbered ticket corresponding to the number placed on his coat it was found that another coat had been substituted for his.—Held: as regards the caretaker, there was no implied contract between him & resp. As regards the members of the committee, any contract they might make was a contract on behalf of the whole body, including resp.—CORBETT v. JAMISON, [1923] N. Z. L. R. 374.—N.Z.

sl. — Delivery of mineral-water bottles—Charge for detention of empties.—Pltf. sold mineral-water in bottles branded with their name. The course of dealing with customers was to invoice the bottles at a deposit rate of two shillings per dozen & when bottles were returned the customers were credited in full. Where bottles were not returned the customers were debited with a charge for them, pltf. usually accepting half the deposit rate for missing bottles where a deficiency was found to exist.—Held: the transaction was in law a bailment in which bare possession of the bottles vested in the borrower, the true ownership remaining in the lender.—*CANTRELL & COCHRANE v. 47 ii. —.—Pltf. on leaving a hotel was allowed to leave a locked bag in the baggage room, which was kept locked except when opened for taking luggage in or out. On calling for the bag he found contents had been stolen.—Held: the hotelkeeper was a gratuitous bailee & had exercised the reasonable care of a prudent man.—BREWER v. CALORI (1921), 29 B. C. 47 v. —.— Cloak-room—Of school.—Boards of Education are not insurers of school children's clothing; they are responsible for its loss or injury only when it is caused by their negligence.—STEVENSON v. TORONTO BOARD OF EDUCATION (1919), 46 O. L. R. 146; 17 O. W. N. 52.—CAN.

47 vi. —.— Of racing club.—Resp. sued applts., a racing club, for the value of a coat which she had left at applts.' cloak-room at the racecourse, & which disappeared from there. Resp. was holder of a ticket for the race meeting, but paid nothing for the deposit of the coat. There were hung on the walls of the waiting-room notices stating that while every care would be taken of deposited articles the club accepted no responsibility for same.—Held: there was a want of care on the part of applts. in discharging the duty they had accepted.—WELLINGTON RACING CLUB v. SYMONS, [1923] N. Z. L. R. 1.—N.Z.

gi. —.—The exhibiting of a dog at a dog show constitutes a bailment for the benefit of both the exhibitor & the club or assocn. holding the exhibition, & the latter are liable for their own carelessness notwithstanding a provision in the entry form signed by the exhibitor that "it shall be a condition of entry that the club shall not be liable for loss or damage to any exhibit occasioned by fire, accident, condition of structure, or negligence of other exhibitors or of the officials or servants of the club or otherwise."—*ANDREW v. 50a. ———.]—Pltf., who was a member of a residential club, of which defts. were the proprietors, gave the manager certain jewellery to lock up in a safe in the manager's office. The rules provided that "No claim in respect of any property alleged to have been left or lost in the club-house will be entertained, & neither the club nor the proprietors shall be responsible for any article of value so left or lost in the club, but small articles of value may, on application to the secretary, be deposited in the safe, but neither the club nor the proprietors shall be under any liability in respect of such deposits." The jewellery was stolen from the safe by the night porter employed by defts., who before engaging him had obtained references from two persons by whom he had been employed, but apparently had made no inquiry as to his previous career. After the theft it was discovered that he was an old & dangerous criminal:—Held: defts. had not used due care in engaging the night porter, & as the above rule did not negative defts.' liability for damage due to their neglect to take such care, they were liable for the loss.—WILLIAMS v. CURZON SYNDICATE, LTD. (1919), 35 T. L. R. 475, C. A.

59 iii. ———.]—Defts. having by mistake removed a suit case from a railway carriage, took the most speedy means of restoring the suit case to the owner by placing it on a steamer about to leave for a point on the railway:—Held: (1) defts. as bailees without reward were bound to use as much diligence in dealing with the goods in their possession as they would in dealing with their own; (2) in delivering the suit case to a fireman on the steamer to be delivered to the mate, defts. failed to acquit themselves of the responsibility resting upon them.—McCOWAN v. McCULLOCH, [1926] 1 D. L. R. 312; 58 N. S. R. 320.—CAN.

65 iv. ———.]—The fact that a chattel has been lost or injured in the hands of a gratuitous bailee raises a prima facie presumption against him. That presumption, however, may be rebutted by his proving that he was not to blame for the loss or injury.—MUMFORD v. NORTHERN TRUSTS CO., [1924] 2 W. W. R. 745.—CAN.

true owner—Money found in shop.]—Deft. was a shopkeeper, & pltf., a salesman in the shop, picked up from the floor a roll of banknotes, & handed it to deft., who caused inquiry to be made for the owner. No claim was made, & deft. kept the notes:—Held: the property was "lost," & as against all other persons than the owner, the finder became the substantial owner of the thing found by him, & pltf. was not, by reason of being in the employment of deft., deprived of his rights as a finder.—HAYNEN v. MUNDLE, 22 C. L. T. 152.—CAN.

192a. Loss of luggage left outside cloak-room.]—A condition in a railway cloak-room ticket purporting to exempt the railway co. from responsibility for articles above a specified value deposited in the cloak-room except on certain terms, & assented to by the person taking the ticket, is not prevented from being part of the contract & from protecting the co. merely because it is unreasonable, provided that it be not so extravagant as to imply, & there is no other evidence to show, that that person's assent to it has been obtained by fraud, or so irrelevant as to be foreign to the contract.

Pltf. took his bicycle to the cloak-room at a station of deft. co. for the purpose of depositing it there, paid to the official the charge demanded, & received a ticket purporting to be a cloak-room ticket upon the face of which was legibly printed the following condition: "The co. will not be in any way responsible in respect of any article deposited the value whereof exceeds £5, unless at the time of deposit the true value & nature of the article shall have been declared, & 1d. per £1 sterling of the declared value be paid for each day or part of a day in addition to the ordinary cloak-room charges." The value of the bicycle exceeded £5, but pltf. made no declaration of value or additional payment. The bicycle was standing at the open door of the cloak-room, but the official told pltf. to leave it there as he would put it away. When pltf. returned to claim the bicycle it could not be found. In an action by pltf. against defts. for the value of the bicycle defts. relied upon the above condition. It was found in effect that pltf. knew that there was printing on the ticket, that he believed it contained a condition, & that defts. had done sufficient to give pltf. notice of the condition; & it was not found & there was no evidence to show that pltf.'s assent to the condition had been obtained by fraud. It was further found that owing to the negligence of the official in leaving the bicycle at the door of the cloak-room it had been stolen:—Held: (1) assuming that the condition was unreasonable which, semble, it was not, defts. were not, merely on that ground, prevented from relying upon it, inasmuch as it was not so extravagant as to imply that pltf.'s assent to it had been obtained by fraud, or so irrelevant as to be foreign to the contract; (2) defts. were protected by the condition, although the bicycle had not been deposited within the cloak-room; (3) on the above facts & findings judgment should be entered for defts.—GIBAUD v. GREAT EASTERN RY. CO., [1921] 2 K. B. 426; 90 L. J. K. B. 535;

dition when they were placed in the store. Several months later the apples were taken out of the store considerably damaged & deteriorated:—Held: it was the duty of deft. being a bailee for reward to provide a cool store fit for the purpose intended, & to maintain the proper temperature & proper circulation of cold air in the store by efficient means, & to store the apples in such manner as would ensure access of the cold air to the fruit; & as fruit was liable to be injuriously affected by failure to perform any of these duties, & might become affected at any time, it was the duty of deft. to inspect the fruit in the store at reasonable times, & if indications of deterioration were observed, to notify plts., & if necessary & practicable, to take steps to protect the goods from further damage.—AURORA TRADING CO., LTD. & JACKSON v. NELSON FREEZING CO., LTD., [1922] N. Z. L. R. 662.—N.Z.

163a iv. ——— Failure to inspect premises—Defective wharf.]—Held: the collapse of the wharf was due to failure of worm-eaten piles supporting it, & such defect should have been known if proper diligence had been used in inspection.—FURNESS WITHY CO., LTD. v. AHLIN (1918), 42 D. L. R. 97.—CAN.

172 ii. ———.]—Pltf. delivered goods to defts., a warehouse co., for storage. The warehouse contract provided that the responsibility of the co. "for the contents of any piece or package is limited to the sum of $50, unless the value thereof is made known at the time of storage & receipted for in the schedule; an additional charge will be made for higher valuation." The goods, which were in several packages, were stored without a declaration of value & without any additional charge for a higher valuation. Through the negligence of defts.' servants, the goods were included in a shipment of other goods & sent to England. Some of pltf.'s goods were lost, & others damaged:—Held: the amount which pltf. was entitled to recover was limited by the clause of the warehouse contract.—MAUNSELL v. CAMPBELL SECURITY FIREPROOF STORAGE & MOVING CO., LTD., [1921] 2 W. W. R. 348; [1921] 2 W. W. R. 579.—CAN.

172 iii. ———.]—A cold storage co. gave a receipt for hops stored with them which bore, "The co. will use every endeavour in taking care of all goods consigned to its charge, but will not be held responsible for any damage whatsoever. . . . All goods are received subject to the conditions on the back of this receipt." The first condition on the back was, "The co. will use every endeavour in taking care of all goods consigned to its charge, but will not be held responsible for loss or damage to goods stored through maintaining too high or too low a temperature in the stores, failure of machinery, buildings or plant fire, or any other cause whatsoever other than theft":—Held: the contract meant that defenders promised to do their utmost to take care of the hops, but that, if their efforts were unsuccessful for any cause other than theft, they were not to be liable in damages.—BALLINGALL & SON v. DUNDEE ICE & COLD STORAGE CO., [1924] S. C. 238.—SCOT.

218a. Agreement to insure chattel.—Against "all risks."—Defts. hired a crane-barge from plts., one of the terms of the contract being that plts. would insure the crane against all risks, defts. paying the premium. Pltfs.

took out a policy covering, as they thought, all risks. The crane, when proceeding to lift a load, broke away from its bedplate & fell over & was damaged. It was then found that the accident was not covered by the policy, & defts. refused to pay for the damage. In an action for breach of contract:—Held: though defts. had failed to discharge the onus which was upon them, of proving that what happened was not the result of negligence by their servants, yet, as the agreement in regard to insurance was intended to be an arrangement for the benefit of both parties, & as the accident came within the description "all risks" & defts. had stipulated that they were not to bear those risks, the action failed.—*PRICE & SONS v. PART III. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 1.

241 vi. ————]—Pltf. handed over nine motor lorries to deft., receiving from him Rs.5,000 upon the terms of a written agreement, the material parts of which were as follows:—"I have to-day agreed to sell to you on the hire-purchase system for Rs.25,000 my nine lorries . . . in consideration of payment as under. In case of failure to pay any of the instalments on due date, previous payments will be considered null & void, & the lorries are not considered as sold until the final payment has been received. The purchaser has no right to mortgage or dispose of any lorries until the full amount has been paid & [pltf.] or his nominee has the right to seize the lorries wherever they may be. The consideration money is to be paid as under. As against the payment of Rs.5,000 I have to-day given to you delivery of all the nine lorries, & also a letter addressed to the Commissioner of Police to transfer the lorries to your name":—Held: the agreement was an agreement for sale.—*COLE v. Deft. in breach of his contract, refused to accept delivery of the register. Plts. issued a default summons in the county ct. for rent accrued due up to the date of the summons:—Held: no actual debt had been incurred & the action was not maintainable, plts.' remedy being in damages only.—NATIONAL CASH REGISTER CO. v. - 258a. — Recovery of unpaid instalments.—On a claim by the owner of furniture for unpaid instalments:—Held: as the agreement with the hirer was for the sale of the furniture, the property not to pass to him until all the instalments had been paid, & the owner had resumed possession of it & dealt with it in such a way as to put it out of his power to return it to the hirer, he was disentitled from claiming part of the purchase price, & the proper remedy was to sue for damages for breach of contract.—A.-G. v. - 262a. — — — — —.]—Plts. let a piano on a hire-purchase agreement which provided that until all the instalments were paid the hirer should have no property in the goods otherwise than as hirer, & that in case of any breach of the agreement plts. might, without any formal notice, put an end to the hiring & retake possession of the piano, & that the hirer should keep the piano in his own custody. At a date when the hirer had paid all the instalments then due, but before he had paid the total price, he sold the piano to deft., who bond fide believed that the hirer was the absolute owner. The hirer having subsequently got the piano back into his own possession & having again disposed of it, but having, in the meantime, kept up the payment of the instalments, plts., on ascertaining the facts, claimed damages from deft. for conversion:—Held: the sale by the hirer to deft. was not ipso facto a repudiation of the hire-purchase agreement, as plts. had never accepted the repudiation, but it transferred whatever interest the hirer had at the time of the sale, & as plts. were not entitled to the possession of the piano until they elected to put an end to the agreement there was no conversion by deft.—NELSON MURDOCH & CO. v. The value of the trawler was agreed between the parties, but the Admlty. claimed, as bailees in possession, to recover as part of their damages interest from the date of the loss. The owners of the R. contended that interest was only payable from the date when the Admlty. paid the value of the trawler to her owners:—Held: under the Admlty. rule a bailee in possession was entitled to recover from a wrongdoer a complete equivalent of the chattel deteriorated or lost, namely, its value at the time of the deterioration or loss, with interest from that date; but inasmuch as there was an agreement between the parties that defts. should pay what the Admlty. had to pay to the owners of the trawler, interest on the payment only ran from the date of payment.—THE ROSALIND (1920), 90 L. Defts. alleged that the cheque for £150,000 was obtained by a blackmailing conspiracy from one A., who was discovered by one N. with pltf.'s wife in compromising circumstances, & that the proceeds were shared between the conspirators, whom defts. alleged to include, among others, pltf., pltf.'s wife, & H. & N. Pltf. & his wife denied that they took part in any conspiracy, & pltf. said that, when he heard of the relations between his wife & A., he instructed H., who represented himself to be a solr., to take divorce proceedings, & that, when the sum of £25,000 was handed to him by H., he, pltf., passed the amount on to his wife & said that he would have nothing more to do with her, & that he learned later that A. had paid £150,000. Where the bank is authorised so to appropriate the money it acts in doing so as agent of the depositor, & if it fails to carry out its duties as such agent, the loss falls on its principal. It is possible for a bank while acting as agent of the drawer of a draft for the purpose of collecting it to act also as agent of the drawee in appropriating the money.—BRANTFORD CORDAGE CO. v. MILNE, [1925] 1 D. L. R. 862; [1925] 1 W. W. R. 911; 35 Man. L. R. 17; affo., [1925] 1 D. L. R. 92; [1925] 1 W. W. R. 442.—CAN.

275 viii. ———.]—Cheque delivered to bank to be cashed.—The fact that the holder of a cheque delivers it to a bank to be cashed does not constitute a deposit nor render the bank his debtor, & the bank has no right to set off against the proceeds of the cheque a debt owing to it by the holder.—*ROYXEL v. two amounts that the action was brought. The jury found that there was a conspiracy to get money from A. by catching him with pltf.'s wife, but that pltf. & his wife were not parties to the conspiracy, that A. was induced to part with the money through fear, & that his parting with it was not free & voluntary:—Held: pltf. never got the property in the cheque for £150,000 & could not sue in conversion, & he had no right to sue in contract because the dealings with deft. bank were not on his behalf, & therefore he had no title to the cheque, & the action failed.—*ROBINSON v. 284a. — Effect of mere book entries.] — In dealings between banker & customer, where it is sought to treat a mere book entry as a payment, some other circumstances must be present & relied upon to enable the customer in whose favour it is made to succeed, either some express previous authority to pay, or a communication of the making of the entry to the customer & an acting upon it by him; there must be, in effect, both a payment by one party & a receipt by the other, or an alteration in the position of the customer in whose favour the book entry was made.—*BRITISH & NORTH EUROPEAN BANK, LTD. v. 292a. —.]—(1) The word "customer" in Bills of Exchange Act, 1909 (No. 27 of 1909, Commonwealth), s. 88 (1), which is in the same terms as the above sect. signifies a relationship in which duration is not of the essence, & includes a person who has opened an account on the day before paying in a cheque to which he has no title.

(2) The negligence referred to in the subsect. is negligence in collecting the cheque, not in opening the account. The test is whether the paying in of any given cheque, coupled with the circumstances antecedent & present, was so out of the ordinary course that it ought to have aroused doubt in the banker's mind, & caused him to make inquiries. The standard of care required is that derived from the practice of bankers.

387a. ————.]—For some years before 1919 one U., a merchant, had a banking account at defts.' bank. In that year he converted himself into a limited co., all the shares being allotted to himself except one, which was held by his wife. A debenture in the form of a floating charge over the assets of the co. was issued to a creditor of U. as a security for his debt. The arts. of assocn. of the co. incorporated Table A. by par. 71 of which the business of the co. is to be managed by the directors. By the arts. U. was appointed sole director. After the formation of the co. U. kept on his private banking account with defts. as before, they having notice that his business had been transferred to the co. The co. had a separate account, which was kept at another bank, but defts. had no knowledge of that fact. U., as sole director, became possessed of a number of cheques, some crossed & others uncrossed, drawn in favour of the co. He indorsed them "A.L.U., Ltd.—A.L.U. sole director," & paid them into his own account with defts. instead of paying them in to the co.'s account with the other bank. Defts., without inquiring whether the co. had a separate banking account, collected the cheques & credited U. with the proceeds, which he misappropriated. When doing so they treated him as being identical with the co., as he owned all the shares, & overlooked the materiality of the cheques being drawn in the co.'s favour & not in his. In an action brought by the co. on behalf of the debentureholder for conversion of the cheques:—Held: (1) defts. were precluded from setting up that U., when paying the cheques in to his own account, was acting within the scope of his apparent authority as agent of the co., upon two grounds: first, that the act of an agent paying his principal's cheques into his own account was so unusual as to put them on inquiry, that they ought to have inquired whether the co. had a separate banking account, & if it had, why the cheques were not paid in to that account, & that their failure to make that inquiry amounted to negligence; & secondly, that U. when paying in the cheques did not purport to act as the co.'s agent, but as being himself the co., & that defts. so treated him; (2) with respect to the cheques which were crossed the omission to inquire about the co.'s banking account disentitled defts. as collecting bankers to the protection afforded by Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 82.

A customer of a bank paid into his account some cheques to which he had no title. Immediately on his so paying them in the bank credited him with the amounts of the cheques in their ledger, but there was no agreement between the bank & the customer that he should be allowed to draw against the cheques before they were cleared, nor did he in fact draw against them until after the bank had received the proceeds:—Held: (3) apart from any question whether the bank had notice of any defect in the customer's title, they were not holders in due course, there being no evidence that they took the cheques for value. The mere fact that bankers credit a customer with the amounts of cheques before they are cleared does not make them holders for value; in order to entitle them to that character there must have been an agreement, express or implied, that the customer should be allowed to draw against the cheques before clearance, & that agreement must have been acted upon.—*UNDERWOOD (A. 391a. ———— Cheques drawn by wife on bank manager's advice—Title of wife to balance.]—A husband, in 1908, transferred the money standing to a current account at his bank in his own name into the joint names of himself & his wife. He did not inform his wife of the joint account, & always drew cheques on the account himself. He died in Nov. 1919. The wife never drew any cheque on the account until shortly before his death, when he was in failing health & unable to attend to business. The bank manager then informed her of the joint account, & advised her to draw a cheque, which she did. The husband had also from time to time made deposits in the joint names of himself & his wife, & in Aug. 1919, consolidated them into one deposit in the joint names. The wife never knew of this deposit until after her husband's death. There was then found among his papers an envelope indorsed with the wife's initials & containing the deposit receipt & a document in which he said: "I would like this paying away at once if possible as under," with a list of names with amounts against them:—Held: the money standing to the credit of both the current account & the deposit account belonged to the wife as survivor, & the document did not raise any presumption that the husband regarded the deposit as his

of them in the absence of special directions. But upon a subsequent notice to the bank by one of such persons that he claims it all, the bank in dealing with the money thereafter in any way affecting such claim acts at its own risk.—HILL v. HOCHRELAGA

She was about to open it, when he took it from her hand & said he would keep it for her & locked it up in his despatch box. After testator's death there was found in his despatch box an envelope containing: (1) A deposit receipt for £500 deposited with his bank in 1914; (2) an order in writing signed by testator directing the bank to pay to G. the sum of £500 then on deposit; & (3) a letter addressed to G.: "You have been very kind to me & I desire to make some return by giving you the amount £500 now on deposit at the . . . bank as per receipt enclosed." The deposit receipt was not indorsed by testator & no notice was given to the bank of any assignment till after his death, the interest on the sum on deposit having been carried by the bank to his current account:—Held: there was a valid & complete gift to G. of the sum on deposit by way of assignment under Jud. 479a. Cheque credited before clearance—Whether bank holders for value—Bank stopping payment before final clearance.—(1) Where a customer pays a crossed cheque into his bank, the question whether the bank receive it as holders for value or as agents for collection is a pure question of fact. The fact that the cheque is immediately credited in the ledger does not necessarily make the bank holders for value. That inference may be rebutted by notices in the pass-book & paying-in slip or other evidence showing that the customer could not draw before clearance.

(2) If the bank receive the cheque as agents for collection & stop payment before it is finally cleared at the clearing house, they can only receive & hold the proceeds as collecting agents for their customer, & not on the ordinary bank relationship of debtor & creditor. Consequently, in a winding up following on the stoppage the liquidator must pay the full proceeds of a cheque cleared after the stoppage to the customer, although it was cleared shortly before the actual winding up.—Re FARROW'S BANK, LTD., [1923] 1 Ch. 41; 92 L. 546a. —.] — Cheques paid to customer's creditors.] — Deft. bank negligently, & in breach of the instructions given by their customer, pltf. co., paid cheques drawn on the co.'s account signed by one director only. All the cheques were paid to the co.'s trade creditors:—Held: (1) the bank being put on inquiry & being negligent, as the jury found, were not entitled to assume that a signature purporting to be that of a new director was that of a person duly appointed; (2) whether pltf. co.'s account was in credit or in debit at the time of the payments to trade creditors, the bank were, on the equitable doctrine under which a person who has in fact paid the debts of another without authority is allowed to take advantage of his payment, entitled to credit for the cheques paid in discharge of the debts of pltf. co.; (3) an inquiry should be ordered into the circumstances of payment of each cheque.—*LIGGETT (B.) Such charges were almost always paid to him by accepted cheque & deft.

bank cashed such a cheque on it, paying the clerk the proceeds:—Held: the bank was negligent as inquiry should have been made as to the clerk's authority & the unusual act of a business firm cashing such a cheque, especially of a large amount, & a certain discrepancy between the name of the payee in the cheque & the name in the indorsement should have aroused suspicion.—*R. v. 589a. — Mistake in telegram—Duty of bank to make inquiry.]—Pltf., who had an account with defts., on July 31, 1924, drew a cheque, No. 117,285, & post-dated it Aug. 2. On Aug. 1 he telegraphed to defts. to stop payment of cheque No. 117,283, mentioning the date, the payee, & the amount. These particulars were correct as to cheque No. 117,285, but the number of the cheque was wrong. Cheque No. 117,285 was presented on Aug. 6, & the bank officials paid it, supposing that it had been drawn in place of the one that had been stopped. If they had searched, they would have seen that a cheque numbered 117,283 had already been presented & honoured. In an action for negligence:—Held: the view of the bank officials, that the cheque presented, being subsequent to the date of the stop instructions, might be a duplicate cheque which they were bound to cash, was correct, & pltf. was not entitled to recover.—WESTMINSTER BANK, LTD. v. 600a. Presentation over counter—Duty of bank to pay.]—Pltfs., a partnership firm at Liverpool, sold goods to the P. Co. & drew upon the co. a bill for a large amount payable in three months in payment for the goods. The P. Co. accepted the bill payable at deft. bank at Liverpool, where they kept their account. Shortly before the bill became payable the co., who were then overdrawn at deft. bank, asked that bank to order payment of the bill & charge to the account of the co. Defts. were willing to act upon this advice, because they had an arrangement for a running overdraft with the co., & the bill was within the limits of that overdraft. When the bill became due it was brought by W., a servant of pltfs., to a partner of pltf. firm, who, at W.'s request, indorsed the bill in blank. V., instead of taking the bill to pltfs.' bank for the purpose of collection through the clearing house, presented the bill for payment over the counter to deft. bank & received the money, which he then fraudulently converted & stole. Pltfs. sued defts. to recover the amount of the bill on the grounds of negligence, money had & received, & conversion of the bill. Evidence was given at the trial that there is an almost universal custom at Liverpool that trade bills should be presented through the clearing house for payment to the bank at which they were accepted payable, but evidence was also given that presentation of such bills over the counter, though most unusual, was not irregular:—Held: deft. bank were not liable to pltfs. (1) on the ground of negligence, because no privity of contract existed between defts. & pltfs., & defts. owed no duty to pltfs.; (2) on the ground of money had & received, because the drawing of the bill did not amount to an assignment in favour of the payee of funds of the drawee, as the acceptors had no funds to meet the bill, which was paid out of a loan by defts., & the advice to pay the bill sent by the acceptors to defts. gave no rights to pltfs. as against defts.; (3) defts. were not liable to pltfs. for the conversion of the bill, because the bill was a negotiable instrument, & they paid it in good faith without notice of any defect in title & in accordance with the law merchant. A bank was not bound to make inquiries merely because a bill indorsed in blank or an open cheque was presented for payment over the counter. According to the law merchant such presentation, although unusual, was always recognised as due presentation, sufficient to require the bankers to pay, in the absence of very special circumstances of suspicion.—AUCHTERONI & Co. v. Those cheques were then sent to deft. bank for collection, with instructions written by L. on the bank's letter paper requesting deft. bank to place the proceeds of the cheques to the credit of a joint account which L. had opened at deft. bank in the name of himself & his wife. Those instructions having been carried out, the proceeds of the cheques were then collected by L. promptly after they had been paid in. It appeared from the account itself that it was generally in small credit until the arrival of each fraudulent cheque, & there was a failure on the part of deft. bank to make inquiries of pltf. bank as to the regularity of the transactions:—Held: (1) each cheque taken by itself was "issued," being signed & dealt with by persons having ostensible authority to sign & issue it, but the accompanying instructions, signed by L. alone, gave notice of irregularity which destroyed the "holding in due course"; (2) deft. bank were not entitled to rely on Indian Negotiable Instruments Act, s. 131, as their title as holders was defective through notice, so that they were not "true owners" within the sect.; (3) deft. bank had failed to discharge the burden of showing that they had collected without negligence. 691a. Cheque payable to & indorsed by public official.—A banker to whom a private customer hands, for collection on his account, a cheque payable to & indorsed by a public official is put upon inquiry whether the customer is entitled to the cheque, & acts negligently if he credits the customer with the proceeds of the cheque without having made any such inquiry.

The Overseas Military Forces of Canada engaged in the European war had an estates office in England authorised by the Secretary of State for the Colonies to perform in accordance with statutory conditions the duties of collecting & distributing the estates of members of these forces dying in Europe. A sergeant employed at the office misappropriated during a period of ten months thirty-two cheques of the aggregate value of about £3,900, representing money belonging to the estates of deceased soldiers. Each of the cheques was drawn payable to "The Officer in Charge, Estates Office, Canadian Overseas Military Forces," & was indorsed generally by that officer under the same description with a view to its being sent to the Paymaster-General of these forces for payment of the amount to the beneficiaries, or in some cases directly to the beneficiary, & each cheque was crossed generally. The sergeant paid the first two cheques into a branch of defts.' bank at which he had a small private account of his own & the rest of them into another branch of the bank which passed them on to the former branch. No inquiry was made at either branch whether he was entitled to the cheques, & at the former branch they were credited to his account & payment of them was received for him. In an action by the Paymaster-General against defts. for damages for conversion of the cheques:—Held: the fact that the cheques were drawn payable to & indorsed by a public official should have put the cashiers of defts. upon inquiry whether their private customer was entitled to the cheques; in crediting the cheques to him without any inquiry the cashiers of both the branches had been guilty of negligence; & therefore defts. were not protected by Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 82, from liability to pltf.—*Ross v. PART II. SECT. 12, SUB-SECT. 3.

691i. What is negligence—Defective title of customer—Collection for stranger.—A man unknown to a banker was permitted to open an account with the bank by paying in a deposit of £5 in notes & four crossed cheques for collection, such cheques being made payable to a number or bearer & marked "bank," or "not negotiable," or "bank not negotiable." Without making any inquiry as to the man's title to the cheques the bank collected them. On the following day the man, by an open cheque, drew out almost the whole of the amount to the credit of his account, & paid in for collection four other crossed cheques, including one drawn by pltf. payable to a number or bearer to which the man who paid it in had no title. These four cheques were collected by the bank almost without inquiry:—Held: the circumstances in which the account was opened was such as to put the bank upon inquiry; the duty of inquiry extended to the transactions of the next day & in the absence of reasonable inquiry the bank was guilty of negligence.—LONDON BANK OF AUSTRALIA, LTD. v. KENDALL (1920), 28 C. L. R. 401.—AUS.

691c. — — — — —.]—In pltf's. were building ships for a firm, L. M. & P., & in connection with that business L. M. & P. sent pltf's. a crossed cheque for £8,000. That cheque was duly received at pltf's. office & B., a director, signed a receipt form on the back of the cheque as follows: "L. & M. Shipbuilding Co. T. B. director." Another director of pltf's., J., then indorsed the cheque to the order of another co. of which B. was a director, B. & Co. Ltd. The cheque was then indorsed by B. "for & on behalf of B. & Co. T. B. director," & was paid into the account of B. & Co. at a branch of defts.; & subsequently by arrangement between defts. & himself B. drew £2,000 out of the £8,000 thus credited to B. & Co. Ltd. for his own private purposes. J. had no right to indorse the cheque to the order of B. & Co., & B. & Co. had no right to the proceeds of the cheque. In 1923 pltf's. went into liquidation, & the liquidator on examining the accounts found that the cheque for £8,000 had been misapplied, & also that other sums were owing by B. to pltf's. The liquidator thereupon proceeded by a misfeasance summons against J. & B., & upon that summons an order was made for £450 against J. & £10,450 against B. The money was not paid, & pltf's. brought an action against defts. for conversion of the £8,000 cheque:—Held: there was clear evidence of negligence on the part of defts., & Bills of Exchange Act, 1882 (c. 61), s. 81, gave no defence to the claim.—*LONDON & MONTROSE SHIPBUILDING & REPAIRING CO., LTD. v. Where there was a missing link in the chain of identification of the customer:—Held: that fact ought to have put the bank upon inquiry, & the bank was not protected by the sect.—*HAMPSTEAD GUARDIANS v. 756a. Credit conditional on tender of approved insurance policy.—What is approved insurance policy.]—Bankers issued a letter of credit to English sellers of 100 tons of steel plates to Dutch buyers. By the terms of the letter of credit the bankers agreed to honour the sellers' draft for the amount of the purchase-money, which included freight & insurance to R., provided the draft were accompanied by an approved insurance policy covering the shipment of the goods. The sellers presented their draft accompanied by a certificate of insurance which did not contain & did not offer any means of ascertaining the full terms of the insurance. In an action by the sellers against the bankers for not honouring the draft:—Held: the certificate was not an "approved insurance policy," within the meaning of the letter of credit, & the bankers were justified in refusing to honour the draft. An approved insurance policy is one to which no reasonable objection can be made.—SCOTT (DONALD H.) & CO., LTD. v. BARCLAYS BANK, LTD., [1923] 2 K. B. 1; 92 L. J. K. B. 772; 129 L. T. 108; 39 T. L. The buyers were also to open a "confirmed irrevocable credit" in favour of pltfs. with a bank in this country, & to pay for each shipment as it took place. In pursuance of this arrangement defts., who were the buyers' bankers in L., wrote to pltfs. stating that they would pay bills drawn on the buyers to the extent of £70,000, the bills to be accompanied by documents & to be received before Apr. 14, 1921, "this to be considered a confirmed irrevocable credit." Pltfs. shipped two instalments under the contract & received payment under the letter of credit. The buyers then found that the invoices included an increase in the purchase price on account of wages & material, & instructed defts. only to pay so much of the next invoices as represented the original

a I. —.—.]—A document in the form of a letter written by a bank was as follows:—"We beg to inform you that we are in receipt of advice by wire from our London office that a confirmed irrevocable credit has been opened under which we are authorised to negotiate your bills, as offered on G. & Co., of London, to the extent of £16,875 on the following conditions: bills to be drawn payable three months after sight & to be accompanied by proper shipping documents representing shipment of two thousand bales of jute of a particular mark from Calcutta to Antwerp, during Nov., Dec. 1920." Among the conditions, the two following were the most important:—(a) "Please note that this advice does not release you from the liability attaching to the drawer of a bill of exchange"; (b) "Under present conditions we can give no undertaking to negotiate bills drawn under this credit".—Held: the document was not an ordinary banker's letter of credit.—CHANDANMULL BENGANEY *v. prices. Defts. accordingly refused to pay the bill presented on the next shipment & pltfs. then cancelled the contract, claiming damages from defts. as on a repudiation by the buyers:—Held: the credit being irrevocable, the refusal of defts. to take & pay for the particular bills on presentation of the proper documents constituted a repudiation of the contract as a whole, & pltfs. were entitled to damages so reckoned. The basis of this form of banking facility is that the buyer is taken, as between himself & the banker, to accept the seller's invoices as correct. Any adjustment must be made by way of refund by the seller & not by way of retention by the buyer.—URQUHART LINDSAY & CO. v. EASTERN BANK, LTD., [1922] 1 K. B. 318; 91 L. J. K. B. 274; 126 L. 756c. Revocable letter of credit—Duty of bank to give notice of withdrawal.—A firm in W., who wished to buy a quantity of asbestos sheets from pltfs., a firm in L., instructed defts. to open a credit in favour of pltfs. Defts. accordingly wrote a letter dated June 14, 1920, to pltfs. informing them of their instructions & adding that their letter "is merely an advice of the opening of the above-mentioned credit, & is not a confirmation of the same." On July 20, 1920, pltfs. shipped part of the goods to the buyers & were paid the agreed price by defts. on presentation of the stipulated documents which included bills of lading & a draft on defts. On Aug. 4, 1920, defts. were instructed by cable that the credit was withdrawn. On Sept. 30, 1920, pltfs., not having had notice of the withdrawal of the credit, shipped the balance of the goods to the buyers, but defts. refused payment of a draft for the price. Pltfs. brought an action against defts. for recovery of the balance of the credit, alleging (inter alia) that it was the duty of defts. to give to pltfs. reasonable notice that the credit had been withdrawn. There was evidence that it was the practice of defts. at once to inform persons to whom revocable credit was given of the withdrawal of the credit, but that in this instance, owing to pressure of business, they had forgotten to do so. Among the documents tendered to defts. on the application for payment on the second occasion was a bill of lading which defts. alleged was out of order, but which, according to pltfs., was in exactly the same terms as the former bill of lading accepted by defts. without objection:—Held: (1) a letter in the form of that written by defts. on June 14, 1920, intimated to the person in whose favour the credit was opened that he might find that the credit was revoked at any time; (2) there was no legal obligation on defts. to give notice of the revocation of the credit; (3) the giving of notice was an act of courtesy which it was very desirable should be performed, but it was not founded upon any legal obligation.—*CAPE ASBESTOS CO., LTD. v. 921a. ———.]—Defts. acted as bankers for a firm up to Feb. 3, 1914, when the firm being insolvent by deed assigned all their property to pltf. as trustee for their creditors. The deed provided that payments to the creditors should be made upon the basis of a bkpcy. distribution of the property & that secured creditors should have the same rights as under a bkpcy. At the date of the deed the firm had £2,934 to the credit of their current account in deft. bank, & the bank held certain shares as security for an advance to the firm. These shares were subsequently sold by the bank & realised £812 in excess of the amount of the advance to the firm. Before Feb. 3, 1914, the firm had discounted with the bank a number of bills of exchange, which matured after that date, & in respect thereof the firm became the debtors of the bank to the amount of £19,941. In an action by pltf. as trustee under the deed to recover from the bank the two sums of £2,934 & £812, the bank claimed a lien on those sums & also to set off a sufficient portion of £19,941 against those sums:—Held: the bank's claim was right on both points.—*BAKER v. 932a. ———.]—Joint & several guarantee—Termination.]—By an agreement the six signatories thereto jointly & severally agreed with a Canadian bank to guarantee repayment up to a fixed sum of all liabilities, including interest, which a customer had or should incur to the bank: it was provided that the agreement should be a continuing guarantee "until the undersigned, or the exor. or administrator of the undersigned, shall have given the bank notice in writing to make no further advances on the security of this guarantee." In 1913, the bank, without notice to the guarantors but with the assent of the debtor, increased the rate of interest upon the advances to 8 per cent., though, by Bank Act (R. S. Can. c. 29), s. 91, it was illegal for a bank to charge more than 7 per cent. Subsequently one of the signatories died, & his exors. gave notice purporting to terminate the liability of the estate of the deceased under the guarantee:—Held: (1) the guarantee remained in force against all the guarantors until each & all of them or their respective exors. or administrators gave notice to determine it; (2) the increase in the rate of interest did not discharge the guarantors, but they were liable for the principal sum advanced & for such interest as the debtor was legally to pay.—EGBERT v.

986a. Without consent of customer.]—It is an implied term of the contract between a banker & his customer that the bank will not divulge to third persons, without the consent of the customer express or implied, either the state of the customer's account, or any of his transactions with the bank, or any information relating to the customer acquired through the keeping of his account, unless the banker is compelled to do so by order of a ct., or the circumstances give rise to a public duty of disclosure, or the protection of the banker's own interests requires it.

Pltf. was a customer of deft. bank. A cheque was drawn by another customer of defts. in favour of pltf., who instead of paying it in to his own account indorsed it to a third person who had an account at another bank. On the return of the cheque to defts. their manager inquired of the last-named bank who the person was to whom it had been paid, & was told it was a bookmaker. That information defts. disclosed to third persons:—Held: that disclosure constituted a breach of defts.' duty to pltf., for though the information was acquired not through pltf.'s account but through that of the drawer of the cheque, it was acquired by defts. during the currency of pltf.'s account & in their character as bankers.—*TOURNIER v. Several lines of rails ran through the yard, & it was his duty to sweep between the lines, but to stand clear of them when trucks were being run over them. On June 10, 1918, a capstan man in the employ of defts. gave notice to the man that he was going to run trucks into the yard, which notice the man acknowledged. The first truck was sent in. & the capstan man stated that he saw the man apply the brake to it, which was not a part of his duty, & then leave the yard. A second truck was then sent down on another line, & shortly afterwards the man was found sitting on the ground, having sustained injuries from which he died. Upon a claim by his widow for compensation under Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906 (c. 58), an admission was made by counsel at the trial that "deceased was crushed between two waggons & sustained abdominal injury from which he died." A new trial having been ordered:—Held: the above admission was not to be binding at the second trial.—

On the morning of the birth when resp. was in labour, applt., who had no other female servant, lit a fire for her & took her some tea & brandy. He also sent for the doctor. After the birth he allowed her & the child to remain for five weeks & two days, until June 17, in his house. There was no evidence whether she was sufficiently recovered to have left at an earlier date. Applt. admitted that during those five weeks & two days he never asked resp. who was the father of her child. Resp. in her evidence said that during that time, though she did not fix the date except that it was before June 16, she asked applt. what he was going to do about the child, & he said that there was nothing for him to do but to pay. After resp. had left his house she wrote him a letter charging him with being the father of the child, & asking him if he meant to pay for its maintenance. that applt. was the father of her illegitimate child, & ordered him to make her a periodical payment. On a subsequent application by applt. under Criminal Justice Administration Act, 1914 (c. 58), s. 30 (3), to revoke the whole order, he tendered fresh evidence, which went only to show that he was not the father of the child. The justices refused to hear it, holding that they had no power to deal with that part of the order which adjudged the paternity:—Held: (1) the justices were right; (2) (AVORY & SHEARMAN, JJ.) there being nothing to show that the evidence tendered was of facts which had occurred since the original hearing, or had come to the knowledge of applt. since the hearing, that evidence was not "fresh evidence" within sect. 30 (3).—*COLCHESTER v. After the time for appealing against this order had expired, the rule in the present case was obtained on an affidavit by complainant's husband that he had cohabited with complainant at the material date & could have been the father of the child:—Held: the question of access or non-access was a question of fact for the justices, from which they were entitled to find that M. was the child's father; the ct. would not, in support of a rule for a certiorari, rehear a case upon further evidence on a disputed question of fact, & perform the functions of quarter sessions, to which, owing to lapse of time, an appeal could not be made.—*R. v. solr., & his bill of costs amounted to £217 10s. 1d., & that B. had undertaken to pay to a bank certain moneys due to them by bkpt. on realising his securities, & that there was lodged on behalf of bkpt. the sum of £1,350 with the official receiver to enable him to discharge the provable debts in the bkpcy., debtor assigned to B. so much of the £1,350 as should be payable to bkpt. & £2,050 payable to bkpt. under a certain agreement. B. was to hold the sums assigned to him upon trust, in the first place to pay & discharge all moneys due, or thenceforth becoming due to himself for costs, advances or otherwise, & in the next place to pay & discharge certain alleged debts of bkpt. at X., & lastly to apply the balance for the benefit of S. & her children. On Feb. 3, 1921, the above-mentioned receiving order was rescinded. At the date of the assignment bkpt. was living apart from his wife, to whom he had agreed to pay maintenance at the rate of £10 per week, & judgment had been recovered by H. for £58 6s. 11d. for the board & lodging of bkpt.'s wife. On Feb. 8, 1921, a writ had been issued by bkpt.'s wife for arrears of maintenance due to her from bkpt. On Feb. 11, 1921, H. issued a bkpcy. notice in respect of her judgment & a petition was filed on Apr. 30, 1921. A receiving order was made on June 3, 1921, & debtor was adjudged bkpt. on June 20, 1921:—Held: on the facts the assignment was executed with the intent to defeat & delay creditors, & was therefore fraudulent & void as an act of bkpcy. under 1914 Act, s. 1 (1) (b). —Re PRIOR, Ex p. TRUSTEE, [1922] B. & C. 797a. Creditor who has assented to deed of arrangement—Deed void for want of registration.—On June 11, 1921, applt. co. recovered judgment against debtor for a certain sum & costs. On Apr. 18, 1922, debtor executed a document in the form of a memorandum of agreement by which he assigned his property to trustees for the benefit of his creditors. The agreement provided (inter alia) that it should not be registered either as a composition or deed of arrangement or otherwise & contained a schedule of creditors & their debts. At the date of the agreement there were five bkpcy. petitions pending against debtor by creditors other than applt. co. As a result of negotiations between debtor & the five creditors & in consideration of his entering into the agreement of Apr. 18, 1922, the five creditors agreed to the dismissal of their petitions & signed letters dated Apr. 17, 1922, which were all in the same form, & contained a statement that it was understood that it was not intended to register the agreement as a deed of arrangement, by which they respectively agreed that so long as debtor complied with the terms of the agreement of Apr. 18, 1922, they would not bring any action against him in respect of their scheduled debts or attempt to set aside the agreement. On July 18, 1922, applt. co. signed a letter of assent in the same terms, which was also dated Apr. 17, 1922, & agreed to hand it over to debtor on receiving from him a promissory note or bill of exchange of a third party for £300. This condition debtor performed. The letter was not, however, handed over to debtor owing to the refusal by him to pay to applt. co. an agreed sum for costs, a term which the ct. held formed no part of the original bargain. Applt. co. subsequently issued a bkpcy. notice against debtor founded on its judgment debt. The registrar set the bkpcy. notice aside on the ground that applt. co. was bound by the agreement contained in the letter signed by it. On appeal:—Held: (1) the agreement of Apr. 18, 1922, being a deed of arrangement, was void for want of registration under 1914 (Deeds) Act, & the letter of assent, being an assent to a void instrument, was also itself void; (2) as debtor & all the creditors who assented to the agreement knew from the terms of the instrument itself & from the statement contained in the letters signed by them that the agreement was void, & there was no representation that the agreement was valid, there was no question of estoppel, & applt. co. was not estopped from issuing the bkpcy. notice.—Re A BANKRUPTCY NOTICE, [1924] 2 Ch. 76; 93 L. Debtors gave notice of an application to set aside service of the petition, but the registrar refused to do so, & made a receiving order on the fresh bkpcy. notice.—Held: (1) debtors could not refuse to comply with the fresh bkpcy. notice on the ground that as the previous notice had resulted in an act of bkpcy. this had put it out of the power of debtors to make any payment in compliance with the fresh notice or otherwise deal with their property; (2) if they did make a payment in compliance with the fresh notice it might be that if a trustee were appointed under the previous bkpcy. notice the payment might be set aside, & the money made available for the general body of creditors.—Re DEBTORS (No. 771 OF 1926) (1926), 43 T. The notice was not complied with, & a petition for a receiving order was presented. On Jan. 9, in response to the creditor's invitation, debtor tendered the £23 in cash, but the tender was refused. On Jan. 27 the creditor filed a bkpcy. notice in respect of the £47 judgment debt, & on Feb. 16 he filed a petition based on the two debts, & on non-compliance with the bkpcy. notice:—Held: though the two debts were still owing & amounted to over £50, so that the creditor was formally entitled to present a petition under 1914 Act, s. 4 (1), nevertheless the refusal before the bkpcy. notice of the £23 offered at his invitation, & refused only in order to keep the total debt over £50, was "sufficient cause" within sect. 5 (3) for making no order on the petition.—Re DEBTOR, *Ex p. - 1179a. Attendance at meeting of committee of inspection.—About the end of 1922 debtor made an arrangement to pay his creditors in full by instalments, a committee being appointed to watch over his affairs. His trading was not prosperous & new debts were incurred. On Feb. 21, 1924, he executed a deed of assignment for the benefit of his creditors generally & a circular letter with a form of assent was sent to & received by petitioning creditors, who were new creditors. On Feb. 25, 1924, their director with their accountant attended the office of one of the trustees under the deed & suggested that they or some other new creditor should be represented on the committee of inspection. Petitioning creditors were then invited to attend the meeting of the committee on Mar. 26, 1924, & their director & their solr. attended accordingly, discussing & advising on certain matters. Petitioning creditors, however, refused to assent to the deed & presented a petition in bkpcy. grounded upon the execution of the deed as an act of bkpcy.:—Held: on the facts, petitioning creditors had so far recognised the deed as to preclude them from availing themselves of its execution as an act of bkpcy.—*Re A DEBTOR, Ex p. Objection being taken on behalf of debtor that the petition was wrongly signed & attested & the consideration for the debt not truly stated, the county ct. registrar dismissed the petition:—Held: the petition amply informed debtor who petitioners were, & what the debt was in respect of which they were petitioning; there was no defect or irregularity & even if there were, it would come within 1914 Act, s. 147 (1), & the appeal must be allowed & a receiving order made & dated as of the date on which it should have been made in the county ct.—*Re MARSDEN, Ex p. 1483a. Debtor claiming indemnity—As surety for contingent liability of petitioning creditor.]—Petitioning co., of which debtor was formerly chairman, had lent debtor a large sum of money, & recovered judgment against him (on balance of account) for £2,065. A receiving order was made in the county ct. from which debtor appealed, alleging that he had become surety for the co. for their bank overdraft with a limit of £5,000, & that he was entitled to be indemnified against this liability. No payment had been made by debtor on account of the bank overdraft. At a creditors' meeting the creditors were of opinion that debtor was insolvent & there was no alternative but bkpcy. :—Held: on the facts, petitioning creditors' obligation to indemnify debtor as surety in respect of his contingent liability for a debt due from petitioning creditors to a bank did not constitute “sufficient cause” for the dismissal of the petition.—Re A DEBTOR (No. 13 of 1922), Ex p. THE DEBTOR, [1923] B. & C. - 1491a. ———.]—Debtor furnished a friend with a cheque for £500 as a deposit in connection with the underwriting of shares by a co. in which the friend was interested. The cheque was dishonoured & judgment obtained against debtor for £500 & £14 6s. costs. In Dec. 1926, the judgment creditors petitioned for a receiving order against debtor in respect of the judgment debt. From time to time arrangements were made for adjourning the petition, but in Mar. 1927, the petitioning creditors intimated that the conditions on which they would agree to the petition being dismissed were that debtor should pay £100 & provide a guarantee for payment of the balance of the debt & also agree to pay to them the costs of their proceedings against the underwriters as between solr. & client, & the costs of their proceedings against debtor, also as between solr. & client. Payment of the costs of proceedings against the underwriters was refused, but payment by debtor of solr. & client costs was agreed to, & sums of £50 & £144 were paid & the petition dismissed. In July petitioners again commenced proceedings for a receiving order in respect of a sum ascertained by deducting from the original debt & interest & costs as between solr. & client the payments of £50 & £144. A receiving order having been made:—Held: the acts of petitioners in seeking to obtain payment of their costs in the proceedings against the underwriters & in obtaining payment by debtor of their solr. & client costs amounted to extortion & an abuse of the process of the ct., & the case fell within 1914 Act, s. 5 (3), as being one where the ct. was satisfied that for sufficient cause no receiving order ought to be made, & the receiving order must be discharged.—Re DEBTOR (No. 883 OF 1927), [1928] Ch. 199; 97 L. A subsequent unsatisfied judgment creditor applied to the registrar in bkpcy. for a charging order upon the balance of the funds in the hands of the official receiver :—Held : (1) the registrar had jurisdiction to make the order; (2) the registrar’s jurisdiction was derived through the jurisdiction of the judge of the High Ct. to whom for the time being bkpcy. matters were assigned exercising his bkpcy. jurisdiction.—Re PRIOR, *Ex p. His mother was seventy-five. The petition was filed on July 19, 1923. His present indebtedness amounted to about £6,000 & negotiations for a loan for that amount with an insurance co. had been going on since July 16, 1923. Owing to a delay in raising this loan, the registrar had made a receiving order on Nov. 21, 1923, from which debtor appealed; & upon debtor undertaking during the interval necessary to raise the loan, to insure his life immediately, i.e. from

Jan. 1, 1923, to Jan. 1, 1924, in order that, in the event of his death during that period, the unsecured creditors might be safeguarded, the Ct. of Appeal allowed the appeal, discharged the receiving order & dismissed the petition without prejudice to another petition being presented if the loan was not carried through & petitioning creditors' debt not paid on or before Jan. 1, 1924. Up to Dec. 20, debtor had not insured his life pursuant to his undertaking & petitioning creditors then moved to commit debtor for contempt. The Ct. of Appeal allowed debtor three hours within which to insure his life, & a certificate being produced showing that this had been done, the ct. made no order except that debtor should pay the creditors' costs. Subsequently debtor having again broken his undertaking by not completing the insurance on his life, the Ct. of Appeal rescinded their order, with the result that the receiving order stood as originally made by the registrar.—Re A Debtor, Ex p. THE DEBTOR (No. 1088 of 1923), [1924] B. & C. R. 1, C. A.

1894a. Duty to recover statutory debt.]

In 1919 debtor paid debt., a bookmaker, various cheques for bets lost on horse racing, & these cheques were cleared through various banks, as holders. On Aug. 30, 1920, debtor was adjudicated bkpt. & on Mar. 30, 1921, his trustee in bkpcy. by the direction of his committee of inspection, commenced an action to recover £955, the amount admitted to be due, if recoverable. The action was transferred to the judge in bkpcy. under Bkpcy. Rules, 1915, r. 123. Debt. took the point that such an action ought not to be brought by an officer of the ct., as the claim, however legal, was practically dishonest, & that all cts. must apply the rule in Re Condon, Ex p. James, No. 60, ante:—Held: the claim the trustee in bkpcy. was seeking to enforce was in respect of a debt which under Gaming Act, 1835 (c. 41), s. 2, & the decision of the House of Lords in Sutlers v. Briggs (see GAMING & WAGERING, Vol. XXV., p. 418, No. 213), was a statutory debt, & there was nothing in Re Condon, Ex p. James, or in any of the cases in which the rule in that case had been followed, which entitled the ct. to say that if & when a right of action in respect of such a debt vested in a trustee in bkpcy., it was a dishonest or dishonourable thing for him as an officer of the ct. to enforce it, & judgment for the trustee in bkpcy. must be entered in the action for the amount claimed.—*SCRANTON'S TRUSTEE v. 1894b. — Duty to act equitably—Recovery of money paid to bankrupt with approval of official receiver.]—On June 26, 1924, a receiving order was made against W. on a petition presented on May 25, 1924, in respect of an act of bkpcy. on May 1, 1924. W. was a promoter of boxing contests & had in view at the date of the presentation of the petition boxing competitions, one of which was held at the Stadium, Wembley, on Aug. 9, 1924. He appealed against the receiving order, & pending that appeal the receiving order was not gazetted. His appeal having failed it was then gazetted on July 29, 1924. At an interview between W., his solr., the solr. for the Wembley authorities & A., the assistant official receiver, who under Bkpcy. Rules, 1915, r. 316, represented the official receiver, A. was told of the proposed boxing contest & the judge held on the evidence that at the interview W. told A. he desired notwithstanding the receiving order to be allowed to stage the contest as the only hope of providing assets to meet the claims of his creditors, & that it was arranged he could do so without any interference by the official receiver, on W. undertaking not to use the proceeds of the sale of tickets for his private purposes but only for discharging the expenses of the staging of the contest & to hand over any balance to the official receiver. On that arrangement being made W. proceeded with the negotiations for the contest & an agreement was executed by which he gave the Wembley authorities the right to collect all moneys paid for tickets at the turnstiles, & they were to have those moneys as a security for the payment by W. for the use of the Stadium. Various ticket agents paid W. for blocks of tickets to be sold by them to the public. The contest, which was held at the Stadium on Aug. 9, 1924, only realised after payment of all expenses £730 which W. paid to the official receiver. On Sept. 6, 1924, W. was adjudicated bkpt., & on Sept. 9, S. was appointed trustee in the bkpcy. On a motion by S. to recover from the various ticket agents all sums paid by them since the date of the receiving order to W. for tickets they had bought from him & to recover the money collected by the Wembley authorities at the turnstiles:—Held: A. had power to give his sanction to W.'s receipt of the proceeds of the sale of tickets to be applied by him in discharging expenses & the trustee in bkpcy. was bound by the sanction so given, but even if he were not so bound & even if A. exceeded his powers the trustee could not take the benefit of W.'s activities without accepting their burden, & the payment to W. of the moneys which the trustee claimed, being the direct result of the leave obtained by W. from A. to stage the boxing contests, it would be inequitable & unjust to make resps. pay these moneys over again for the benefit of W.'s creditors & to hold that the charge given to the Wembley authorities was nugatory.—*Re WILSON, Ex p. 2902a. ———.]—By marriage articles in 1914, made between husband & wife & three trustees, it was agreed that, after the intended marriage, an indenture of settlement should be executed & that the husband would bring into settlement all property to which he then was or thereafter might become entitled, to be held, subject to life interests in favour of husband & wife, upon trusts to be mutually agreed between the trustees of the settlement. It was further agreed that the first trustees of the settlement should be the three trustees of the articles therein named, & that if they or either of them should fail to accept the trusteeship of the settlement, then such other person or persons as the spouses should nominate; & that in the meantime until the execution of the settlement the persons in whom such property should be vested should hold the same upon the trusts of the settlement. The marriage was solemnised on the day of the execution of the articles. On the death of his father on Feb. 22, 1918, the husband, under his will, became entitled in reversion, subject to the life interest of testator's widow, to a share in his residuary estate. On June 13, 1919, the trustees of the articles gave notice to the will trustees of the execution of the articles. On Oct. 21, 1920, the husband, in pursuance of his contract contained in the articles, executed a settlement by which he assigned to the trustees thereof, of whom there were three & of whom one was also a trustee under the articles, but the other two were not, his interest under his father's will upon trusts for the benefit of his wife & children. On Dec. 5, 1921, the settlor was adjudicated bkpt. The trustee in bkpcy. moved for a declaration that the settlement & the transfer of the property purported to be made thereunder were void as against him:—Held: (1) the acquisition by bkpt. on his father's death of the property which was non-existent at the date of the articles did not operate under the well settled doctrine as a complete equitable assignment of that property as the persons to whom the property was attracted to be assigned & the trusts upon which such persons were to hold it were not ascertained at the date of such acquisition; (2) even if there had been an equitable assignment within that doctrine, it would not have operated as a transfer of property within the true meaning of 1914 Act, s. 42 (3); (3) the assignment contained in the settlement of Oct. 1920, operated as a transfer of property within that sub-sect. & was void by reason of its execution within two years of the commencement of the bkpcy.—*Re DENT, Ex p. 2978a. Proof by plaintiff against bankrupt defendant—Stay of action after bankruptcy—Proof in bankruptcy for amount claimed in action.—On Oct. 25, 1920, resp., a mtge. broker, hereinafter called pltf., issued a writ against debtor in the K. B. Div. to recover a sum of £650 for commission earned. On June 20, 1921, the action was set down for trial. On July 19, 1921, a receiving order was made against debtor. On Feb. 2, 1922, on the application of pltf. made in the action the action was stayed with liberty to pltf. to restore. On Mar. 6, 1922, pltf., instead of applying to restore the action, lodged his proof in the bkpcy. of debtor for £650. The official receiver rejected his proof, but on Jan. 17, 1923, the county ct. judge reversed the decision of the official receiver & admitted the proof. On Sept. 29, 1923, pltf. lodged a further proof for £46 17s. 9d. for his untaxed costs of the action, all of which were incurred before the date of the receiving order. On Oct. 31, 1923, the official receiver rejected that proof. Pltf. appealed, & on Feb. 11, 1924, the county ct. judge reversed his decision & ordered that the proof of the costs, amounting to £46 17s. 9d., should be admitted subject to taxation. On the appeal of the official receiver:—Held: (1) as pltf. had obtained no judgment dealing either with
